LONDON, Jan. 14.—Japan's delegates will formally withdraw from the five power naval conference at tomorrow afternoon's meeting after having spoken their final piece demanding naval equality with the United States and Great Britain.

The decision to withdraw was practically announced to the British at a meeting yesterday, but further queries were made to Tokio to clinch the decision. Replies to these queries were received today. The Japanese are expected to leave observers behind in case the four remaining powers—the United States, Britain, France, and Italy—continue the conference. The British are anxious to continue discussions on qualitative limitation. The Americans are said to have agreed to stay.

Americans and British Confer.

The British and American delegates met at the foreign office today. It was announced that they discussed the procedure for tomorrow's session. All agreed on what was to be done, spokesmen for both the Americans and the British said.

Later the British consulted the Italians and the French about tomorrow's procedure and about remaining for the four power talks. According to newspaper dispatches from Tokio, the Japanese government's instructions to its delegates here were, "no concessions, but no rupture." It was on that basis evidently that the Japanese observers will remain.

The British tonight intimated that the four powers which remain will discuss ship sizes and gun calibers and will later invite Germany, Russia, Spain, and possibly other powers to join in the conference.

Defense Committee Meets.

The defense committee of the British cabinet met again today. The session, which was attended by the chiefs of the naval and air services, was said to have been chiefly concerned with defenses in the far east rather than in the Mediterranean. The meeting was described as being preparatory to tomorrow's cabinet meeting, which will review the whole foreign situation. There was a mention of floating a new defense loan.

Severe strictures, evidently inspired from official sources, were laid on Tokio and on the Japanese delegation tonight. The British press warned the Japanese that their walking out of the conference will only serve to cement the union between the other four naval powers.

Today's discussions concerned the effort of the Japanese to torpedo the whole conference when they withdraw tomorrow. According to the British, the Japanese yesterday demanded a complete dissolution of the conference, arguing that under the terms of the Washington and London treaties it would be illegal to continue on a four power basis.

Americans Back British.

The British consulted the Americans about that and found that the Americans agreed that continuance of the conference without Japan would be perfectly in order.

The smothered wrath of the British admirals at Japan's tactics seeped out through official circles. The Japanese were charged with not playing fair, with presenting demands which they knew in advance were not acceptable, and finally with full responsibility for killing the five power conference by suddenly demanding a reëxamination of their original demand for all around equality.

The British hint that the Japanese

Morgenthau Tells of 11 Billion Needs.

Would Curb Courts

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Brushing aside Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau's statement that the administration would have to raise at least 11 billions of dollars by the summer of 1937, the senate finance committee today voted favorably on the bill to pay the veterans' bonus in baby bonds, which would be cashed by the treasury on demand.

Morgenthau's testimony was given to the senate committee in executive session, but was disclosed by Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.], who voted against the bill with Senator Peter G. Gerry [Dem., R. I.].

President Roosevelt declined to comment on the senate developments at his afternoon press conference. Last year the President vetoed the Patman inflationary bonus bill, but this year he has not stated his position on the question.

Harrison Predicts Passage.

Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee, said the bill would probably be up for consideration in the senate Thursday and would be "enacted into law."

Lobbyists of the veterans' organization here are united for the senate bill, which would distribute $50 bonds to the veterans in exchange for their adjusted service certificates. The bill passed by the house last week provided payment in cash.

According to Senator Couzens, Morgenthau would not say one way or another whether the treasury could stand the bond payments. The immediate cost of the senate bonus scheme is estimated at 1 billion dollars and the eventual outlay would be 2 billion 491 million dollars.

The 11 billions the administration will need to finance its expenditures during the next 17½ months, Couzens said, was apportioned by Morgenthau as follows: 2 billions for relief that was not included in the President's budget; 1½ billions for next year's deficit; 2 billions for the bonus; and 5 billion 800 millions for refunding operations.

Brings New Debt Peak.

This would bring the government's public debt to a new peak of 35 billion 500 million dollars by the end of the next fiscal year, Morgenthau was reported to have told the senate committee. Another billion dollars to take the place of the AAA processing taxes invalidated by the Supreme court if benefits to farmers are to be continued by this régime would add that much to the debt.

Couzens disclosed that Morgenthau in replying to a question had admitted that the voting of the bonus, together with the invalidation of the AAA "would not help the bond market."

"The most astonishing thing to me," said Couzens, "is the seeming indifference of congress to handing out a billion dollars to the veterans in excess of the government's obligations. The veterans' administration estimated that the senate bill, if passed, would add a billion dollars in taxes over and above the present bonus obligations, payable in 1945.

"In other words, if congress did nothing and let matters run as they are, the taxpayers would have a billion dollars less to pay."

Opposes Added Cost.

Senator Gerry declared that he was opposed to paying the bonus in view of the amount of government financing to be done and when "we are trying to get more nearly a balanced budget."

Senators who voted to report the bill out favorably were as follows: Democrats, George [Ga.], Walsh [Mass.], Barkley [Ky.], Gore [Okla.], Costigan [Colo.], Bailey [N. C.], Clark [Mo.], Lonergan [Conn.], Black [Ala.], Guffey [Pa.], and Harrison [Miss.]; Republicans, Keyes [N. H.], Hastings [Del.], and Capper [Kas.]; Progressive, La Follette [Wis].

Seize Woman and Attorney in Auto Death

Mrs. Doris Carr, 31 years old of the Lake Shore Athletic club, 850 Lake Shore drive, and Clarence J. Loftus, 50 years old, an attorney who also lives at the club, were arrested last night by the county highway police at Morton Grove after an automobile driven by Mrs. Carr killed one man and injured another on Skokie boulevard, three miles southeast of Northbrook.

Mrs. Carr, who fled in a taxicab after the accident and was later arrested at the club, was charged with involuntary manslaughter. After being in custody several hours she was released on $5,000 bond and will appear at the inquest this morning. Loftus, who owns the automobile—an expensive model—and was sleeping in the back seat at the time of the accident, was freed after posting $1,000 bond to insure his presence at the inquest. No charge was placed against him.

Victim an Elevator Operator.

The man killed was Arthur Kallish, 35 years old, 907 East 81st street, an elevator operator. The injured man is Alfred Weder, 5331 Dakin street. He was given first aid and then went to the county highway station.

Mrs. Carr's husband, Charles, sales manager for the Sanborn Map company, 676 St. Clair street, accompanied her from the club to the station with the police. He remained there about a half hour, not speaking to her or Loftus, and then left.

Hit as They Repair Car.

Weder said that he and Kallish had driven their car onto the west shoulder of the highway, a four lane road, to repair the engine. Weder was fixing the carburetor and Kallish was holding a flashlight when the car driven by Mrs. Carr, traveling south, struck Kallish and pinned him between the two cars. Weder was knocked down.

Loftus and Mrs. Carr took the two men they had struck to the office of Dr. Roland Rembe in Northbrook. Then Mrs. Carr fled in a taxicab. Loftus, who had been drinking, according to Weder, was arrested. At first he declared he was Thomas McGuire, a former Notre Dame athlete, and gave a fictitious address.

Loftus said he and Mrs. Carr left the athletic club early yesterday afternoon and drove to the Edgewater Beach hotel, where they had sandwiches. From the hotel they went to the Evanston Golf club, of which Loftus is a member, and spent some time there, he said.

Still later, Loftus said, they drove to the Villa Moderne at Skokie boulevard and the Lake county line and he had some drinks. He asserted that Mrs. Carr had not joined him in drinking. They were on their way home when the accident occurred.

SUES FOR MILLION SPENT IN PRAISE OF CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Demanding recovery of $1,175,098 county funds paid the chamber of commerce to advertise California and its climate in national magazines, Anthony Pratt, secretary of the Municipal league, sued today on behalf of taxpayers of Los Angeles county.

The suit contends that the chamber and the board have not complied with the terms of the contracts, in that discretion as to how, when, and where the advertising is placed is delegated to the chamber, and the county board of supervisors is stripped of any authority in the matter.

Injunction to restrain the county auditor from paying out additional funds from the county treasury to the chamber also is sought in the action.

Kipling Lies in Coma with Peritonitis

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 15 [Wednesday].—Rudyard Kipling, empire poet and famous story teller, early this morning had developed peritonitis and lapsed into a coma at Central Middlesex hospital.

It was revealed his condition was so serious when he reached the hospital Monday morning that surgeons were unable to perform the usual "short circuiting" operation for perforated ulcer of the stomach and had to content themselves with emergency measures.

At midnight Dr. Alfred E. Webb-Johnson, the surgeon who performed the operation, called at the hospital and, after consulting the nursing staf, decided to remain all night.

Returns to Fame.

The struggle for life by the author of "Gunga Din," "Danny Deever," "On the Road to Mandalay," and hundreds of other ballads and stories has revived his former fame in this country, though for years he was more popular in America and on the continent than in England. Among hundreds of calls to the hospitals were inquiries from the British king and queen and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, Kipling's cousin.

The interest contrasts with the comparative indifference in this country on the occasion of Kipling's 70th birthday Dec. 30, which, however, was marked elsewhere with long newspaper articles and reviews of his work. One reason for the decline of Kipling's popularity in England was the fact that his verses and stories are eulogistic of the civil service and the army in the golden empire days.

Once Near Death in U. S.

Younger Britons considered Kipling and his world of colonizers had passed out of the picture. Foreign critics continued to value Kipling as a literary artist and, although in recent years he had practically disappeared from public notice in Britain, he frequently went to the continent for lectures.

Kipling's books have had a continuous sale. By the end of 1935 more than 3,500,000 copies had been bought by the British public, according to his English publishers. The favorites were: "Jungle Book," which sold more than 407,000; "Just So Stories," which sold 307,000; "Kim," 287,000; "The Second Jungle Book," 207,000; "Puck of Pook's Hill," 204,000; "Stalky & Co.," 2[illegible]2,000.

Searchers Find Plane Down in River Swamp

Goodwin, Ark., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—In one of the worst disasters of its kind in the history of commercial aviation in this country, fourteen passengers and the pilot, co-pilot, and stewardess of a twin motored American Airlines plane were killed shortly after 8 o'clock last night, when the plane crashed into a swamp two and a half miles northeast of this village.

The cause of the mishap, involving the deaths of all aboard the plane, was not immediately determined, but officials at the municipal airport at Memphis, Tenn., sixty miles away, said they were informed that one of the two propellers of the ship had dropped off.

Known as "The Southerner."

The liner, the "Southerner" of the Douglas DC 2 type, made stops en route west from New York at Camden, N. J.; Washington, D. C., and Memphis, Tenn. The next scheduled stops were at Little Rock, Dallas and Fort Worth, Tex., and Los Angeles.

The plane hurtled into eighteen feet of swamp water and was badly damaged. It was believed that the work of extricating the bodies from the wreckage and carrying them some distance to five waiting ambulances would require hours.

The list of passengers on the plane released by C. R. Smith of the American Airlines in Fort Worth, Tex., follows:

Charles Altschul, 340 North Central, Glendale, Cal.

J. C. Cahn, 827 South Pimpau boulevard, Los Angeles.

A. D. Chernus, Beardstown, Ill.

W. R. Dyess, 101 Ridgeway, Little Rock, Ark.

Mrs. J. S. Gremillion, Knoxville, Tenn.

F. C. Hart, 630 Fifth avenue, New York.

W. S. Hardwicke, Beardstown, Ill.

Mrs. S. Horovitz, Mrs. B. Horovitz, and Seba Horovitz, all of Walcott road, Boston, Mass.

R. H. McNair, 314 South Balman street, Little Rock, Ark.

H. W. Plato, Laredo, Tex.

N. Porter, Third and Lehi streets, Philadelphia.

Schwartz boarded the plane at the Camden, N. J., airport shortly after it left New York for Los Angeles at 12:30 p. m. yesterday, but whether or not Mr. Schwartz left the ship at Washington or another intermediate stop was not learned, according to other American Airlines officials.

The plane had left Memphis at 6:47 p. m. and was due at its next stop, Little Rock, Ark., about 45 minutes later. It was in wireless communication with the line's Memphis office for about 15 minutes after the takeoff. During that time the ship's radio operator indicated that there was nothing amiss. Weather conditions for flying were good, it was reported.

Shortly after the plane's radio went dead employés of the line at Little Rock started an investigation. It was nearly midnight—about four hours later—when the wreck was found by Sherif Jim Campbell and a party of volunteer searchers, all of whom had to wear high boots to wade through the treacherous swamp.

Motors Suddenly Stop.

It was farmer named George Jones, living in the nearby village of Forrest City, who provided the first definite clew as to the location of the crash. He said he had heard the sound of the plane's motors as it roared overhead, but that the motors suddenly stopped

STAY PREDICTED FOR HAUPTMANN AS COURT FAILS

Governor Only Hope of Lindy Slayer.

BULLETIN.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 14.—(Special.)—Reports were circulated in Trenton tonight that Gov. Hoffman had granted Bruno Richard Hauptmann a thirty day reprieve. The governor's aide, William S. Conklin, denied it, but at the same time declared no steps would be taken to force Dr. John F. Condon to return from his cruise "because he will be back in plenty of time." This was taken to mean that Hauptmann's execution will not take place Friday.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
(Picture on Back Page.)

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—With his march to the electric chair scheduled to start within 72 hours, Bruno Richard Hauptmann tonight was denied a federal writ of habeas corpus which would have stayed his execution indefinitly.

It is generally conceded now that only some action by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman can save the Lindbergh baby slayer from electrocution at 8 p. m. next Friday.

After a lengthy conference tonight, the corps of attorneys representing Hauptmann decided to attempt two last legal moves tomorrow, but with little hope that they can delay the execution.

Attorney C. Lloyd Fisher said that a petition would first be directed to one of the three judges of the Federal Court of Appeals in this district. This petition will be virtually an appeal from the decision of the Federal court refusing a writ of habeas corpus.

Go Next to High Court.

A denial of this petition is expected and the lawyers will then try again to get the United States Supreme court to intervene. Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts, who has supervision over this district, will be asked to issue a writ staying the electrocution pending an examination of the petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

The petition for a writ of habeas corpus was asked by the alien's attorneys today of Judge J. Warren Davis of the federal District court. The lawyers argued that Hauptmann's trial was conducted on an unfair basis and that the jury which found him guilty of the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was exposed to "public mob spirit" which influenced its members against the defendant.

"New Evidence" a Failure.

Moreover, Judge Davis was told, Attorney General David T. Wilentz by his "intemperate utterances" prejudiced the jury against the defendant. There was some hinting at "new evidence" which had been discovered, but this allegation finally simmered down to the assertion that the first ransom note, found in the Lindbergh baby's nursery, was out of the hands of the state for some 24 hours.

Wilentz spiritedly defended his conduct of the case and Judge Davis ruled briefly that he did not believe the defendant's constitutional rights had been affected. The judge remarked that he himself had attended the trial on two occasions and that Hauptmann seemed to have been given an impartial hearing.

In addition, the judge observed, most of the arguments had already been considered and ruled out by the New Jersey State Court of Errors and Appeals and by the United States Supreme court, which refused to grant a writ of certiorari in the case.

Would Be "Sheer Egotism."

"It would be sheer, inexcusable judicial egotism on my part to overrule, in effect, the action of these other courts," the judge commented.

He refused also to grant a stay of the execution pending an appeal from his ruling "for substantially the same reasons."

The Hauptmann lawyers threw up their hands and confessed they saw no other legal method to postpone the execution.

The attorney general and the prisoner's lawyers faced each other for the last time in a setting in striking contrast to the small, century old courtroom at Flemington, N. J., where Hauptmann was tried just a year ago. The courtroom of Judge

But just as the original trial brought forth scenes of remarkable drama, so today's hearing had its gripping moments, especially when the Washington lawyer newly employed in the case, Neil Burkinshaw, quoted Wilentz's final shouted challenge to the jury:

"He [Hauptmann] will be thawed out! When he hears that switch! That's the time when he will talk!"

With the throwing of "that switch" now only three days away, many listeners shuddered and wondered if the extraordinary calm of the prisoner would indeed be shattered and elicit from him some statement other than his repeated assertion of complete innocence.

"There was no sequestration of the jury which tried Hauptmann," Burkinshaw argued. "They were quartered in a public hotel across the street from the courthouse. Each day they were marched through dense crowds and heard comments as to Hauptmann's guilt or innocence. Newspaper boys cried their wares and displayed large headlines about the case.

Hits Audience's Outbursts.

"Throughout the six weeks of the trial the jury dined in the hotel dining room, separated only from a mob of hangers-on, curiosity seekers, and others by a thin cloth screen. In the courtroom itself messenger boys dashed about. A motion picture camera took pictures of the proceedings and the testimony was recorded by a sound device concealed in an electric fan above the very heads of the jury.

"There were derisive outbursts in the audience which thronged the courtroom. Prominent persons came to hear the evidence from all parts of the United States, and their presence distracted the jury."

A radio announcer each night broadcast a review of the trial from a booth on the second floor of the hotel, the lawyer pointed out, and the jury on the third floor could hear some of the "loose comments" of this announcer.

"There was evident throughout an overwhelming mob spirit subversive of the right of the defendant to a fair and impartial trial," the attorney continued.

The white haired, kindly faced judge somewhat impatiently ordered the attorney to "get along to the heart of your case" when Burkinshaw attacked the tactics of the attorney general.

More Wilentz Quotations.

Other quotations from Wilentz's lips which Burkinshaw read from the record included the following:

"They [the defense] talk about mob clamor. Maybe they are lucky the mobs are not here!"

The prisoner's attorney asserted that after the jury had heard such assertions they could not possibly give Hauptmann a fair trial.

"But that's all been gone over by the Court of Appeals," remarked the judge.

There was testimony at the trial that the first ransom note had never been out of the hands of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the state police, whereas, the attorney asserted, it had "lately been discovered" that the note was in the hands of a third party. Wilentz, in replying, identified this person as Col. Lindbergh and said the note had only been in the colonel's hands for some 24 hours.

The state also suppressed certain letters exchanged between Hauptmann and Isador Fisch, the Bavarian who went abroad to die in 1933 and upon whom the defense has attempted to place the blame for Hauptmann's plight. Wilentz admitted there were certain letters, but that they had absolutely no materiality or they would have been put into the record.

Holds It's Unimportant.

"The mere possession of the letters by the state doesn't in itself show that a fair trial was not given," the judge interposed.

The dapper little attorney general indignantly denied the assertions of the Hauptmann lawyer that he had transgressed ethical rules of practice in his conduct of the trial.

"If there was one change in the evidence upon which this conviction was obtained, if there was the slightest bit of new evidence, these gentlemen would not have to be in here because the state would have acted already," he declared.

Attorney General Wilentz said today that he has been reliably informed that Gov. Hoffman has decided to grant a reprieve.

"There are certain cases which, from the prominence of the persons involved, naturally attract public interest," he continued. "This was one of them. Certainly the trial was held in a little old courtroom in a little town. Why? I didn't pick Hunterdon county—Hauptmann picked it as the scene of his crime."

"The jury was housed in the only suitable place and ate in the only available place. As to these complaints about public influence upon the jury, why was there no complaint during the trial? You didn't see the defense shunning publicity. There was no mob spirit evident. Why, when Mr. Reilly [Edward J. Reilly, Brooklyn lawyer who has withdrawn as chief counsel for Hauptmann] walked down the street in his glory there were no eyes for any one else.

Calls Hauptmann Offender.

"As to disorder in the courtroom, who were the greatest offenders? Hauptmann, who made up his mind to call every state witness a liar, and his wife, who followed his example. No prosecution witness made any such outburst.

"I am accused of intemperate expressions. The appeals court found nothing wrong about them. What the defense seems to think I should have done was to close my eyes while the defendant got an improper acquittal. It was all right for them to attack Dr. Condon and Mrs. Morrow and many other state witnesses, but it was wrong for me to call Hauptmann a murderer."

Make Hauptmann Suit for Trip to Death Chair

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The prison tailor stitched on the state's last gift to Bruno Richard Hauptmann today. It was a plain black suit, his shroud.

BAR GROUP ACTS TO END BALLYHOO AT DEATH TRIALS

Report Criticizes Conduct of Hauptmann Case.

Action based upon a study of the trial of Bruno Richard Hauptmann and intended as the basis of a code of ethics for lawyers, the press and the public at future criminal trials was taken yesterday by the executive committee of the American Bar association meeting at the Palmer house. The committee voted to create a special group to invite other organizations to join in adopting standards that will help avert "prejudicial publicity."

The study of the Hauptmann case was made by the criminal law division of the bar association and severely criticized the conduct of many connected with the trial. Because of its critical nature, the 100 page report was suppressed pending Hauptmann's electrocution for the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

Eight Corrective Proposals.

An outline of the committee's recommendations, however, was made public. The eight principal proposals follow:

Limitation of the crowds to the capacity of the courtroom with sherif's attachés barred from using legal processess to get politically connected curiosity seekers into the trial.

No telegraph wires into the courthouse building.

No radio broadcasts, no movies of the trial, nor vaudeville appearances of jurors or principals after the proceedings.

No poll of jurors or other attempts to anticipate verdicts.

Would Bar Radio Discussions.

No radio discussions by figures in any trial, such as witnesses or relatives of defendants.

No more "trials of the case" in the newspapers, with both sides giving interviews on the evidence they intend to offer.

In connection with the bar committee meeting, the commissioners on uniform state laws, whose members are appointed by the governors of the states and whose activities are in conjunction with and financed by the bar association, set up machinery which will facilitate compacts between states on uniform laws.

Harrison A. Bronson, former chief justice of the North Dakota Supreme court, said it is proposed to bring states together in legislative agreement programs which the United States Supreme court has ruled the federal government can't undertake.

APARTMENT FOR RENT AT $50; HAUPTMANN'S; PROSPECTS ARE FEW

Outside the attic of the Bronx house where Bruno Richard Hauptmann once lived a "for rent" sign flapped today in a biting wind.

No one has come to rent the upstairs quarters vacated in September, 1934, when police found Lindbergh ransom money in Hauptmann's broom closet.

"It's a good bargain," confided Louis Rauch, landlord-owner. "The New York police have painted and renovated the apartment. You know, it was torn to pieces when they were looking for evidence."

GOVERNOR BARES TWO MYSTERIOUS "JAFSIE" LETTERS

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Late this afternoon the governor's secretary made public two mysterious letters which, he said, had been written by Dr. John F. Condon.

Both letters were brief. Each was a reply to an unnamed correspondent.

The first one read:

"My dear Mr. ———:

"Your note of Oct. 6, 1933, did not reach me until Oct. 28, 1933. You may have the interview and I never betray a confidence. Write to me the name of the subject and let me know its nature, e. g., [1] money, [2] kidnaping, [3] John, [4] baby, [5] real estate, [6] reward, etc., [7] exchange.

"I will understand. Let me know.

"Truly yours,

"J. F. C."

The second letter:

"Feb. 27, 1934.

"My dear sir:

"Just returned from Canada. If you know anything about the 4, let me hear.

"Box, boodle, baby, bandits. If you want me to do something let me hear. What do you wish me to tell you? I shall get your letter. Address it to Dr. John F. Condon, 2794 Decatur avenue, the Bronx, New York."

14 PRECEDENTS FOR STAY AFTER 90 DAYS IN N. J.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Six governors, including Harold G. Hoffman, have established fourteen "precedents" for a last minute reprieve for Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

The state constitution limits reprieves to ninety days after "conviction," but it has never been settled definitly whether the time limit dates from the sentence in the lower court or from the day all appellate moves fail.

NEW SENSATIONS ARE PROMISED BY DRAKE PRISONERS

Trial Delayed During the Absence of Judge.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The Drake estate mail fraud trial was adjourned yesterday until next Monday to permit Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan to attend a crime conference this morning in the office of Attorney General Cummings in Washington. Judge Sullivan is a member of the advisory committee of the conference, which has for its purpose a uniform system of administration of probation, parole, and other disposition of those who have been convicted of crime.

When the trial is resumed next week the defense will proceed to seek the acquittal of the 20 defendants left in the case by putting each one of these on the stand and also by bringing in new figures. One is an Iowa man, born in England, who has invested $23,000 in the mythical Drake estate, and is said to have a remarkable story to tell. The defendants themselves hint of dark mysteries to be unfolded. The latest talk among them is that the great "payoff" of their "deal" is to come soon, that it was all settled in England on Oct. 23 last. Nothing in the way of fact seems to interfere with these fanatical beliefs.

Hartzell Willing to Help.

Oscar M. Hartzell, the chief defendant, is now said to be willing to take the witness stand in an effort to save his co-defendants and also to save himself from any addition to the ten year sentence which he is serving on a previous Drake fraud conviction. He will never divulge, however, he says, the name of the heir to the nonexistent estate, from whom he claims an assignment [which is itself illegal in England], the names of the attorneys representing him in England, or the name of the court which has the case there. Evidence in the present trial is that there is no heir, no attorneys, no court that has had, or could have, anything to do with such a proposition.

Why They Believed It.

Something of the attitude of mind of the defendants, who hope to escape prison sentences on the plea that they had no intent to defraud any one, was seen yesterday in the cross examination of Lloyd Truax, a Mitchell, S. D., bookkeeper, a defendant who admitted having collected large sums from his neighbors to send to the Drake estate fraud headquarters in Chicago.

Q.—You say that you believed in the Drake estate? A.—I believed in the transaction. We called it "our deal," not the Drake estate.

Q.—What facts did you have upon which to base a belief? A.—I had various facts—things Oscar Hartzell told, cables he sent from England, papers I saw.

Q.—After Oscar Hartzell's conviction what was the basis for your belief? A.—I couldn't say. Hundreds of investors believed it would pay.

Q.—What was the basis of that belief? A.—I can't say.

Q.—Tell one fact if you can? A.—We had the same facts as before. Cables that Hartzell sent articles in the Congressional Record and the Saturday Evening Post.

Q.—Did you see a word in the Congressional Record or the Saturday Evening Post about the Drake estate? A.—No.

Q.—Did you see anything there about Hartzell having an assignment from any heir? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever ask Oscar if he had such an assignment? A.—No.

Q.—Who did you think was going to pay the money that was to come back to you? A.—I didn't know.

Q.—Where was it coming from? A.—I don't know.

Q.—What schooling did you have? A.—High school and three years in a commercial college.

Q.—Did you ever invest in any other matter when you had no idea where the returns were coming from? A.—No.

Q.—Did you think the money was coming from England? A.—I didn't know. There were cables from England.

New Names Introduced.

B. A. Dubbert, Laurens, Ia., an exdefendant, testified that he had invested $1,000 in the "deal," that his brothers and friends had also put in money. Both Dubbert and Truax mentioned as men who had first led them into this thing names that have never been brought into this trial. Part of the defense is that there are hundreds and thousands whose acts have been the same as those on trial, and they will ask why the government did not indict these people.

ARKANSAS CRASH TOLL IS SECOND LARGEST OF RECORD

Map showing location of Goodwin, Ark., where transcontinental air liner crashed last night.

Last night's plane crash at Goodwin, Ark., caused the second largest death toll on record in a passenger plane accident. The heaviest toll was on May 18, 1935, when 49 persons were killed in the crash of the Maxim Gorky, the world's largest land plane, in Socol, Russia.

The crash yesterday was the second major one of 1936. On Jan. 1 twelve persons were killed when a British plane fell at Alexandria, Egypt.

Last year was marked by an unusually high number of plane fatalities. Among these were:

Feb. 15—Nine killed when British seaplane plunged into a hillside at Messina, Sicily.

May 6—United States Senator Bronson Cutting of New Mexico and four others killed in a crash at Atlanta, Mo.

May 28—Two army flyers and two civilians killed when army bombing plane crashed and burned near Sequoia National park, Cal.

Aug. 15—Will Rogers and Wiley Post killed in crash of Post's plane at Point Barrow, Alaska.

Oct. 7—Twelve persons killed when plane telescoped into a hill near Cheyenne, Wyo.

Dec. 10—Eleven killed in Belgian air liner crash at Tatsfield, Surrey, England.

Other major plane disasters in recent years included:

March 31, 1931—Knute Rockne and seven others killed near Bazaar, Kas.

March 25, 1933—Eleven occupants of house and three in plane killed when craft plunged into dwelling near Hayward, Cal.

Nov. 22, 1933—Fourteen died in fall of Russian superairliner at Kharkov.

Guinea Pigs' Ancestors Fly Here from Tropics

Four Peruvian cavies, tropical ancestors of the modern Guinea pig, were donated to the Lincoln park zoo yesterday by Charles Larrabee, district trafic manager for Pan-American Airways. The animals made the trip from Lima, Peru, to Chicago entirely by airplane, according to Mr. Larrabee. Floyd S. Young, director of the zoo, said the cavies are rare in this country. They are now exhibited in the bird house at the zoo.

AIR LINER FALLS IN SWAMP LAND; 17 ARE KILLED

Craft Disabled After Leaving Memphis.

while the plane was in the vicinity. The subsequent search was hampered by the darkness.

By midnight Sherif Campbell and his party, after laborious toiling through the swamp, came across the wreckage. A member of the party hurried back to Goodwin, a farming community, and sent out the news by telephone from the local general store—the only available telephone in the village.

Five ambulances, from points as far away as Brinkley, Tenn., and Memphis, sped here, but there was little that the ambulance doctors could do but wait on the edge of the swamp for the searching party to bring the bodies out. It was believed that this work could not be completed until after daybreak.

13 Pinned in Cabin.

C. C. Fogg of Forrest City, one of the searchers, said that the members of the party had had to wade through deep water for a considerable distance before coming upon the wreckage. He reported that four bodies had been thrown clear of the wreckage into shallow water, but that the others, evidently badly mangled, were pinned inside the cabin.

On Month's Vacation.

Wakefield, Mass., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Three victims of the crash of an American Airlines plane in Arkansas tonight were en route to California from their home here for a month's vacation.

Mrs. Samuel Horovitz, about 38; her son, Seba David, and her mother, Mrs. B. Horovitz, 62, had gone to join Samuel Horovitz, a Boston lawyer, who was on the Pacific coast on business. He had expected to return east with his family in February.

There's ONE thing that everybody gets at B/G whether he likes it or not, whether he asks for it or not, whether or not he'd rather not have it or not, whether he knows it or not . . . . he GETS his HUNGER taken FROM him.

HOTELS SHIPPED TO ISLAND BASES OF AIR CLIPPERS

45 Rooms Will Be Ready for Guests in May.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Two complete, prefabricated hotels of 45 rooms each were among the 6,000 ton cargo of the Pan-American chartered supply ship North Haven, it was disclosed today, when she sailed from San Francisco last night to visit the island bases of the air line across the Pacific ocean.

The two hotels will be erected at Midway Island and Wake Island, the last named islet a mere dot in the ocean, uninhabited until the line blazed its 8,900 mile route connecting, with great flying boats, the California coast at Alameda with Macao in China.

It had not been intended to set up passenger facilities so soon, officials of the air line said today, nor had so much interest been anticipated as has developed in the island bases themselves.

Hotels Ready May 15.

Demand for passenger service, following the inaugural mail flights, has been so great, they explained, that the whole program has been advanced by many months and stop-over facilities on Midway and Wake are expected to be available by May 15, when the North Haven is due to return to California.

The prefabricated hotels, of frame construction, are complete in all details, including furnishings. Designed for the special conditions on tropical islands, they consist of two wings built from a central, circular lobby. They have wide verandas and the dining rooms are served from centrally located kitchens. Each room has a shower bath with hot water heated by solar systems.

Ash Trays in Cargo.

Full furniture for the social rooms and bedrooms, down to coat hangers and ash trays, are in the vessel's cargo, as well as cashiers' cages, desks, draperies, inter-room telephones, and scores of other items.

For Midway and Wake the North Haven also carries materials for building aquaria, as it is believed that visitors staying at the lonely islets will be interested in the brilliantly colored fish which are caught in their lagoons.

Fish for the table, in great variety, is being caught at Midway and Wake by under sea fishing, for which one of the base staf dons a diver's helmet and shoots fish weighing up to 100 pounds or more with a steel arrow shot from a sort of arm catapult of rubber.

Six Months' Food Supply.

Hope Biggers, at Wake, has made a specialty of this odd type of fishing, in which he was trained at Nassau, Bahamas, before going to the Pacific.

The North Haven also carries 250,000 gallons of gasoline for the various bases; six months' supplies of groceries and canned foods, and a sort of sand sledge for transferring passengers from the mooring dock to the base at Midway, a distance of about one-quarter mile.

FLYER GIVES UP JUNGLE HUNT FOR MISSING REDFERN

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Art Williams, unsuccessful in an airplane search for Paul Redfern, American flyer, who has been missing since 1927 on a flight from the United States to Rio de Janeiro, abandoned the quest today and started back for Georgetown.

A wireless message from Wanatoba, a post of the boundary commission mapping the lines separating British Guiana, Dutch Guiana, and Brazil, said he was taking off on the return trip.

Williams, backed by Edward Sill, Georgetown merchant, started the unsuccessful hunt on Dec. 5. He was aided by Harry Wendt, a co-pilot, and a native Indian guide.

CELL FOR FAKE JOB AGENT.

Unable to pay a $200 fine for disorderly conduct, John McCauley, 39 years old, 500 Englewood avenue, was taken to the Bridewell yesterday to serve it out on orders of Municipal Judge Justin F. McCarthy. McCauley demanded a $500 bond from an applicant for a job as branch manager of a Washington, D. C., trucking company.

NEW KING OF AIR SEES TRANS-U. S. 10 HOUR SERVICE

Hughes Modest About Smashing Record.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Still somewhat deafened from the roar of his huge engine, Howard Hughes, oil man and motion picture producer, was more interested today in the implications for air transport of the coast to coast record of 9 hours 27 minutes 10 seconds, which he had set, than in the record itself.

"It means that transport ships will be making the flight in ten hours before very long," he said quietly.

When only 20 Hughes took over management of the extensive Texas Oil business of his father, Howard R. Hughes, a brother of Rupert Hughes. The elder Hughes died in 1924.

The former record was 10 hours, 2 minutes, 51 seconds, set by Col. Roscoe Turner on Sept. 2, 1934.

The dark, slim flyer, who already holds the world's land plane speed record of 352.338 miles an hour made over the three kilometer course at Santa Ana, Cal., last September, is interested primarily in the research side of speed flying.

Flight at 18,000 Feet.

He made the Pacific-Atlantic nonstop flight, which ended at Newark airport at 12:42:10 a. m. today, at an altitude of 18,000 feet to try out the higher levels for increased speed with the use of less horse power. He took a bit of oxygen now and again all the way across and used a tank and a half during the hurtling journey.

There was nothing unusual about his airplane, he explained. It is a Northrop Gamma mail plane with extra tankage. But there were many new things about his power plant.

Explains New Army Engine.

"I really had two gear shifts," Hughes said. "My engine was the new Wright G. Cyclone being built for the army. It is not released for public use as yet, but I had special permission to use it on this test. It gives 925 horse power for takeoff at sea level. It is equipped with a two speed blower or supercharger. This makes it possible to use very high power near the ground without burning up the motor and then shift to 10 to 1 supercharger speeds when the altitude warants, thus maintaining relatively high power far up.

"The second gear shift was the Hamilton constant speed propeller which gave me maximum bite on the air at takeoff and automatically adjusted the pitch of the blades through a steady climb till they were at high pitch at the ceiling of the flight, where they remained all the way across."

Blames "Social Life"

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The romance of the struggling young bank clerk and the pretty railroad heiress drifted from separation to a divorce court today.

The bank clerk, Frank Spencer Meador, of a Texas ranch family, sought court action to sever marriage ties with dark eyed Anne Gould Meador of New York's railroad Goulds.

He blamed the difference between San Antonio's "limited social life" and New York's gay whirl for the rift—as well as reports picturing him as "a Cinderella man."

"I don't blame her much for not coming back," Meador said. The young bride did not return after she went east for her father's funeral last March.

"After all, she was used to a great deal more than a bank clerk could afford in the way of social rounds," he added.

Meador, then an aspiring young actor in New York, and Miss Gould eloped Christmas night, 1934, and were married in a registry office at Harrison, N. Y.

Sue Weaver, Actress, Wins Divorce Decree

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Sue Weaver, film actress, was granted a divorce today from V. G. Weaver Jr., actor. Her charges of cruelty were supported by Georgie Spence, another actress. Miss Spence also testified that Weaver constantly tried to force his attentions upon her.

AIR LINES UNITE UNDER 'CZAR' WHO WILL RULE SKIES

Wartime Aviation Chief Heads Industry.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Formation of the new Air Transport Association of America, which includes in its membership every scheduled air line in the United States, was announced today by W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines in his capacity as chairman of the organization committee.

The president and "czar" of the new association is Col. Edgar S. Gorrell, chief of staf of the army air service during the world war. His election, a formality, occurred at noon, following a brief conference of air line representatives. Fowler W. Barker, war pilot and former secretary of the transport branch of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, was elected secretary and treasurer.

"Ideal Trade Association."

Coördination of schedules, credits, advertising, engineering data, and purchasing power among the various operators prompted the organization of the new association which is intended to be an "ideal trade association." Its functions will be similar to those of the North Atlantic steamship conference and its czar will have powers approximating those of Will Hays of the movies and Judge Landis of baseball.

In joining the new group the air line operators withdrew from the aeronautical chamber although friendly relations between the two associations will continue. Mr. Patterson explained that the chamber is the organization of the airplane and aero engine manufacturers, and deals with problems peculiar to that phase of the aviation industry. The operators feel that they need an independent organization to solve their individual difficulties.

A Pilot 22 Years.

Col. Gorrell, who is 46 years old, has been a pilot for twenty-two years. He began his military service, after graduating in 1916 from West Point as an honor student, as adjutant of the first aerial squadron under Gen. John J. Pershing. His job was to chase Villa in Mexico. During the world war he served first as chief engineer officer for the air service, then became chief of staf. He represented the United States in various capacities during the peace conference.

Following his return to the United States after the war, Col. Gorrell joined the staf of the Marmon Automobile company. After several years with Marmon he joined the staf of the Stutz Motor Car company and had been president for six years prior to his resignation last Aug. 8.

"I'm going to go round the lines, visit the operators and their staf members in their own fields, and see just what their problems are," said Col. Gorrell last evening. "I've been out of things so long that I feel it will take some time for me to get back to a sound basis.

No Technical Problems.

"I'll consider no technical problems, and the work of the association will be carried on by the organizing group for a time. I'm going to move my family to Chicago and make my home here, where our executive offices will be located."

Before holding their executive meeting the air line operators attended a luncheon of the Chicago Trafic club in the Palmer house. Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, world war ace and general manager of Eastern Air-lines, was the guest speaker.

"Within two years the lines will have standardized upon equipment, will be flying four engined airplanes which have a top speed of from 250 to 280 miles an hour, and will have many new safety devices which will make air transportation the most reliable and safe of all forms," he predicted.

Plans for Ocean Travel.

"This standardization will come as a result of the lines' efforts to get away from the expensive depreciation of equipment which has not been worn out but which simply has become obsolete.

"The North Atlantic ocean will be flown experimentally next summer, the following year, 1937, it will be flown with mail, and by 1938 passengers will be carried. This will be done in American equipment through a coöperative service by English and American companies.

"Last summer I was in Germany and saw the most air minded people of the world getting started in the solidest fashion possible. We have never made the concerted effort to advance flying that is being made in Germany today."

COL. TURNER PRAISES HUGHES FOR BEATING HIS FLIGHT RECORD

Col. Roscoe Turner, speed flyer, was in Chicago yesterday when he learned that Howard Hughes, oil man and motion picture producer, had broken his [Turner's] west-east transcontinental flight record by soaring nonstop from Los Angeles to New York on Monday in 9 hours, 27 minutes and 10 seconds.

"It's healthy for flying," was Col. Turner's first comment. He said he would probably try to beat Hughes' record soon.

"Hughes made a great flight," he said. "It just shows what can be done with the best equipment—the type of ships and engines available today. And you must remember that his Northrop was a mail plane, not a racing ship. Competition like this is a great spur to flying. My record of 10 hours, 2 minutes, 51 seconds, made in 1934, had stood too long."

Col. Turner's own racing plane, a Wedell-Turner special, powered with a 1,000 horse power Hornet motor, is in Cleveland, Turner said. He will go tonight to Detroit where he is to receive a trophy at a dinner given by the Society of Automotive Engineers. Then he will go to Cleveland, get his ship and head for California.

FRENCH GIANT OF AIR IN FLORIDA; ENDS SEA FLIGHT

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The giant French seaplane, Lieut. De Vaisseau Paris, arrived at Pensacola early today, completing a trans-Atlantic trip that began Dec. 9 at Bicarosse, France.

The plane made the last leg of the trip, a 2,000 mile flight from Martinique, in slightly less than twenty hours. After remaining here until Friday, it will fly to Miami.

After customs and immigration officials had paid a visit, the pilot, Flight Captain German Bonnot, and the executive officer, Lieut. A. B. Jozan, came ashore and were greeted by Capt. R. F. Zogbaum, commandant of the air station, Fort Barrancas officers and city officials.

CARS HUNT CURB AS PLANE LANDS IN BUSY STREET

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A student aviator flying over Hollywood made a forced landing today on a busy boulevard, dodged trafic, careened through a vacant lot and crashed into a parked motor car.

Horn was 2,500 feet above Hollywood when his plane's motor went dead. He made a skillful landing in the center of a street as automobiles scurried for the curb. The monoplane taxied across Melrose avenue, a main trafic artery, and into the lot.

ITALIANS BOMB CHURCH; HIT TEN AS THEY WORSHIP

Sweden Protests Attack on Red Cross Unit.

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia, Jan. 14. (AP) — An official Ethiopian report that ten worshipers were killed or wounded when Italian flyers wrecked a church with bombs was received here today.

Ten other persons, said a communique issued in Dessye, were blinded by gas bombs and "five people were scorched by bombs." The raid was conducted on the town of Sakota on Jan. 10, the statement added, and the Church of St. Mary was wrecked.

Ethiopian officials said several Italian prisoners who were transported to Dessye testified native Italian troops in the north "officially were ordered to burn churches."

Sweden Protests to Italy.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Swedish government, in a note handed to the Italian minister today, protested against the Italian bombing of a Swedish ambulance unit in Ethiopia, in which it said one Swedish subject was killed and another wounded.

The note said a statement by Italian military authorities that the bombing was in reprisal for an Ethiopian violation of war laws could not be regarded as an excuse for an attack on an ambulance. The Swedish unit, the government stated, had never abused the international treaty under which the Red Cross is guaranteed protection in war time.

Investigation of the bombing, the note asserted, revealed that it was in the nature of a direct assault upon an ambulance in which wounded Ethiopian soldiers were being treated.

Sweden took note of Italy's expression of regret, said the protest, and expected that the promised investigation of the attack would be pursued with the utmost vigor and that those responsible would be brought to account.

Italy May Boycott League.

ROME, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Italy met rumors of new peace moves with an official assertion tonight that it thinks "nothing positive can be done now at Geneva."

A spokesman said the government is debating whether to have representatives attend a meeting of the league council next Monday, when the question of an oil sanction against Italy is scheduled to be taken up.

A government communique announced intense scouting activity by Italians on the northern war front and the capture of 1,000 bags of Ethiopian provisions by Fascist patrols. Torrential rains were said to be falling throughout the northern area.

An Asmara dispatch said Flyer Vittorio Mussolini, son of the premier, narrowly escaped death in a recent aerial bombardment on the northern front. An Ethiopian shell exploded within the plane, demolishing the cabin door and severing the machine gun support, but young Mussolini was not injured.

See Italy Strangling.

GENEVA, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Some circles of the league of nations expressed belief tonight that the "inexorable effectiveness" of the present sanctions against Italy may influence leaders to postpone, if not abandon, the proposed oil embargo.

Information reaching Geneva, these circles said, is that economic sanctions, operating slowly but relentlessly, are gradually wearing down Italy's war making resistance.

One feature of the situation, it was said, is that the sanctions will continue unofficially in some form even after they are lifted once peace has been proclaimed. It was reported that several countries which heretofore purchased from Italy have placed orders elsewhere now and are likely to remain faithful customers of these new countries when the war is over.

A GASHED HAND CAUSES ARRESTS IN HOME ROBBERY

As Detectives Edward Charvet and Ernest Schloeman drove up to the corner of 63d street and Normal avenue last night a taxi pulled alongside. The driver complained that his two passengers were drunk and wouldn't tell him where they wanted to go.

The detectives saw that one of the passengers had a badly cut right hand and immediately took both to the Englewood station as suspects in the burglary two hours before of the home of Charles Miller, 427 West 57th place, dealer in carnival supplies. One of the thieves who broke into Miller's home cut his hand on a broken window before he and his partner stole a revolver and two sets of earrings.

At the station the men gave their names as Frank Sheehy, 49 years old, 1415 West Monroe street, and Charles Willmsen, 35 years old, 611 West 60th street. Miller appeared at the station and identified Sheehy as a former employé who had tried to get money from him yesterday. He signed burglary complaints against both men.

GERMAN THREAT TO ARM ON RHINE ALARMS FRANCE

Seeks British Aid to Curb Hitler.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 14.—French forebodings that Germany would sooner or later begin to rearm the demilitarized zone of the Rhineland have crystalized in the last few days into definite fears for the immediate future.

For the last ten days or so the French press has been noting uneasily the repeated charges in the German press that the Franco-Soviet mutual assistance pact and the consultations between the French and the British general stafs over the Mediterranean situation constitute a violation of the treaty of Locarno, thereby justifying Germany in rearming the Rhineland contrary to the military clauses of the treaty of Versailles and the Locarno pact.

Foreign Office Alarmed.

These were only vague apprehensions, however, and by themselves should not be taken too seriously, since the French press has been crying wolf for years. There was still no overt act and nothing concrete to go on.

But almost overnight the Quai d'Orsay has come to take a really grave view of the German problem. The reports which it gets from Berlin daily are becoming more ominous and the French diplomatic agents in Germany apparently fear that almost any day now Reichsfuehrer Hitler may announce a decision to rearm the Rhineland on the pretext that France has violated the spirit, if not the letter, of the Locarno pact.

France is neither diplomatically nor militarily prepared to meet the situation. Until now it was believed Hitler would not risk such a grave step until the rearmament and reorganization of the German army was completed—and that is still a long way off.

Seek British Aid.

Now, however, Berlin seems to believe that it is possible to get away with rearming the Rhineland without a serious risk of war, and that it is, therefore, unnecessary to wait until the army is ready.

Italy, of course, cannot be counted on by France to help frustrate such a move by force. Apparently the British cannot either, or at any rate they will be willing to let France believe that they will adopt the same attitude with regard to the Rhineland that France adopted with regard to the Mediterranean.

The French hope to bring the British around by pointing out to them that before long Germany will be asking the return of its colonies and Great Britain, having gotten away with most of the colonial loot in the world war, will be the chief victim.

Become Loyal to League Again.

Consequently, the French say to the British: "Help us put up a strong front against the rearming of the Rhineland, and we will back you up on the colonial question."

At the same time, the dramatic evolution of the diplomatic situation along the Rhine has stirred up French loyalty toward the league of nations, which had been slumbering all these months. The French see that whatever happens, Italy cannot be of much military value on the continent, and they are beginning to return to the belief that the league of nations, after all, can be of some use in clamping down on Germany.

"Hitherto the British policy at Geneva," said the semi-official newspaper Temps tonight, "has had a negative character insofar as it tended to separate Italy from the European community. British policy now seems to be taking on a more positive character. There is open talk in London of the necessity of inviting all the league of nations powers, big, little and medium sized, to be ready to fulfill the obligations of the covenant to the last letter. Certain it is not in France that the obstacles to this new orientation of British foreign policy will arise."

STAVISKY JURORS ASK THE JUDGE FOR NIGHTSHIRTS

PARIS, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Jurors in France's Stavisky scandal trial asked the court today for permission to bring their nightshirts before they are locked up to deliberate on the 1,600 questions asked since the trial began Nov. 4.

Judge Charles Barnaud replied: "Important cases are not decided here as in America and jurors are expected to deliberate, not sleep."

He later ordered beds placed in the jury room before the trial ends, probably Friday, after the jurors insisted: "40,000,000 Frenchmen are watching us and demand justice."

SEES RUSSO-JAP WAR AT END OF FIVE YEAR PLAN

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

TIENTSIN, Jan. 14.—The second Russo-Japanese war will begin with a Russian offensive at the completion of the second soviet five year plan, Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese garrison in North China, predicted today.

[The second soviet five year plan began Jan. 1, 1933. Production is declared to have exceeded the schedule, so Moscow expects the plan will be completed this year.]

Gen. Tada's prediction of war was the first by a high Japanese army leader since Maj. Gen. Shigeru Honjo made a similar statement in 1931. Since then discussions of the possibilities of war with the soviet union have been carefully avoided.

Gen. Tada said it was "entirely too early" to discuss the terms of any future move regarding coöperation involving Japan, Manchukuo, and China against Chinese communists.

Claim Chang Defeated.

"The new North China Hopei-Chaher political council," he said, "pledged to improve the conditions of the people of North China, which itself will constitute a serious check to the spread of Red sympathies. However, the new council's governmental machinery is not complete and we must wait to see whether the council will prove hopeful or hopeless."

According to reports received by Gen. Tada the communist forces in northern Shensi and Suiyuan provinces severely defeated another division of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's troops. This was the third government division to be defeated by communists in the last few months.

Gen. Tada believes the communists are becoming stronger, but admitted that he had no proof the were receiving help from the soviet union. He also declared that although it was charged communists engaged in recent anti-Japanese student demonstrations, there was no evidence of such activity.

Defends Japan's Rights.

When asked whether Japan and Manchukuo were likely to act to protect North China from communism the general replied:

"It depends on the emergency. Any communist action that would be likely to affect safety and peace in Manchukuo would be dealt with for our own protection. Also, as commander of the Japanese forces in North China, I can take whatever action is deemed necessary to protect the lives and property of Japanese.

He stressed that various agreements between Japanese and North China officials gave Japan the right to act for her own protection, but added that beneficial economic changes were the best weapon against communism.

Will Protect Manchukuo.

Gen. Tada said he doubted Japanese recognition of the autonomous area [East Hopei] ruled by Yin-Jukeng or the conclusion of any pacts designed to suppress communism in Yin's district. If Yin asks for Japanese assistance against communist invaders, he said Japan could not very well refuse, because his area is contiguous to Manchukuo, and agreements allow Japanese troops freedom of action if Manchukuo's border is threatened.

Regarding an extension of the Hopei-Charar council to include Shansi, Suiyuan, and Shantung provinces, Gen. Tada said that after the new council carried out reforms the three would see the benefits and be glad to join.

Reverting again to the communist problem in North China he declared Japan "is the watch dog against Red influences" and declared China was "obstructing and hindering the watch dog."

Policeman, Child Killed in Porto Rican Mob Disorders

PONCE, Porto Rico, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A policeman and a child were killed today and another policeman wounded seriously in mob disorders at Morovis. A number of persons were wounded and some killed in gun fights in other parts of the island.

[Recent Porto Rican dispatches have told of riots and slayings attendant upon registration for the November general election.]

BRITAIN ANGRY AS JAPAN QUITS NAVAL PARLEY

policy is provocative and entirely new in modern diplomatic procedure.

The British also broadly hint, probably for Japanese consumption, that between the United States and Great Britain there is already a complete understanding about naval strengths, the effect of which is to rule out competitive building between them. Besides that, according to the British, the American naval authorities well understand and agree that Britain must rehabilitate its navy by substantially increasing cruiser tonnage.

The effect seems to be equivalent to an announcement that the United States and Great Britain have practically agreed to pool their navies and a further warning from the British to the Japanese that "their defiant gesture" will render inevitable the completion of the American building program, which by 1942 will give the United States the world's greatest navy.

Recall Pittman's Demand.

The irate British attitude recalled Senator Key Pittman's [Dem., Nev.] recent outspokenness in calling for a joint demonstration in the Pacific against the Japanese.

Japan's decision to withdraw from the conference will, according to the British, lead immediately to developments in the Pacific and the situation may become dangerous there. Whether it is wishful thinking or not, the British declare that steps to fortify bases in the Pacific will immediately be taken by the United States. They add that they will follow suit by fortifying Hongkong, whose defenses have not been touched for sixteen years. Hongkong is nearer and points more directly at Japan than Singapore.

On most of these points the American delegates preserved a discreet silence, but there seemed at the same time complete harmony of views between the Americans and the British.

The Japanese remained bland. A Japanese spokesman said "Japan blames the adamant attitude of the other powers" for the collapse of the conference.

Flu Hits Entire Population of an Indian Reservation

SWAN LAKE, Ont., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Sixty-one Indians, the entire population of a reserve near here, were recovering today from an epidemic of influenza, during which most of them were barely able to get their own meals and could not gather firewood or carry water.

RUSSIA DOUBLES WAR BUDGET TO BALK NEIGHBORS

Claims Japs and Nazis Are Preparing Attack.

MOSCOW, Jan. 14.—(AP)—After repeated charges that aggressive neighbors are threatening the soviet union with war both to the east and west, the government announced tonight its military budget for 1936 will be more than double that of last year.

Russia this year will spend on armed forces 14,800 million rubles, which is $2,960,000,000 under the new official exchange rate of 5 rubles to the dollar, Gregory Grinko, commissar of finance, announced to the all-union central executive committee. The committee unanimously approved the proposal.

Refers to Molotoff Charges.

Last year's war budget was 6,500 million rubles, but the expenditures actually reached more than 8,500 million rubles.

The vice commissar of heavy industry, Mikhail Kaganovich, who also is head of the national air industry, said today that the principal efforts of aviation would be devoted to the development of powerful bombers capable of carrying out raids on enemy territory and returning to the homeland.

These bombers, it was indicated, will have to give a considerably better performance than most of those in the present air force, which are equipped with four motored machines, having a top speed of but 140 miles an hour and a cruising radius of 1,250 miles.

Will Increase Man Power.

Grinko said the additional expenditures this year for the army would be used to increase the number of men, improving and adding to technical equipment, and improving living quarters. He did not indicate to what man strength the army would be raised.

The military budget is approximately 19 per cent of the total budget announced for 1936, which is 78,500 million rubles. Last year's total was 65,500 million rubles, of which only 10 per cent was devoted to military uses.

Grinko also announced that 28,700 million rubles will be used this year for construction work, a large part of which will go to the reconstruction of Moscow and Leningrad.

In submitting the budget figures Grinko referred to charges made last week by Premier Molotoff that both Japan and Germany are preparing to attack the soviet union.

The situation in the far east particularly has come into prominence because of repeated border clashes and alleged Japanese threats to occupy Outer Mongolia, a republic closely allied with the soviet union.

STUDENT SLAIN, MANY HURT; CANTON, CHINA, UNDER MARTIAL LAW

HONG KONG, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Martial law was declared in Canton today and all schools were closed after an outburst of student disorders in which one youth was believed slain and five others seriously wounded. The city was quiet.

Yesterday's disturbances were understood to have drawn a protest from the Japanese consul. It was reliably reported the trouble started when armed plain-clothes police attempted to disperse students assembled near Kuomin university. In the ensuing fracas, the detectives were reported to have fired pistols, and the students, including girls, retaliated with improvised weapons. One missing student was believed dead and in addition to the five seriously wounded, many were slightly hurt.

The student agitation got out of hand as the result of northern anti-Japanese demonstrations and official repressions. Reports said the students resented an effort to suppress a week of spasmodic disturbances by compulsory enlistment of the agitators in a new "national salvation volunteer army."

Italy Buys 350,000 Pairs of German Army Boots

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Italy has placed an order for 350,000 pairs of soldiers' boots with German firms. The boots are to be delivered within the next six months. Italy will pay 25 per cent in cash at Zurich and promises to pay the balance in rice and oranges.

ALL PASSENGERS ON SHIP WRECKED OFF PERU SAVED

LIMA, Peru, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The captain and other officers of the Chilean liner Cautin held their position tonight aboard the 4,316 ton steamer, battered by heavy seas off the coast of Peru, after all the passengers and most of the crew had been removed safely.

Grounded in a dense fog on the southern tip of Lobos de Tierra Island, about 60 miles off the port of Pimentel, the steamer was reported by her master to be almost a total wreck. The cargo, which included cattle, fruit, and sugar, was beyond salvage, he messaged.

All the passengers and 88 members of the crew were transferred to the American steamer Chimu—formerly the Grace liner Santa Catalina—which landed them tonight at Pimentel, in northern Peru. Passengers said they were awakened by a strong jolt at 4:30 a. m. and experienced desperate moments before they were rescued.

[A dispatch from Santiago, Chile, said the Cautin, owned by the Compania Sud Americana de Vapores of Valparaiso, Chile, carried 75 first class passengers, 120 third class passengers, and a crew of about 100.]

An SOS call from the Cautin this morning brought the Chimu, the Peruvian steamer Rimac, and the Italian liner Orazio to her side.

The Cautin was en route to Valparaiso from Guayaquil, Ecuador.

REPORTED SLUR BY ICKES STIRS UP PORTO RICANS

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Two leaders of the Porto Rican senate announced today they had cabled Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes a request either to confirm or deny newspaper stories quoting him as expressing belief the Porto Rican legislature is controled by sugar interests.

The message was sent by Martines Nadal, president of the senate, and Vice President Bolivar Pagan.

Ickes, on a tour of the islands, was quoted recently as saying huge sugar plantations were contrary to law and should be broken up into small farms.

KNOCK OUT COLDS IN FIRST ROUND

Give Colds No Chance to Wear You Down and Put You on Your Back!

Don't dally with a cold! It may end seriously—in the form of flu or pneumonia.

A cold also calls for internal treatment, for a cold is an internal infection.

Make Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine your treatment and you have hit a cold a body blow.

Bromo Quinine is effective because it is a cold tablet made expressly for the treatment of colds and nothing else. It routs colds quickly because it is internal treatment, fourfold in effect.

First, it opens the bowels, an advisable step in treating a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital measure.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Be wise and play safe! At the first sign of a cold go right to your druggist for a package of Bromo Quinine. Begin taking the tablets at once, two every four hours.

Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is safe to take. When you ask for it, insist upon getting what you ask for. The few pennies' cost may save you a lot of worry and money.

TWO CALIFORNIA WIVES READY TO SWAP HUSBANDS

Visit Reno Together as First Step.

Reno, Nev., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The way was clear tonight for one of the most unusual marital deals in Reno's history—an exchange of husbands by two pretty young California women.

Nothing remained in completing the trade save trips to the altar following the grantings of divorce decrees to Mrs. Gladys J. Burnett and Mrs. Desiree D. Werder.

Mrs. Werder, second of the "husband swappers" to seek a divorce here within a week, divorced William M. Werder, former Stanford university track star, at a brief trial today.

Mrs. Burnett divorced Roy E. Burnett Jr. last Friday.

Admit Marriage Plans.

Through Harry Swanson, their attorney, the women admitted they plan to marry each other's husbands "as soon as the excitement of the divorces blows over."

Mrs. Werder will marry Burnett "within a month or two," Swanson said. Mrs. Burnett's marriage to Werder, he added, "may occur sooner—but no definite time has been fixed as yet, so far as I know."

The two young women—neighbors and friends in Redwood City, Cal., for years—were accompanied by their husbands to Reno more than six weeks ago. The wives set up housekeeping together in an apartment house here. The husbands went back to their homes in California.

Both Charge Cruelty.

Both charged cruelty—Mrs. Burnett at a private trial, Mrs. Werder at an open hearing in which she accused Werder of being "cold and indifferent" and on one occasion slapping her.

Burnett was understood to have accompanied his future wife back to California by automobile tonight. Werder, Swanson said, has not been in Reno since he brought Mrs. Werder here to establish residence.

The Werders were married Nov. 11, 1932, at Stanford university and the Burnetts Sept. 3, 1934, at Tracy, Cal.

Custody of the Werders' five month old daughter, Betty Lew, has been fixed in an agreement made outside of court. Terms were not revealed.

GLENCOE YOUTH GIVES UP NAVAL CAREER TO WED

Donald Piper Nelson, 21 years old, who resigned as a midshipman in the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, Md., to wed Miss Marjorie Ann Trew of Washington, D. C., will arrive with his bride today at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Nelson, 445 Green Bay road, Glencoe. The couple were married Saturday in Elkton, Md., and left Washington last night for Glencoe.

As the naval academy rules forbid undergraduates to marry, Nelson resigned before the wedding. He was in his second year at the academy. The bride was a student at Holton Arms school in Washington.

The young man's father said last night that he was not informed of his son's marriage and abandonment of a naval career until the day after the wedding. His son and Miss Trew had been engaged for a year, Mr. Nelson said.

John Stackpoole Resigns Post in Fire Department

John Stackpoole, chief engineer of the fire department's equipment shops since 1921 yesterday offered his resignation, effective Feb. 1, when he will be 63 years old. Stackpoole, who lives at 5918 North Rockwell street, entered the department as an assistant engineer in 1900.

HAROLD LLOYD'S FATHER WINS IN APPEAL ON TAX

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The father of Harold Lloyd escaped payment of a $101,964 income tax assessment today because the board of tax appeals decided the comedian was more of a movie magnate than a life insurer.

J. Darsie Lloyd, the father, transferred 2,499 shares of the Harold Lloyd corporation stock to his son in 1930 and accepted a life annuity of $100,000, payable yearly.

The internal revenue bureau contended the annuity had a value of $850,434.

The board held unanimously, however, that while an annuity with an insurance company might be taxable at that figure, the comedian "was not engaged in the business of granting annuities."

ASK INDICTMENT OF COURTROOM ASSASSIN TODAY

Swift Trial, Then a Cell Predicted for Keogh.

The grand jury will be asked today to indict John W. Keogh, 72 years old, for the murder of Attorney Christopher G. Kinney, whom Keogh shot to death on Monday in the courtroom of Circuit Judge John Prystalski in the county building. Keogh, a well to do real estate owner who has been pronounced a victim of the type of insanity known as paranoia, also fired three shots at Judge Prystalski.

In announcing the impending grand jury action after a coroner's jury had held Keogh for murder, Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty predicted that Keogh would be placed in the psychiatric division of the Illinois penitentiary at Menard within a few days.

Quick Trial Is Predicted.

Keogh's trial, Mr. Dougherty said, will probably require no more than half an hour, as the prisoner's sanity will be the only direct issue.

The prosecutor made this statement on the assumption that Dr. Harry Hoffman, head of the Criminal court behavior clinic, will confirm the findings of Dr. Francis J. Gerty, medical director of the County Psychopathic hospital, as to Keogh's sanity.

Wilbert Crowley, first assistant state's attorney, gave orders yesterday that Keogh be examined by Dr. Hoffman, who was absent from the Criminal Courts building yesterday because of a slight illness but who is expected to make the examination today.

Slaying Described at Inquest.

The slaying of Attorney Kinney and the unsuccessful attempt by Keogh to assassinate Judge Prystalski were described yesterday morning at the coroner's inquest held in the undertaking rooms at 200 East Erie street. The coroner's jury recommended the indictment of Keogh, commended the courage of Attorney Jacob L. Tenny, who led spectators in the courtroom in disarming Keogh, and urged that all persons entering courtrooms in Cook county be searched for concealed weapons.

Because of his suspected mental condition, Keogh's testimony was confined to stating his name and address, which he gave as that of the detective bureau, 1121 South State street. His home is in the Wellington Arms hotel at 2970 Sheridan road.

To reporters Keogh declared that he shot Kinney because he was afraid the lawyer, standing next to him, would spoil his aim at Judge Prystalski.

Obsession on Single Subject.

Keogh also attempted to expound to newspaper men his pet subject of legislative reapportionment in Illinois. Dr. Gerty found in his examination that Keogh's paranoia took the form of an obsession on this subject.

After the inquest Keogh was taken to the county jail. Dr. Meyer H. Levy, jail physician, who gave him the routine physical examination, pronounced him "the coolest man in the jail."

Keogh apparently had only two worries—over getting newspapers, which he was told he might buy, and over the precautions against his suicide, which he asserted he has no intention of attempting.

Opposes Weapon Search Plan.

Judge Michael L. McKinley, chief justice of the Superior court, called "ridiculous" the recommendation of the coroner's jury that persons entering courtrooms be searched for weapons. He also opposed suggestions of other judges that the number of bailiffs in civil courts be doubled.

"A thing like the murder of Attorney Kinney happens perhaps once in 25 years," said Judge McKinley.

ANTI-VIVISECTION SOCIETY'S COURT TACTICS ASSAILED

Failure of the Illinois Anti-Vivisection society to put sufficient postage on the cards by which it sought to pack the courtroom of Circuit Judge John Prystalski with an audience of its members drew the attention and criticism of the judge to the attempt yesterday.

The judge, who is hearing an attack by the society's attorneys on the city ordinance empowering the board of health to turn stray dogs from the city pound over to hospitals and medical schools for scientific experimentation, showed the attorneys a bundle of the postcards, urging "as many members as possible to be present with the hope of persuading the judge to grant an open hearing."

"I don't think your wording is wise," said Judge Prystalski. "I am not easily influenced by numbers and I always grant an open hearing. Why didn't you have them come in yesterday and see some real excitement?"

He referred to the slaying of Attorney Christopher G. Kinney and the attempt to kill the judge himself by John W. Keogh in the courtroom Monday. Hearing on the society's suit was continued until today.

WOMAN VICTIM TELLS PLOTS OF DON CHAMPAGNE

Mrs. Grace M. Forschner, wealthy Palos township widow, took the witness stand in Judge Joseph Burke's court yesterday and told a jury that she was swindled out of $220,000 by John Donald Walker, known as Don Champagne, within a year after he was paroled from Joliet penitentiary. Walker is being tried on an indictment charging conspiracy to swindle. Mrs. Forschner said he gained her confidence by borrowing and repaying loans totaling $7,000 following his release in 1933 from the penitentiary, where he served a term for forgery.

Later, she said, Walker induced her to invest $50,000 with a New York syndicate which he told her planned to buy Chicago property for the erection of a large garage. Mrs. Forschner said she subsequently was induced to make additional investments, supposedly to save what she already had put in the syndicate.

GIBLIN, CAR THIEF, GOES TO JOLIET PRISON TODAY

Michael Giblin, 39 years old, notorious Chicago automobile thief who was brought here yesterday from Leavenworth, Kas., will be taken to Joliet penitentiary today to begin serving a sentence of 1 to 20 years for stealing an automobile in Cook county. The sentence was imposed upon him in May, 1935, while he was serving a federal sentence of two years in Leavenworth penitentiary for interstate transportation of stolen cars. Giblin was turned over to Cook county deputies after personally arguing and losing his plea for a writ of habeas corpus which he filed in Leavenworth County court upon his release from the federal prison.

TWO BIGAMISTS SENT TO PRISON FOR 1 TO 5 YEARS

Man of 1,500 'Sweeties' Also Gets a Fine.

CRIMINAL COURT.

William Clay Holmes, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Joseph B. David.

Gardner Allison Stewart, bigamy, sentenced to 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary and fined $100 by Judge Cornelius Harrington.

William Bumbarger, bigamy, sentenced to 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary by Judge Denis J. Normoyle.

Two bigamists were sentenced to prison terms of one to five years in the Criminal court yesterday.

They are Gardner Allison Stewart, 30 years old, 6213 University avenue, the man of "two wives and 1,500 sweethearts," who was sentenced by Judge Cornelius J. Harrington, and William Bumbarger, 37 years old, who received his punishment at the hands of Chief Justice Denis J. Normoyle.

The end of Stewart's case came with dramatic suddenness after he had taken the witness stand to testify in his own defense on a plea of not guilty. When Assistant State's Atttorney Francis McCurrie began to cross-examine him Stewart changed his plea to guilty. Judge Harrington then imposed sentence, adding a fine of $100 to compensate the state for the expense of the trial, which began on Monday.

The Man of Many Loves.

Stewart, a truck driver, married his first wife, Marie Rose, now 26 years old, of 4527 Justine street, in 1927. On Feb. 11, 1935, without getting a divorce, he married Claire Hart, 18 years old, of 2656 East 73d street.

The first Mrs. Stewart learned of his bigamous marriage and caused his arrest on Dec. 15. It was then that Stewart boasted that he not only had two wives but "1,500 sweethearts."

The first wife, who at first threatened to prosecute Stewart to the limit, was in court yesterday, but her successor, who retains her feeling of bitterness toward him, was not.

"May I speak to my husband?" the first Mrs. Stewart, blonde and diminutive, asked Prosecutor McCurrie at the conclusion of the case.

"Yes, in jail," the prosecutor replied, and Stewart was led away.

Bumbarger, the other bigamist who was sentenced to prison, had pleaded guilty from the first. He is an automobile racing mechanic.

Pleads Guilty from Start.

Last year, while still the husband of the former Ann A. Connell, 615 Custer street, Bumbarger married Mrs. Mary Quint, 3911 North Christiana avenue, a widow with five children. He used $165 she gave him to help finance the building of a racing car, he testified.

SCHOOL BOARD SELLS $10,000,000 OF ITS 1936 TAX WARRANTS

The board of education yesterday sold $10,000,000 of its 1936 educational fund tax anticipation warrants to five downtown banks, James B. McCahey, board president, announced. The interest rate on the warrants, 2.5 per cent, is the lowest the board has ever paid, Mr. McCahey said. The rate on the 1935 warrants was 4 per cent.

The sale represents approximately 20 per cent of the board's $49,000,000 educational fund tax levy. The $10,000,000 will more than take care of the board's pay rolls for January and February, Mr. McCahey said.

The sale was negotiated by City Controler Robert B. Upham. The purchasers are the First National bank, Continental Illinois National bank, Northern Trust company, Harris Trust and Savings bank, and City National Bank and Trust company.

A HAPPIER ENDING

Compassion for Lane Kahn Jr., 1 year old, will probably bring about the dismissal of a bigamy charge against his father it appeared yesterday.

The child's father, who lives at 6407 Glenwood avenue, went on trial before Judge B. David in Criminal court yesterday on the charge that he had married Miss Mary Blumenfeld, 24 years old, on March 18, 1934, without divorcing the former Jean Platt, 28 years old, 1250 South Lawndale avenue, whom he married on April 21, 1927.

The younger woman pleaded that the way be cleared for Kahn's release for the sake of her son and an expected child. Assistant State's Attorney Donald Korshack and Attorney Harold Levy, who represents Kahn, nodded their agreement. Kahn and his first wife conferred briefly and she agreed to divorce him at once.

Judge David continued the case for a week. He announced that he would remarry Kahn and the mother of his son at the next court hearing if the divorce is granted in the meantime.

SMASH WINDOW; STEAL HEATERS.

3 KIDNAPERS OF CUBAN SHOT TO DEATH BY TROOPS

Battle Rages After Victim Is Freed.

GUANAJAY, Cuba, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Cuban army agents, whose fingers are trigger-loose in dealing with kidnapers, shot three suspected snatchers today and all but cleaned up the latest in a wave of abductions in the island republic.

The three were killed in a running gun battle with soldiers shortly after they had abandoned Paulino Gorostiza, 28 years old, son of an affluent manufacturer. Gorostiza was seized in a Havana suburb early yesterday and held for $50,000 ransom, half of which was reported to have been paid.

Eight suspects were arrested and the army thus bagged all but one of its quarry. One man fled during the shooting and was sought tonight in cane fields.

4 Killed Month Ago.

Less than a month ago army agents shot and killed four men in a search for the snatchers of Nicolas Castano, elderly millionaire, who was rescued from a farm after being held a week. Several others have been slain in abduction cases of recent months.

Authorities blame the growth of the racket upon radicals seeking money to finance revolts.

The gang which kidnaped Gorostiza was hemmed in on a farm by a force of 700 soldiers, sailors, and police, led by Col. Fulgencio Batista, army commander. The men abandoned Gorostiza in the foothills and he was taken by authorities to Havana.

Victim Uninjured.

Soldiers then encountered the suspected kidnapers and killed three of them in a gun battle. None was immediately identified.

The young victim appeared none the worse for his experience.

"I was on my way to see my sweetheart," he related, "when I was stopped by two men who drew pistols and told me I was under arrest for anti-government activities.

"They took me to a taxicab and drove to a house on Almendares street, where I was put in another cab with three different men who bound me."

HELD TO JURY IN ROBBERY.

Charged with automobile theft and robbery, Bruno Orbrachta, 19 years old, 917 North Damen avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bonds of $13,500 by Municipal Judge Joseph A. Graber.

DRIVE FOR LAWS TO CURB COURTS GETS NEW SPUR

Norris Suggests Brakes to Aid Farm Plan.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—With the projected new farm subsidy legislation meeting with new difficulties, agitation in congress for laws to curb the powers of the courts to invalidate statutes is increasing.

Declaring that any kind of agricultural production control enacted by congress would be unconstitutional under the Supreme court decision of last week, Senator George W. Norris [Rad., Neb.] suggested to the senate committee on agriculture that the jurisdiction of the courts might be limited in such manner as to safeguard federal regulation of farm activities.

The lower courts, he said, could be deprived by law of jurisdiction of cases involving such legislation and the Supreme court permitted to invalidate an act of congress by unanimous vote only.

Committee Shies Away.

Although numerous bills to curb the courts and to amend the constitution to extend federal power over agriculture and industry have been introduced in both houses, the judiciary committee of the house shied away from the proposals in its meeting today. Consideration of the court-curbing bills was deferred.

"We are studying the matter from all angles and are anxious to avoid too much haste," Representative Hatton W. Summers [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the committee, explained.

Despite the doubts of constitutionality raised by Senator Norris and other New Dealers, the President is going ahead with his plans for a substitute for the AAA. He discussed the situation with Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the senate, at luncheon today.

"We discussed the AAA," said Senator Robinson afterward. "It is felt that within a few days—probably by the end of this week—a draft will be completed and ready for submission to congress. The work on the bill is in progress and I will not attempt to announce its provisions."

Plans Special Message.

Later at his press conference Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that he contemplates sending a special message to congress when the farm bill is introduced. He would not comment on the administration program, which was outlined following the meeting of farm organization representatives at the department of agriculture last Saturday. Asked for his opinion of Senator Norris' assertion that any federal farm regulation would be unconstitutional, the President said he hoped Senator Norris is overly pessimistic.

The house committee on agriculture reported favorably the bill authorizing production loans to farmers in 1936, aggregating 40 million dollars. At one time the President frowned on the continuation of such loans.

Senator Norris, who is both a noted farm reliever and legal authority, having been chairman of the senate judiciary committee, threw his verbal bombshell into the ranks of the New Dealers at a session of the senate committee on agriculture which had been called to hear the views of farm leaders. Earl Smith of the Illinois Agricultural association was testifying at the time.

Agrees on Substitute.

Senator Norris said that he is in complete agreement with the recommendations of the farm leaders that a substitute for AAA be constructed on a foundation of domestic allotments and federal subvention of soil conservation.

"But," Senator Norris said, "I don't believe it possible to pass any law that in any way regulates agricultural production that would be held constitutional.

"I hate to say it. I think the Supreme court decision was wrong, absolutely wrong. I thought the act was constitutional, and I think so yet."

Whereat the assembled farm leaders, numbering fifty or more, applauded vigorously.

"Do you feel that crop production must be regulated?" Senator Norris asked Mr. Smith. The Illinois leader nodded an emphatic affirmative.

"But," said Senator Norris, "the court says in so many words, 'regulation of agriculture is unconstitutional.' You don't have to be a lawyer to see that point.

Suggests Court Curb.

"The Supreme court has appellate jurisdiction, with such exceptions as congress may provide.

"We could pass a law by which we could take away jurisdiction over this subject from the lower courts and providing, say, that a Supreme court decision on this must be unanimous.

"Then the decision of a week ago yesterday would have been just the opposite."

Senator Norris once introduced a bill requiring a unanimous Supreme court opinion for the invalidation of laws, but it evoked so much opposition that he abandoned it.

Both Oscar Foss, member of the South Dakota legislature, and E. W. Fine of North Dakota, representing the farmers' union, attacked the Supreme court opinion. Foss agreed with Senator Norris in suggesting that congress take away lower courts' power to pass on constitutionality of acts of congress.

Norbeck Blames Criticism.

Former Senator Brookhart of Iowa read a portion of the Republican platform of 1932 advocating control of production. He said the court "knocked the dickens out of the Republican platform." Brookhart then revealed that he had written part of the farm platform of the Democrats providing for control of surplus and that Senator Cordell Hull, a member of the convention resolutions committee, had it inserted in the party's platform.

Senator Norris asked if the court did not knock out the Democratic platform.

"Breeds Communism," Says Foss.

"The court's AAA decision serves only the favored class, and this breeds communism," Foss said. He warned that "something drastic must be done" to aid the farmers.

E. E. Kennedy of Kankakee, Ill., secretary of the National Farmers' union, said his organization favored protection of the American market for the American farmer. He argued that congress has the power to regulate agriculture.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Farm Bureau federation, urged that congress pass a measure impounding processing taxes to protect the government.

"Gentlemen, I want you to know the farmers of the country are stirred up. They are looking to you gentlemen to help them," he said.

"I think we can beat the decision of the Supreme court."

J. E. McDonald, state commissioner of agriculture for Texas, said he favored unrestricted production with tarif protection. McDonald was an outspoken critic of AAA production control.

Tells of Old Ruling.

M. W. Thatcher, representing the Farmers' National Grain corporation, told the committee that states had attempted to regulate grain 19 years ago.

"The Supreme court said then that it was not a state matter. Now we have the AAA operated by the federal government thrown out by the same court."

Controler Gen. McCarl ruled today that none of the 6,500 AAA employés assigned to activities invalidated by the Supreme court may continue to receive pay. This automatically stops the pay of about 2,500. Further rulings will clarify the status of the remainder.

NEW DEAL ATTORNEYS MAP FIGHT AGAINST AAA TAX RECOVERY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Behind closed doors high government attorneys today plotted moves to combat an expected flood of suits to recover a billion dollars paid by processors under the AAA.

Although strictest secrecy was maintained, there was speculation in some quarters whether the government would seek to head off the suits through congressional reënactment of the taxes as a retroactive general revenue measure.

Such a course was proposed by Senator Bankhead [Dem., Ala.], who said he thought the administration might adopt it. Under his plan, if upheld as constitutional, the treasury could retain not only the billion dollars but also could collect the 200 million dollars impounded in depositories and ordered returned yesterday by the Supreme court.

MUNITIONS SOLD TO REBEL ENEMY, SAYS HISTORIAN

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The senate munitions committee might take a look at a chapter of civil war history for a real shocker.

Frank L. Owsley, Vanderbilt university historian and student of the old south, said today that southern soldiers obtained some of their munitions through northern generals.

He asserted that northern armies got large supplies of cotton through southern generals with the "unofficial consent" of the confederate government. The federal government, he said, also "winked at" the cotton trade, but he did not believe official Washington was aware during the war of the trade in munitions.

"Officers of rank as high as brigadier general knew about the trade in munitions of war," Owsley said. "They were not the regular army officers—that is, West Point men—but the political generals who went into the war to make money."

SHOW COL. HOUSE BLUNDER FANNED U-BOAT WARFARE

Munitions Quiz Reveals Secret Anglo Pact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Proposals of the Wilson administration to end the submarine warfare in 1916, and rejection of such proposals by the allied powers, with the net result of convincing Germany that there was a secret Anglo-American agreement, were detailed in 20 year old state department documents made public by the senate munitions committee today.

J. P. Morgan and his associates in the international banking firm, who are being investigated, were present, but played the rôle of ordinary spectators. The session was suggestive of a college seminar, with Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.] reading diplomatic correspondence and Senator Gerald P. Nye [Radical, N. D.] making solemn observations for the record. Not a question was addressed to the Morgan partners, who sat silently and did not complain.

Beset from Both Sides.

The correspondence explained in great detail the cares that beset President Wilson in the two years before America's entrance into the war, with both Germany and England curtailing her neutral rights and ignoring her protests. It also dealt with the misadventures of Col. E. M. House, Wilson's adviser or "super cabinet officer," as Senator Clark called him, and the ill-fated House-Grey scheme to end the war.

The American proposal to modify the submarine warfare, which was resulting in great loss of neutral property and lives, was made by Secretary of State Robert Lansing and detailed in a letter to Spring Rice, the British ambassador. It provided that a noncombatant traveling in a belligerent ship had the right to "rely upon the observance of the rules of international law and the principles of humanity"; that a merchant vessel of enemy nationality should not be attacked without being ordered to stop, and that it should not be fired upon after being ordered to stop unless it resisted. Upon the acceptance of these conditions by Germany the allied powers were to disarm their merchantmen.

Defeats Own Ends.

J. W. Gerard, the American ambassador to Germany, cabled Lansing in December, 1916, as follows:

"I think Germany was about to offer to sink no more merchant ships without notice and putting crews, etc., in safety if England would disarm merchant ships, but now, since the President's letter to Stone, both the chancellor and Von Jagow say they are convinced that America has a secret understanding with England and that nothing can be arranged."

Wilson's letter to Senator William J. Stone of Missouri, chairman of the foreign relations committee, was not disclosed, but a letter from Secretary Lansing to Wilson showed that Senator Stone believed the United States was "bearing too severely" upon Germany.

Stone Speaks for Germany.

"I had a long conversation this afternoon with Senator Stone in regard to our relations with belligerent countries and I am disturbed by his attitude," Lansing wrote. "He clearly indicated, after we had talked awhile, that he thought we were bearing too severely upon the Teutonic allies and were not pressing Great Britain as strongly as we should in insisting upon observance of our trade rights.

"When I suggested that loss of life seemed to me to require more drastic treatment than loss of property, he replied that they both involved rights.

"I could see, however, that this in no way satisfied him, for he then referred to German babies dying because Great Britain would not allow us to send them condensed milk and followed it up with dyes, potash, etc.

"That is indeed not a little disturbing, but I think it comes from other quarters than the senator's own personal thinking," Wilson replied. "It makes House's errand all the more pressing and opportune."

Envoy Called Pro-British.

Senator Clark explained that Col. House at this time was in London conferring with Sir Edward Grey, the foreign secretary, on "the gentlemen's agreement in which Col. House committed the United States, under certain conditions, to enter the war. The House-Grey proposal, which has been published, contained terms that were not acceptable to Germany.

A letter from Secretary Lansing to President Wilson, dated Jan. 27, 1916, showed that he suspected Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador to London, of being too strongly pro-British.

"I must say that I am very considerably disturbed as to Mr. Page's attitude on all subjects which in any way affect the policies of Great Britain," Lansing wrote. "He certainly is influenced very strongly by the atmosphere in which he is, and I frequently doubt whether he urges the cases involving American rights with the force and vigor which he should as American ambassador."

Britain Assails Terms.

A cablegram from Lansing to House, then in London, disclosed the objections of the British government to the proposal to modify the submarine warfare.

"Page cables that Grey is seriously disturbed over proposal, as he claims it is wholly in favor of the central powers and against allies," Lansing wrote. "Page fears that this proposal will be considered German victory and that all our influence with allies will be lost."

President Wilson and Col. House, however, believed the proposal was more favorable to Great Britain than to Germany, their correspondence disclosed.

"What the British government desires," House wrote, "is that on the one hand we shall demand of Germany that no merchantmen shall be sunk without warning, and on the other hand that merchantmen shall, as in times gone by, have the right to arm.

"Eat Cake and Have It, Too."

"I mentioned my conference with Lansing on this subject in which Lansing did most of the arguing, holding that they could not have their cake and eat it, too; that it was manifestly unjust to the submarine to give merchantmen warning and then permit them to fire upon the submarine and sink it while she was giving warning."

President Wilson, in a letter to Col. House, wrote:

"The matter of armed merchantmen is not so simple as Balfour would make it. It is hardly fair to ask submarine commanders to give warning by summons, if, when they approach as near as they must for that purpose, they are to be fired upon, as Balfour would evidently have them fired upon. It is a question of many sides and is giving Lansing and me some perplexed moments."

The Wilson administration also was engaged in many controversies regarding the right of Americans to travel on belligerent ships, a right which the munitions committee would restrict by having them travel at their own risk. Secretary Lansing was advised in this matter by Cone Johnson, state department solicitor, as follows:

"It is hardly correct to say that the neutral has the right, unlimited, of traveling on merchant ships of belligerents carrying contraband and munitions of war. A neutral does not have the right to afford, by his presence, protection to such a ship or its cargo, as we see from the admitted principle that he is forced to abandon the ship when overtaken by the enemy."

Both Senator Clark and Senator Nye indicated in their comment upon the diplomatic correspondence that they believed England respected the rights of the United States as a neutral less than Germany. Senator Clark explained that England, in October, 1914, placed an embargo on steel, wool, rubber, jute, and other raw materials and the United States protested, pointing out that it would increase the cost of manufactured goods being shipped to England. This resulted in a working agreement whereby raw materials could be shipped to the United States but not for reshipment.

England in Control of U. S. Trade.

This placed England "practically in control of our trade," Senator Clark declared, explaining that the British ambassador interpreted the agreement to comprehend raw materials shipped to the United States from countries other than the British empire.

"And it gave the American manufacturers a direct interest in the success of the allies, didn't it?" asked Senator Nye.

"They couldn't even engage in domestic commerce without the consent of England," Senator Clark replied.

Senator Clark read the text of several protests, which denounced the policy of England as "indefensible," but said these protests never were taken seriously by England.

CONTROL of COLDS

For Fewer Colds . . Vicks Va-tro-nol helps Prevent many Colds

At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. It stimulates Nature's own functions —in the nose—to help prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in their early stages. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps avoid many colds.

For Shorter Colds . . Vicks VapoRub helps End a Cold Sooner

If a cold has developed, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat and chest at bedtime. VapoRub acts direct—two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its medicated vapors direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

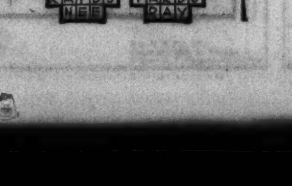
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



DON'T LET HIM GET BALD

Complete the Hair Cycle and Hair Loss Stops!

Charles Nessler, pioneer in modern hair research . . . inventor of Permanent Waving, author of the books "Story of Hair", "Our Vanishing Hair" and many scientific papers.

Because all your husband's relatives are bald, don't think he is destined to be bald too. "Baldness is usually the result of nothing more serious than neglect. Baldness is not hereditary," says Charles Nessler, famous inventor of the Permanent Wave. "No son need lose his hair simply because his father is bald."

Years of research on thousands of human heads, brought to light the facts of Charles Nessler's hair cycle theory—namely, that hair grows, falls out, is replaced. You can no more stop hair from falling than you can stop an animal from shedding. Adopt the natural, easy Pro-Ker Treatment.

Applied regularly, Pro-Ker helps nature to complete the hair-growing cycle—stimulates your scalp to replace new hair for every hair that falls!

NO EXCESS OILINESS, DANDRUFF, ITCHING SCALP

These are secondary symptoms relieved by the healthful application of the Pro-Ker Treatment. Booklet accompanying bottle contains not only instructions for use, but vital do's and don'ts about your hair. An excellent hair-dressing too—not sticky or greasy. Free from alcohol. Get Pro-Ker today at any drug counter. $1 and $1.50 the bottle. You will be amazed at the results.

Send for free copy of Charles Nessler's valuable book—"The End of the Bald Era." Write Pro-Ker Laboratories, Dept. E2, 400 Madison Avenue, New York.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE WANT AD SECTION

G. O. P. LEADERS WILL INTERVIEW ALL CANDIDATES

Start Shaping Ticket; Urge Harmony.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Republican county committeemen voted last night to begin receiving lists of G. O. P. primary candidates for state and county offices, from the governorship down at a meeting in the Bismarck hotel tonight. At this session a plan is to be formulated for giving hearings to the candidates during the next week or more with framing of a slate in view.

The action followed adoption of an "80 per cent harmony" resolution pledging the committeemen, as individuals, to support candidates who get 80 per cent of the voting strength of the committeemen. Indorsement of a slate by the committee, in its official capacity, was deemed a violation of the primary law.

George F. Harding, former county treasurer, and Fred Lundin, guiding spirit of the "reorganization committee," as invited guests, were headliners at the harmony fest.

Differ on Governor Race.

Mr. Harding, who is actively backing Wayland Brooks for the governorship nomination held that the Republicans would have the best chance of winning in November if a Chicago man is nominated for governor. Mr. Lundin, who said he was not for any individual candidate expressed the view that a downstate governorship candidate would strengthen G. O. P. prospects.

Mr. Lundin advocated the "80 per cent" harmony resolution. Mr. Harding went him 20 per cent better and said he was for "100 per cent Republican harmony." An amendment from Judge Oscar Nelson to this effect was tabled, on the ground that it was unreasonably ambitious.

Apart from the Harding and Lundin addresses, the harmony gathering was punctuated with passages of discord, and after it was over the committeemen regarded this as a healthy sign, for it sounded like old times when Republicans were winning elections.

Harding For Harmony.

"No one is more for harmony than I," said Mr. Harding. "And no one is more for the defeat of Roosevelt, Horner and the New Dealers. I'm for 100 per cent harmony, but if I can't get that we'll have to take 95 per cent or 75 per cent or what you can take.

"I'm for Wayland Brooks for governor, as the strongest candidate, If any one could be developed stronger than Brooks I'd be first to support that candidate. I think Brooks can win downstate as well as in Chicago. I think the fight is right here in Cook county. The Democrats know that. They know downstate is going Republican. So they pick a doctor from Chicago to run for governor.

"The Republican party can get better results in Cook county by a strong Cook county candidate than by a downstater. In every poll we have taken, Brooks is top man and has had more votes than the other candidates combined. Nobody is more for harmony than I."

Must Have Harmony.

Mr. Lundin, who served for 24 years as a committeeman, held without harmony the Republicans cannot beat Roosevelt and the New Dealers. He urged the "80 per cent" plan.

"We Republicans will all be kicked out," he said, "if by lack of harmony we kick out of the Republican party enough men for the Democrats to win in November. I ask no favors. I'm not for sale or rent, and I pay my way.

"If you want to win you've got to have harmony. In my opinion the party would be better off with a downstate candidate for governor. But I'm not quarreling with any candidate, and I shall not present any candidate. I'll be for any candidate you harmonize on. I have the highest regard for Wayland Brooks.

"I don't expect you to get 80 per cent harmony at first. But you can get 60 per cent and work up, and where will you get if you are not in at least 80 per cent harmony?"

Judge Nelson Disagrees.

"You, Mr. Lundin," he said, "have been a member of this committee 24 years and never advocated an 80 per cent pledge. You say our governorship candidate should come from downstate.

"But the reason the Democrats drop Horner and pick Bundesen is that they know sentiment downstate is Republican and to win they have to win in Cook county. So they pick a Chicago doctor publicized as a friend of children and parents. We need a Chicago candidate for governor."

"Two years ago we had a ticket named by a bare majority of the committee—55 per cent," rejoined Mr. Lundin. "I was snowed under."

"Well, 100 per cent of the members took campaign money and some of them marked for other candidates," said Judge Nelson.

Recalls Roosevelt Attacks.

"Two years ago," retorted Mr. Lundin, "you said Roosevelt was popular and you couldn't attack him. I attacked him, however, and the New Deal."

An amendment from Judge Nelson to make it "100 per cent harmony" was tabled by a vote of 194,173 to 179,493. The "80 per cent" pledge then went through.

Charles S. Deneen, invited to attend, sent regrets. Robert E. Crowe, former state's attorney, also invited, sent a letter saying:

"When I receive assurance from these gentlemen you have invited to meet with you that they will join me in my fight to free the Republican party from the control of Capone, the carpet baggers, panhandlers, and hoodlums that now dominate it I will be glad to meet with these gentlemen."

At Aurora last night Wayland Brooks was indorsed for Republican nomination for governor by 200 Republicans from eighteen De Kalb county townships. What was said to be the first "Brooks for governor" club downstate was organized. The chairman predicted the club would get 5,000 members.

The United German American Republican league last night recommended for governor Elmer J. Schnackenberg, J. Paul Kuhn, and Win G. Knoch.

Colored Group to Hold Annual Meeting Tonight

A report of the work of the Nation Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Chicago during 1935 will be made at the association's annual meeting in the Wendell Phillips High school tonight. A. C. MacNeal, president, said yesterday that since January, 1933, the Chicago branch of the organization has handled more than 6,000 cases involving the question of race discrimination, and that not one case brought to court has been lost by the association's counsel.

NEW DEAL WASTE HITS EVERY HOME PLAYLETS SHOW

Radio Skits Put Deficit in Terms of Grocery Bill.

How the New Deal has cut into the income of the average American by imposing higher living costs and by increasing taxation was portrayed last night over station W-G-N in the first of a series of four broadcasts of "Liberty at the Cross Roads," dramatic skits sponsored by the Republican national committee.

Brief vigorous thrusts at New Deal spending were made between four sketches of intimate American life. After quoting Franklin D. Roosevelt's 1932 campaign motto "Stop the Deficits," the announcer pointed out that the New Deal administration is spending $1.95 for every dollar collected and that the money to make possible that extravagance has come only from a huge increase in the federal debt.

Deficits in the first three years of the New Deal, it was asserted, average 3 billion 5 hundred million dollars annually and have resulted in a national debt of $30,534,000,000.

Burden on the New Home.

In the first sketch John Smith, who has come to the marriage license bureau with Mary Jones to obtain a certificate, is asked if he has considered his share of the national debt before deciding to marry on $25 a week. Mary answers that "that is the worry of the government not ours." The clerk informs her that she and other citizens are the government.

"Do you know," the clerk inquired, "that the national debt has a prior lien on everything you earn? The average man must pay $4.60 a week to the government."

Another sketch shows Citizen Brown paying Butcher Andy 15 cents a pound for a pork roast in 1933 and complaining over a 2 cents a pound rise in the cost.

Why Meat Costs So Much.

Eight months later Andy is selling a pork roast at 30 cents a pound and to the objection of Brown that the processing tax in itself could not account for all that increase is advised by Andy that "the government has used the processing tax to destroy hogs and make meat more expensive."

Husband Jack, in the third sketch, bemoans the fact that he cannot have bacon because the price has risen to 53 cents a pound. A year later Wife Jane surprises him by serving bacon—imported from Poland and purchased by her at 28 cents a pound.

The announcer followed up the last sketch by declaring that the United States has changed from a food exporting nation to a food importer to the detriment of the consumer, the farmer, and the merchant, illustrating his point with a list of sensational increases in imports of foods.

Living Artists to Perform.

The first broadcast was mainly by electrical transcription. Thomas G. Sabin, director of the radio division of the national committee, announced that the next three programs, to be broadcast over W-G-N at 8:30 p. m. on each of the next three Tuesdays, will be presented by "live" talent.

Sabin is presenting the programs over independent stations following the refusal of the two major broadcasting systems to lease their facilities for dramatized political skits. W-G-N provided its facilities on the usual commercial program basis. Last night's program was from W-G-N only.

PLEAS FOR DINNER SEATS ARE REJECTED BY LIBERTY LEAGUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Swamped with applications for seats for its dinner here on Jan. 25, the American Liberty league tonight announced no more applications will be accepted. Two thousand seats are available at the dinner and more than three times that number of applications have been received, the league said.

Alfred E. Smith, one time Democratic candidate for President and New Deal foe, is to be the principal speaker. Smith is a member of the nonpartisan body's national executive committee. Other speakers will be Charles I. Dawson, former United States District judge in Kentucky, and Dr. Neil Carothers, director of the Lehigh university college of business administration.

The dinner marks the end of a day in which the league's national executive committee, its national advisory council, and its national lawyers' committee will hold meetings. During the meetings reports will be presented on the work of the league during the last year and discussion of the league program for the campaign year.

STEPDAUGHTER SUES WHITING OVER ESTATE

Miss Henriettta E. Countiss, 23 years old, filed in Circuit court yesterday a suit for an injunction and an accounting to compel her stepfather, Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the American Furniture Mart, as trustee, to pay over to her amounts alleged to be due to her under a trust agreement established by her grandmother, Mrs. Henrietta Eleanor Robinson, who died in 1930.

The suit, filed by the law firm of Swigert and Hurley, alleges that Miss Countiss is the beneficiary of one-sixteenth of a trust fund established by her grandmother and that Whiting has "diverted and applied for his own benefit" a part of the trust's income.

On reaching his majority recently, Miss Countiss' younger brother, Frederick D. Countiss Jr., sued Whiting and won $4,400 from the estate of his father, the late Frederick D. Countiss. The addresses of Whiting, young Countiss, and Miss Eleanor all are listed as 1524 Lake Shore drive, the old Countiss home.

Although Attorney Ira W. Hurley refused to comment on yesterday's suit, it is understood to center on the question of whether Whiting is to be considered an heir of his wife, the late Eleanor Robinson Countiss Whiting.

Park Board Buys Its Own Roses After WPA Declines

George T. Donoghue, general superintendent, told the park board yesterday that the Works Progress administration has refused a request for $1,875 to purchase roses for the park gardens. "It seems we'll have to buy our own roses," Mr. Donoghue said. The board authorized him to make the purchase for the gardens of Jackson, Washington, Douglas, Garfield, and Humboldt parks.

SENTINELS SEND ANTI-NEW DEAL EXHIBIT SOUTH

'Defense of Constitution' Caravan Starts.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A motor caravan with an exhibit and equipment to show motion pictures "in defense of the constitution," sponsored by the Sentinels of the Republic, started southward today after a ceremony at Independence hall.

Raymond Pitcairn, national chairman of the Sentinels of the Republic, presiding at the ceremony, said "this is no partisan question. The Sentinels of the Republic are organized and pledged to maintain the fundamental principles of the American constitution, to oppose further federal encroachment upon the reserved rights of the states and the individual citizens. Our motor caravan will take our message to hundreds of communities."

Two Dedicate Caravan.

Col. Henry Breckinridge, assistant secretary of war under President Wilson, and Mayor S. Davis Wilson dedicated the caravan.

"Little political men have tried to lay hands on your liberty," Breckinridge said. "Taking advantage of economic confusion, they have made quite a start in persuading servile congressmen to pass legislative and judicial powers into the hands of the burocrats.

"They have cost you in money as much as the worst depression in all history. Their economy of scarcity has shoved the forgotten men into the bread line by the regiment. Fifteen billions of money has been spent and still ten million are unemployed.

"Plow Under Payrollers."

"Let us quit plowing under crops and plow under some of the three million political payrollers who consume our substance. Let us break the strangle hold that stifles the recuperative power of our economic life. Let us breathe as free American citizens—not by the condescending permission of any politician."

The growth of the country under the constitution framed in Philadelphia was outlined by Mayor Wilson. "The time to take sides has come," he said. "It is time for true Americans respecting the principles of government under which they have thrived to stand up in support of their constitution."

No itinerary has been planned for the caravan. The objective is Florida and southern cities en route.

HUEY LONG'S "VOICE" BROADCAST AS STATE CAMPAIGN FEATURE

New Orleans, La., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The late Huey P. Long's "voice" tonight again sounded opposition to the "third year of the Roosevelt depression."

Long's words were broadcast over a network of state radio stations through a recording made by him shortly before he was assassinated at Baton Rouge last September.

The broadcast was sponsored by candidates in the Jan. 21 Democratic primary who are seeking election on a "complete the work" of Long platform.

Earle Christenberry, secretary of the late senator, said in an introduction that Long had recorded the speech about a week before leaving Washington at the close of the last congress. A few weeks later he was killed.

The recording, evidently intended for national distribution in Long's anticipated campaign for the presidency, was devoted to a summation of his "share-our-wealth" program of limiting big fortunes and redistributing the wealth.

MAYOR OPERATES STEAM SHOVEL AT OUTER BRIDGE

Mayor Kelly, operating a steam shovel, scooped up the first load of dirt yesterday in the resumption of construction of the outer drive bridge across the mouth of the Chicago river.

The work is being resumed at Randolph street and Field drive, where caissons will be sunk for the south approach and plaza of the bridge. Contracts for this work, financed by federal Public Works administration loans and grants, are already let, and those for the remainder of the project are being prepared.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, announced that the bridge should be opened to trafic within 18 months.

Aldermen Plan to Take 608 Taxis from Streets

A plan for immediate reduction of the number of taxicabs in Chicago will be submitted tomorrow to the city council's local transportation committee headed by Ald. James R. Quinn [50th]. This was announced yesterday by Ald. B. A. Cronson [4th], chairman of a special committee in charge of drafting an amendment to the city's taxi franchise ordinance. Cronson said that both the Yellow Cab and Checker Cab companies have agreed to the proposed amendment which calls for removal from the streets of 608 cabs, setting the maximum number at 3,500.

10 MILLION MORE ALLOTTED STATE FOR WPA JOBS

Brings Total to $72,000,000; Relief Load Cut.

Robert J. Dunham, state administrator of the federal Works Progress administration, announced yesterday that Illinois had been allotted an additional $10,000,000 for WPA projects, raising the available total from $62,000,000 to $72,000,000. Dunham was notified of the new grant by Carrington Gill, assistant federal relief administrator.

"The additional funds will be used for the program now under way," Dunham said. "Money will be allotted to present projects as is necessary in the progress of the work. It will be spread over the state."

It was indicated that more men will be put to work when the new funds become available, but Works Progress administration officials were unable to say last night how many new jobs would be created.

Relief Report Made Public.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday made public its report for December showing the total number of resident family cases open during the month as 292,185. Of these, 253,129 received relief. Service to the remaining 39,056 families involved cases in which relief had been previously stopped but on which formal closings had not been completed.

The commission reported that as a result of WPA, private employment and other factors, 102,080 families were taken off the rolls during December. WPA took 90,887 and private employment 6,157. Other causes were ascribed to the remaining cases.

Net Reduction 79,138.

During the same period 22,942 families were put on the rolls, making the net reduction in the case load 79,138. The number of family cases receiving aid during December was 11.5 per cent less than the number given aid in November, when 285,980 families were furnished relief, the commission's report showed.

December WPA hiring brought to 125,148 the total cases closed because family heads were given jobs on various projects.

SCHALL'S WIDOW WILL MAKE RACE FOR SENATE SEAT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, widow of the former senator from Minnesota, announced today she would be a candidate for the senate seat left vacant by her husband's death.

She said she had authorized Lewis L. Drill, St. Paul attorney, by long distance telephone to file her nomination papers today. Drill is a former United States district attorney for Minnesota and a lifelong friend of the late senator.

Senator Scall died in December as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident.

Mrs. Schall said she planned to carry on the "same vigorous fight" against the New Deal as had been waged by her husband, bitter critic of Rooseveltian policies.

White House Visited by Fire Inspectors

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Fire inspectors looked over the White House today, but President Roosevelt seemed surprised when informed about it. The executive said, however, he was glad the inspectors were there and remarked that two fireplaces had been smoking.

DAVIS EXERCISES RFC OPTION TO PURCHASE NEWSPAPER'S BONDS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation said today that Paul M. Davis, Nashville, Tenn., banker had exercised his option to purchase $250,000 of bonds of the Nashville Tennessean, newpaper formerly owned by Col. Luke Lea.

Jones said Davis had given the RFC a demand note for the purchase price of the bonds, the note to bear 4 per cent interest.

"I supposed that we could get the money tonight if we wired him," Jones said, adding "we are hopeful" Davis would terminate the receivership under which the newspaper has operated for several years.

The RFC acquired the bonds from the Canal Bank and Trust company of New Orleans.

OFFICIALS PLAN PROSECUTION IN OPERATION CASE

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Criminal proceedings by the district attorney's office in the Ann Cooper Hewitt sterilization case appeared probable today when District Attorney Matthew Brady announced he would take the case either before the grand jury or a committing magistrate.

Russell P. Tyler, attorney for the 21 year old heiress who charges her mother, Mrs. Maryon Hewitt McCarter, had her illegally sterilized in a money plot, was steadfast in his stand the girl should not sign a criminal complaint against her mother and the physicians she holds responsible for the operation.

Brady said he would not decide before tomorrow which course to pursue, but committed himself to definite criminal procedure.

It was explained the district attorney, without a signed complaint, can carry a case direct to the court of a municipal judge, who, after listening to evidence, may issue a warant for arrest.

GOES TO MORGUE AND FINDS BOTH PARENTS THERE

When Mrs. Charlotte Byden, 1614 West Superior street, went to the county morgue yesterday to identify the body of her murdered mother, Mrs. Maria Grochowski, 43 years old, she recognized a body brought into the morgue as that of her father, Stanley Grochowski, 49 years old, who had committed suicide after slaying his wife.

Mrs. Byden said Grochowski, who had been living at 1659 West Division street, killed his wife because she refused to resume living with him. Another daughter, Jessie, 19 years old, saw the slaying. As Grochowski fled the house he said he was going to kill himself.

Yesterday his body was found on the Illinois Central tracks near 57th street. In his head was a bullet wound and at his side a revolver.

Music Salesman Is Freed; Pays 2 Cents in Royalties

After Judge J. M. Braude in the Boys' court had dismissed a charge of selling music without a license against Irving Weiner, 18 years old, 1919 South Harding avenue, Weiner yesterday complied with a court order that he pay 2 cents in royalties to William [Red] Hodgson. One of the songs allegedly sold by Weiner was "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round," written by Hodgson, who appeared in court to complain that Weiner was depriving him of his royalty of 1 cent for each copy of the song sold.

PRESIDENT PLANS U. S. CONFERENCE TO STUDY HOUSING

Would Attack Modest Income Problem.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today revealed he will shortly call a conference on housing needs to attack the problem of bringing low cost housi.; within the reach of the modest income group.

At this press conference Mr. Roosevelt said great progress had been made in construction of homes of $5,000 and up, but little has been put within the $2,500 class. Ninety per cent of the population falls into the $2,500 class, he said.

The announcement of the conference was made as the White House received a third report from the committee on economic recovery on housing.

In making his case for homes below a cost of $5,000 the President said that the trouble to date has been that housing is in the machine shop stage rather than in the large scale production class. Other products have been brought into the reach of all by mass production, he said.

It is up to industry, he continued, to devise some means to bring homes to the reach of all. Mr. Roosevelt confessed that he does not know the answer to the problem.

POET MARKHAM READS LINCOLN ODE FOR MOVIE

Edwin Markham, 84 years old, noted American poet, was photographed yesterday reading his "Ode to Lincoln" for a one reel motion picture at the studios of the Wilding Picture Productions, Inc., 1345 Argyle street.

The film, financed by Charles R. Walgreen as a force for Americanism, will be made available for showing by schools, churches, clubs, American Legion posts and similar organizations. Markham's poem, which he recites in the film, was the prizewinner in a national competition, and was first read at the dedication of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D. C., in 1922.

ARRAIGN BOY, 17, AS THIEF; FIND HE HAS WIFE, 14

Ray Haisler, 17 years old, 2148 North Clark street, disclosed that he has a 14 year old wife, Marie, when he was arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge J. M. Braude in the Boys' court on a charge of burglary. He said they eloped to Crown Point, Ind., and were married last September.

Haisler was arrested by a watchman in the vacant building at 2142 North Clark street which formerly was occupied by the Beulah Home, the subject of a "baby farm" quiz a year ago. He asserted that he entered the place to gather material for fiction which he hopes to write.

Haisler and his girl wife are on relief. Judge Braude continued the case until Jan. 21 and ordered the court social service bureau to investigate the Haislers.

CHRIS PASCHEN RETURNS FROM FEDERAL PRISON

Chris P. Paschen, former city building commissioner, returned to Chicago yesterday after serving a federal sentence for income tax evasion in Leavenworth prison and paying a fine of $10,000. Paschen was in prison nineteen and a half months, good behavior reducing his two years sentence to this length of time.

With his daughter, Mrs. Theresa Hinzelman, and his brothers, Harry and Jacob, Paschen went immediately to the home of his mother at 2703 Logan boulevard. He later visited Graceland cemetery to see the grave of his wife, who died while he was in prison.

Paschen said he planned to enter a medical institution for care and rest, and to work hard on a "comeback." He indicated that friends and relatives had provided funds to pay his fine.

MILLS NOVELTY ASKS $54,000,000 TRUST DAMAGES

New York, Jan. 14.—Suit for $54,000,000 damages for alleged violation of the Sherman and Clayton antitrust laws was filed in U. S. District court yesterday against more than two score ice cream companies by the Mills Novelty company, Chicago, manufacturers of counter ice cream freezers, slot machines, and other products.

S. Joel Middleman, attorney for the Mills company, said the complaint charged the defendants with unfair competition, defamation of character, sabotage, and boycotting tactics.

Included in the list of defendants are the Borden company, the Breyer Ice Cream company, the Hydrox Ice Cream company, and Castle's Ice Cream company.

DROPS DEAD ON STREET.

HOUSE REFUSES SENATE SET-UP ON AGE PENSION

County Rule Deadlock Goes to Conference.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Appointment of a conference committee to reach an agreement on house bill No. 32, which provides the county machinery to dispense old age pension money, became a certainty tonight when the senate refused to recede from its amendments to the bill.

Earlier the house had refused to concur in the senate amendments. With the senate's later action, the matter of a conference committee was automatic. The conference committee will consist of seven members from the senate and an equal number from the house.

Would Shift Costs.

The principal senate amendments would give county judges, instead of the state welfare department, the authority to appoint county welfare commissions to supervise old age pension affairs, and would place on the state the entire, instead of only one-half of the administrative costs. Republicans fought for concurrence in these changes, but lost on a series of roll calls which ended up in the adoption of a motion not to concur in any of the senate proposals.

In Cook county the existing department of public welfare would discharge functions, downstate's argument was that if Cook is to have this measure of home rule the other 101 counties shouldn't be under a greater state control.

Hit as New Deal Measure.

"The county judges are in a better position to select qualified persons for the welfare commission than a state agency," argued Representative Huge Green [Rep., Jacksonville]. "And we find the United States Supreme court, and the people—according to a national poll now being taken—against the New Deal, which seeks to dictate the form of this bill."

Green referred to the report of emissaries sent to Washington by the state in which it was said that the federal social security board would not approve Illinois' old age pension plan unless there was a greater measure of state control than is afforded by the county judge plan. If this approval is not given, the state would not get federal funds with which to match its own.

"I want this bill passed in the shape that will be sure to get us federal money," said Speaker John P. Devine, after several roll calls had been taken. "I see no harm in letting the bill go to conference. I was hoping we would be through here next week, but I've never seen a session of the legislature accomplish as little as this one has."

Fights Cost Amendment.

Benjamin S. Adamowski, Chicago, Democratic majority leader, led a fight against adoption of the amendment that would compel the state to pay the full administrative costs. It has been reported that there is likely to be a compromise in conference under which the state would pay the full cost for only one year, the counties and the state to share equally in the cost thereafter. It has been estimated that this would cost $250,000 annually in Cook county.

The house passed a repealer of the pension act for employés of the Chicago board of election commissioners. Adamowski said that 86 of the board's 102 employés had decided finally that the pension act they were given in the 1935 regular session was not what they wanted.

Bills that would reduce the sales tax from 3 to 2 per cent on July 1 this year, six months before it would automatically go to the lower rate, and would abolish the Illinois Emergency Relief commission on Aug. 1, were introduced by Thomas Bolger [Dem., McHenry].

Push Relief Appropriation.

In its late night session the senate received and advanced to second reading the house bill appropriating 2½ million from state funds for relief. The bill will be sent to third reading Wednesday and be adopted, according to the program, just after Wednesday midnight.

Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] sent to third reading his bill to appropriate an additional 7½ millions for relief. This would make a total of 10 millions, which IERC officials say is necesary to supplement other funds until May 1.

A fight developed over efforts of the farm bloc to advance to third reading bills that would compel Chicago to levy 7 millions a year for relief. The downstate senators won by a vote of 26 to 14. Some observers saw in this temporary success a move of downstate Horner Democrats and some sympathetic Republicans to embarrass the Chicago city administration.

BANKER SPURGIN SLAIN BY VILLA DESERTERS, SAYS DAUGHTER'S SUIT

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The strange story of a missing Chicago banker, supposedly killed by deserters from Pancho Villa's troops in Mexico nearly 15 years ago and whose daughter later won a $30,000 insurance judgment, was being unfolded in the Circuit Court of Appeals here today.

The court was hearing the appeal of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company from a judgment given Mrs. Vivian S. Tilton, Chicago, the daughter, by a federal court at Santa Fe, N. M., last April.

Warren C. Spurgin, president of the Michigan Avenue Trust company, Chicago, disappeared in July of 1921. Mrs. Tilton presented evidence in her insurance suit purporting to show he had taken up mining with Villa in 1922 and that he had been slain by two deserters from Villa's troops in January, 1922.

JUDGE WILL RULE FRIDAY ON NORTH CHICAGO STRIKE

Testimony in the trial of seventeen men accused of violence in the strike of the Metal Polishers and Buffers' union, local No. 140, at the Oakes Products company of North Chicago was concluded yesterday in the Lake county Circuit court at Waukegan. Judge Edward D. Shurtleff of McHenry county, who was called in to hear the case under a change of venue, said he would give his ruling at noon Friday.

The defendants are charged with contempt of court for breaking an injunction against violence, issued on Dec. 18 by Judge Ralph J. Dady of Lake county. In instructions to attorneys to furnish him with a list of the men accused of being leaders in the disorders, Judge Shurtleff indicated he might give some jail sentences.

Eighteen men originally were brought to trial, but on motion of attorneys for the company one was freed yesterday. All denied taking part in any unlawful disturbances. The strike was called Dec. 11 in protest against working conditions and the discharge of several employés who were replaced by automatic machines.

Postpone Inquest on Victim of Love Shooting

A coroner's inquest into the death of Lawrence Lampe, 22 years old, 937 North Austin avenue, who died Monday of bullet wounds in the Illinois Central hospital, was continued yesterday until Jan. 16. Lampe was wounded Jan. 5 by Joseph Downey, a jealous suitor of Miss Grace Osborne, 27 years old, of the Belmar hotel, 711 Belmont avenue, in whose room the shooting took place. Downey killed Miss Osborne and himself at the time.

DONOVAN CHANCE TO GET FEDERAL BENCH JOB DIMS

Shelved by Party in Hope of Being U. S. Judge.

A hitch developed yesterday in the reported intention of Democratic leaders to obtain a place on the federal court of claims for Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, who was shelved for renomination in the organization slate adopted Sunday to make way for State Treasurer John Stelle.

Dispatches from Washington stated that there are no vacancies on the court and added that since two Illinois men already are on that bench there is little chance of a third receiving appointment, in the event of a vacancy.

This information was communicated to Lieut. Gov. Donovan as he was presiding over the senate at Springfield but he refused comment—"at this time." There have been reports that the veteran Democrat and former state chairman might ignore the slate produced Sunday and would file for his present post under the Horner banner.

Two Openings Remain.

Two vacancies still remain on the slate, the choices for congressmen from the state-at-large. Congressman Martin A. Brennan of Bloomington was ignored by the downstate and Cook county slate makers and the understanding was that downstate leaders would select a candidate to run in his place. United State Attorney M. L. Igoe held the other "at-large" seat until his resignation. For his place, also, a downstate man will be slated.

In Springfield Gov. Horner reiterated yesterday his intention to run for renomination in the face of the selection of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen as the organization candidate. The governor said that he had received "thousands of letters and 1,500 telegrams from all parts of the state, including Chicago, expressing resentment at the attempts to replace me as the Democratic candidate for governor."

Mr. Horner said he would come to Chicago within a few days to set up his campaign organization.

Take to Stump Feb. 1.

Also in Springfield, Treasurer Stelle said that the anti-Horner campaign would start about Feb. 1. Stelle expects the organization candidates to campaign together, touring downstate first and concluding their preprimary work in Chicago.

Horner has announced that he would support John C. Martin, former treasurer, as Stelle's successor, as well as Attorney General Kerner and Secretary of State Hughes, who will run for renomination.

There was no indication yesterday that the governor would attempt to select a candidate to run against Auditor Edward J. Barrett, an organization candidate but who does not have the Horner approval.

Dr. Bundesen departed last night for an undisclosed destination, "for a few days' rest." Upon his return he will start work on the platform he will present to the state when he opens his campaign.

INDICT NEW YORKER FOR THREAT NOTES SENT TO PRESIDENT

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Austin Phelps Palmer, wealthy engineer of 1085 Park avenue, was indicted today on charges of sending threatening letters to President Roosevelt. The indictments, handed up to Federal Judge Murray Hulbert, contain two counts, each punishable by a sentence of five years and $1,000 fine.

The letters, signed in the name of C. R. Nelson, denounce the President as a communist, a madman and as a violator of his oath of office. The writer threatened to strangle the President and expressed the hope his "soul be exterminated in hell."

The first of the letters, dated Nov. 28, was sent to the White House, and the second, dated Dec. 3, was sent to Warm Springs. It referred to the President as a "communist and destroyer of public business."

The second letter said:

"You dirty ——, I warn you if you destroy my business I will strangle you with my own hands. May your soul be exterminated in hell. C. R. NELSON."

Palmer, who lives alone with his butler in an expensive seven room apartment, was arrested on Saturday. According to federal officials, he admitted sending the letters. He was quoted as saying that he had lost a large part of his fortune and that he held the President personally responsible.

INSTALL LEADER OF JEWISH YOUNG MEN'S CHARITIES

Herbert T. Schaffner, 6742 Crandon avenue, was installed as president of the Young Men's Jewish charities at the annual meeting of the organization last night in the Covenant club. All pleaded not guilty. The court will sit in secret Thursday to hear police agents testify about the activities of the group in and outside of Turkey. A verdict is expected Monday.

HUEY'S GAG TAX ON NEWSPAPERS BEFORE JUSTICES

Called a Clear Cut Free Press Abridgment.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The tax imposed by the late Senator Huey Long on Louisiana newspapers opposing his political dictatorship was attacked as a clear cut abridgement of the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press today before the United States Supreme court. The charge was made by Elisha Hanson, counsel for the American Newspaper Publishers' association. The court took the case under advisement.

Long's muzzle law was driven through the Louisiana legislature, which he dominated, in 1934. It provided for a 2 per cent tax on advertising receipts of papers with a circulation of more than 20,000 a week and affected only 13 of 163 newspapers in the state. Twelve of the papers involved were opposing the Long régime. The federal district court of Louisiana granted the papers an injunction from which Long's officials appealed to the Supreme court.

Tells History of Struggle.

Hanson's legal argument was interlarded with incidents of the struggle for a free press in English and American history. He pointed out that at the time of the American revolution and afterward taxation was the main weapon used to silence the press in England and that the first amendment to the United States constitution was adoped to prevent such tyranny.

"The power to tax is the power to destroy," said Hanson. "The income of a newspaper comes from advertising and circulation. Since newspapers in this country are sold for less than the cost of printing, advertising is their life blood."

Hanson told the justices that assessment of the tax on only the one class of newspapers was devised to "catch" the opposition press.

Hurts One; Helps Another.

"Yes," Hanson replied. "It would also turn the business of one newspaper group over to another. These papers paid general taxes in Louisiana, such as corporation, franchise, capital stock, federal income tax and the usual taxes applied to property."

Long's desire for vengeance was clearly shown in the record, which was read in part by Esmond Phelps, attorney for the New Orleans Times-Picayune and representing the newspapers fighting the tax. At the time the tax was under consideration, Long and Gov. O. K. Allen circulated a statement reading:

"It is a system that these big Louisiana newspapers tell a lie every time they make a dollar. This tax should be called a tax on lying, two cents per lie."

Defended by Official.

The tax was defended by Charles J. Rivet, special assistant to the attorney general of Louisiana, who contended that the federal courts had no jurisdiction in the dispute because the papers had started suit before enforcement of the tax could begin.

"But if we had just waited around," declared Phelps, "the managing officers would have been subject to criminal penalties. There was no right in the law to pay under protest. There could have been in one year 18 criminal prosecutions against managing officers of these corporations."

TWO MEN LOSE LIVES AS FLAMES SWEEP TENEMENT IN N. Y.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Two men were burned to death today and more than fifty men and women, most of them in night dress, fled to safety down fire escapes when a fire destroyed the third and fourth floors of a tenement on West Forty-fourth street.

The fire apparently started in the lower hallway. It shot up the stairway so quickly that escape through the halls was cut off, and when the first firemen arrived they found residents of No. 313 and the adjoining building at No. 311 crowding each other on the fire escapes on the front of the buildings, in a near panic to reach the street.

In addition to those who escaped by fire escapes, firemen put up ladders at the rear of the building and brought down a number of tenants.

EPISCOPAL GROUP PURCHASES OLD RACINE COLLEGE

The old Racine college, on the shore of Lake Michigan at Racine, was purchased yesterday by the Sisters of St. Mary, an Episcopal order, to be used as a summer haven for the children of St. Mary's home at 2822 Jackson boulevard.

The property, a historic institution of the Episcopal church in the middle west, will eventually be developed as a year round conference center for Episcopal groups, church leaders said. The new project will be known as the De Koven Foundation for Church work, in honor of Dr. James De Koven, founder of the college, who brought the first unit of the Sisters of St. Mary into the middle west in 1878.

At one time an educational institution of high standing, the college declined after the death of Dr. De Koven several years ago and its doors were eventually closed.

HECKSCHER PACT ON INCOME TOLD BY MME. HEMPEL

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The secret philanthropies of 87 year old August Heckscher included a $15,000 annual payment to Mme. Frieda Hempel, the diva revealed today in a Supreme court suit.

Heckscher once planned to marry the German coloratura. The romance faded, and then he paid her $250,000 in 1927 when she demanded that he make good on a life income promise.

The next year, Mme. Hempel's action revealed today, he set up a trust fund of close to $500,000. From this, she said, she was to be paid $15,000 a year. The payments were regular quarterly until Dec. 1, 1935. He didn't pay and she sued.

Contractor's Wife Wins $30 a Week; Asks Separation

Superior Judge Oscar F. Nelson yesterday granted Mrs. Clara A. Bransfield, 6601 South Mozart street, temporary alimony of $30 a week pending trial of her separate maintenance suit against James F. Bransfield, 3611 Archer avenue, a contractor. She had asked $75 a week. The lower sum was fixed after Attorney Norman Becker, representing Bransfield, told Judge Nelson that Bransfield's family troubles were due to "too much mother-in-law."

WOMAN SHOPPER DIES SUDDENLY.

While shopping at 35th street and 52d avenue in Cicero yesterday, Mrs. Mary Moncznski, 49 years old, 4906 West 32d street, Cicero, was stricken with a heart attack and died while being taken to the Berwyn hospital.

RAIL WRECK HERO RECEIVES MEDAL FROM PRESIDENT

Fred G. Wolff of Belvidere, a car foreman for the Chicago and North Western railway, has received a medal for bravery and a letter of commendation from President Roosevelt, it was announced yesterday. Last July 2 Wolff risked his life to save a fellow worker from a blazing express car after a train wreck near Pecatonica in Winnebago county. The fire, started by an explosion of gasoline tanks in the derailed motor car of the train, had attacked the express car when Wolff broke through a door and found Henry E. Wilson, the express messenger, unable to move because of an injured foot. Wolff carried Wilson to safety just before another fuel tank exploded.

International Awards
Leading expositions in the United States, Europe and Australia have honored Mount Vernon as one of the world's premier whiskies

MOUNT VERNON of old is back—square bottle, age and all—just as before prohibition. Maryland straight rye whiskey, it is — bottled in bond under U. S. Government supervision — requirements of which, as to full 100 proof, storage in barrels, and freedom from addition of younger spirits, are more rigid than those of any other country in the world. Every drop stowed away for at least 4½ years in wood, to sweeten and mellow. Try Mount Vernon now at good bars; get it also at better liquor stores. Call for the square whiskey in the square bottle.

How to Sell Goods!

Make them Cry

Thrill Them

Talk to them of Love

Why laughs, loves, thrills and tears have built the greatest audience on earth for Advertisers in THE COMIC WEEKLY

"I CARE NOT WHO MAKES A NATION'S LAWS, IF I CAN WRITE ITS BALLADS."
—THE EARL OF CROMARTY, 1749

BEHIND this old saying is the same sound principle of human nature that has made THE COMIC WEEKLY what it is—to the public and to the advertiser.

By providing laughs, loves, thrills and tears, THE COMIC WEEKLY which is distributed through the 17 great Hearst Sunday newspapers, has built the largest weekly reading audience on earth.

It provides these great emotional forces, not in ballads, of course, but in modern pictorial entertainment that everybody understands, by the highest paid talent in the world.

Its heroes of romance, of pathos, of comedy and high adventure are among the most widely known and best-loved personalities of our day—Skippy, Tillie the Toiler, Mickey Mouse, Jiggs and Maggie, Flash Gordon, the Little King, Pop-Eye, Barney Google, the Katzenjammers—to mention only a few.

More than 20,000,000 readers

That is why THE COMIC WEEKLY—the only national publication of its kind—has produced for advertisers results seldom equalled by any medium even in prosperous times.

THE COMIC WEEKLY is welcomed—yes, eagerly looked for—in more than 5,500,000 homes every week in the year.

More than 20,000,000 individuals read it—and of this number, many millions are adults! As for the juvenile audience, you get at least 99% coverage—and the influence of the coming generation on family purchases must be reckoned with.

A four-year record of results has won many new advertisers to THE COMIC WEEKLY. But those that pioneered still use it—for they have known from the start of the value of this great medium—and why Loves, Laughs, Thrills and Tears help them to sell their goods.

The wealth of pertinent information available will reveal interesting possibilities with respect to the product or service that you have for sale. To get it, phone COlumbus 5-2642 in New York, or Superior 6820 in Chicago.

THE WANDER COMPANY ACCEPTS NO ADVERTISING ALIBIS

The Wander Company's advertising of Ovaltine, the famous Swiss food drink, is accurately keyed and carefully checked. Each advertisement must produce profitable results.

Late in 1931 the Ovaltine campaign for 1932 had been approved, and the advertising budget allocated.

Attention was drawn to The Comic Weekly—a new medium for advertisers, but one which had already established an amazing record during the few months that it had been available for general merchandise advertising.

Six pages were used in The Comic Weekly in 1933, thirteen in 1934, thirteen in 1935, and the first Ovaltine page in 1936 appeared in the issue of Jan. 5th.

THE SUPREME COURT RESTORES NICKEL BREAD.

What the Supreme court did in declaring AAA unconstitutional was to stop the collection of the hunger taxes. This was a group of taxes paid by all, but of which few were aware. The collector of internal revenue didn't send the housewife a bill for bread and pork taxes, and it wasn't shown separately on the sales ticket like the Roosevelt-Horner 3 per cent sales tax. But the hunger taxes were a large part of the cost of every market basket. The G-men collected something every time the baker wrapped up a loaf of bread; every time the housewife paid for a supper's pork chops. The Roosevelt hunger taxes were chiefly responsible for the high price of the necessities of life.

The removal of the obnoxious taxes as a result of the Supreme court's decision has already cut the cost of running the family table. The price of a 25 pound sack of flour is down 17 cents; whole wheat bread has been cut 2 cents a loaf, and white bread is back to a nickel. Pork loins are coming down 5 cents a pound. Other reductions will come as the stores replenish their stocks with goods on which no tax was collected.

The reduction in prices which is proving so beneficial to city folks will also help to solve the farm problem. For hunger taxes had reduced the demand for a wide range of agricultural produce. To take but one example, during the year which ended June 30 last the high price which the consumer had to pay for wheat [30 cents more than the quoted price] had cut the weekly amount of bread consumed by about 2 loaves per family. The lower prices now made possible will enable families to buy more bread and pork with the money they have available, and, consequently, will enable the farmers to sell more wheat and more hogs at profitable prices. Thus the savings on the hunger taxes will be divided between farmers and consumers.

LAW ENFORCEMENT.

Both city and state offices of the department of state report that motor license purchases are falling off rapidly. The probable main cause is the failure to enforce the law. When it was announced that motorists who had not complied with the law and appeared on the highways without 1936 plates would be arrested, there was a rush for plates. Motorists willing to shirk their duty apparently have come to the conclusion that they will not be penalized and are putting off paying for the new plates as long as possible.

It is, of course, an irksome duty to enforce this regulation. Officials do not wish to incur resentment in motorists whose sense of civic duty and fairness is weaker than their sense of their own inconvenience. But the law-abiding majority will notice and should protest the favor shown the small minority of lawbreakers.

Nonenforcement is very shortsighted. Honest enforcement at this time would end a notorious nuisance, which has delayed payment of needed money into the city and state automobile funds and thrown an unjust and unnecessary burden on officials and on citizens who obey the law. But more important still is the moral effect of this successful flouting of the law.

If the situation is not corrected now it will be a long time before it is corrected, and officials tempted to relax and postpone enforcement should not deceive themselves.

SOMETHING WRONG HERE.

With a substantial show of enthusiasm Los Angeles welcomed the arrival in December of a caravan of five "transcontinental" merchandise trucks from Chicago carrying around forty-five tons of freight and manned by a crew of thirteen men. The transit time was four days and sixteen hours. One of the trucks was especially designed as a "bunk house" for drivers off duty, which enabled the operating company to change drivers every six hours. The entire enterprise was well planned and executed by the Keeshin company, which deserves credit for giving Chicago shippers this expedited service. The accomplishment is entitled to a place in the rapidly changing transportation annals of this decade.

But there is something wrong here. As the railways operate a substantial volume of fifty ton equipment it is obvious that the entire load carried by this caravan could have been accommodated in a single box car, or two as a maximum if many of the consignments were of a bulky nature. Those two cars might have formed the nucleus of a train of fifty or sixty cars manned by a train and engine crew of five or six men. Of course, the assistance of numerous terminal crews, dispatchers, and other operating employés would also be required by the railroad operation, but only a limited part of their total time is spent on any particular train and the overhead cost of road maintenance would shrink almost to the vanishing point as applied to the carriage of forty-five tons of freight.

Without in any way slowing down the rejuvenation of their passenger service, our principal carriers should dedicate themselves to an entire overhauling of their freight operation and rate structure. We know that there are many obstacles in the way, but they are largely man made and flow from the narrow construction of transportation legislation as applied by the interstate commerce commission. The laws themselves can also be overhauled if the railways will put as much steam behind an effort to rid themselves of their own shackles as they have to tie their competitors in regulatory red tape.

DROPPING GOV. HORNER.

The understanding that Gov. Horner would be discarded by his party organization is confirmed by the decision of the slate makers to run Dr. Bundesen at the head of the state ticket. Mr. Horner will resist the decision of the party chiefs in Chicago and make a fight for his place, but he has lost the first round.

In refusing Mr. Horner support for a second term the Democratic state organization repudiates the New Deal in an act speaking louder than words. The Illinois governor was a faithful servant of the New Deal. He was loyal. He accepted advice and he took orders. He used his office to promote the cause and he suffered because he did. He wasn't treated well in Washington and he thinks he has been badly treated at home. If the New Deal were sweeping Illinois Mr. Horner could not be told that he was not a desirable candidate.

Gov. Horner is a party burden because the New Deal is a party burden in this state.

A HOME TOWN BOY MAKES GOOD.

Joe Benton of Norman, Okla., went to New York recently. Things began to happen to him almost at once and he is still in a daze. The fable is a pretty one, with a wealth of morals, and will make any one believe anew in the good, the true, and the beautiful. Joe became fortune's darling and if you'll let them tell it east of the Hudson this is the way it happened:

Joe took his December corn-hog check and went to New York. In Christmas cantatas and glees of the Norman Mendelssohn club he had revealed a tenor voice of quality and the neighbors all said that with any luck in getting on a program he would give a good account of himself in Major Bowes' amateur night. It can be confessed now that is why he went to New York, where chance led him not to an audition at the major's studio but nowhere else than to a hearing by Edward Johnson, manager of the Metropolitan Opera company. Mr. Johnson heard Joe sing, said he had a nice voice, asked him what he had in his répertoire, and would he come back another time?

Joe went back and this time the world became a plum pudding and fell right in his lap. The telephone rang. Richard Crooks, who was to appear as Des Grieux in "Manon" the next night, had a throat congestion and there wasn't a replacement in the company. Could Joe undertake it? He could. He did. He burst upon New York like a comet. He made the lights and headlines. He rated radio interviews and other delightful things. He was discovered, made and acclaimed. A career was shining bright east of the Hudson. There never was a prettier story of a home town boy making good.

It's no secret that Joe Benton is Joseph Bentonelli. The "nelli" was for Italian ears when he was studying under Jean de Reszke and singing in Italy. For some time Americans knew that Americans couldn't sing. If one could he took a foreign name to prove it. After European successes Bentonelli came back home. His success continued with opera in Philadelphia and with the Chicago Opera company. He had, it would seem, arrived. He had achieved an ambition and accomplished a career, but not if you take it to New York.

Outside that city there is the eternal and all covering bush. In unbroken wilderness it sweeps around the world except for a few clearings in England. Bentonelli came out of it, a young unknown seeking his fortune, and fortune fell on him, a bath of golden sunshine. He sang at last, at the Metropolitan.

SOURCES.

A remark by Prof. George F. Warren starts an irrelevant thought. It has nothing to do with what he said. He is a professor of farm management at Cornell university. He gave the New Deal its gold purchase and devaluation policy. Rexford Tugwell is a planner of a socialistic industrial structure. He gave the New Deal its farm policy. Hugh Johnson is an army man. He took charge of the nation's industries. Harold Ickes is a lawyer. He took charge of the public works. Mr. Morgenthau was an agricultural administrator and says he knows nothing of monetary laws or theories. He is head of the treasury. Mr. Farley is a Tammany man and was a prize fight executive. The postoffice and New Deal politics are in his care. There seems to be a reason in one of these arrangements. One guess.

Editorial of the Day

[Des Moines Register.]

The hanging in effigy at Ames of the six justices of the Supreme court who held the AAA unconstitutional was a piece of juvenile impudence [whether done by juveniles or not] that the state of Iowa regrets and apologizes for.

This whole region has a right to be tremendously disappointed by the AAA ruling. It has a right—and a duty—to fight for a substitute for AAA that will accomplish the same or a better result. It has a right to differ with the line of reasoning that even a majority of our august Supreme court adopts. It has a right to work for a change of our constitution if it wishes; for the abandonment of the whole thing if its wishes go that far.

It has no right to adopt the methods of the pettish child or the adult blackguard.

And, barring a few half baked individuals here and there, no more of them than every community has, it has no inclination to adopt such methods.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

"YOU KNOW I'M 65," said John Pierpont Morgan in Washington, "and I won't last so much longer." And he's just sold six of the paintings in his art gallery for $1,500,000. If I owned six paintings that I could sell for $1,500,000 I wouldn't care whether I lasted much longer or not. I'd be willing to call it a day.

‡

BUT JOHN PIERPONT'S remark shows what weaklings we humans are today compared with the men of long ago. Can you imagine Methuselah saying when he was sixty-five years old that he probably wouldn't last much longer? Somebody told Methuselah when he was just turning eight hundred and ninety-two that he ought to go to some nice home for old people and Methuselah hit him on the nose and chased him five miles. Sixty-five? Methuselah hadn't put on his first long pants at that age and was still playing with his toy camel train.

‡

IT USED TO BE a fine thing to be a farmer—and then came the depression—and then the Supreme court stepped on the neck of the AAA—and now all the candidates, including Mr. Roosevelt, are making speeches to the farmer. If I were a farmer I would hide in the silo until the campaign is over.

IN BROKEN SAGAS.

I.

Rameses, the King of golden Egypt,
Raged in chariots across the desert,
Yelling, with his amber lions by him;
Hurled his arrows forth in jeweled lightning
From his bow bent like the horns of Horus.
While in Thebes the tall and priestly wizards
Chanted all his beauty through the temple.

Rameses the Great lies still in Cairo,
Dry and dusty in a dark museum,
While Osiris welcomes down the Sun-god
Burning toward the pyramid of Gizeh.

II.

Cæsar came with trumpets and with legions
In a storm of iron from the channel,
But the Britons and their shields of cowhide
Held him for a moment in the ocean
Till a soldier leapt into the water,
Crying, "Follow lest the Roman eagle
Fall to savages, lead them to triumph."

Mud his Imperator and Republic.
Ah, "Desilite, comilitones . . ."
Words for boys who read the Commentaries.

III.

Fierce Lief Ericson, the water-baron,
Son of Eric who had sailed to Greenland,
Watched his prow make havoc of the sea waves,
Slowly rose the purple coast of Vineland
Into dreams he dreamt of distant Norway.

Many cairns are scattered on the beaches
Built and honored by the yellow Vikings—
Beds and homes for those who worshiped Woden,
Who had hoped to gallop to Valhalla.

IV.

"What are love and glory?" sigh the cynics.
"Life and art are nothing," moan the poets.
But their words seem feeble, and I wonder.
Men may mock the pride of the Egyptian,
Spurn the Roman courage, scorn the Norseman—
"Histories," they sneer, "and dusty pages."
But their words are weak, and I must wonder.

V.

It is something to have lived with glory—
Something to have thundered on the Hittites—
Something to have grasped the hand of Cæsar—
Something to have torn the rude Atlantic—
Better to be shown to idle tourists—
Better to be pondered on in classrooms—
Better to be slain in broken sagas—
Better to be dust and be remembered

‡

THE "AMPLER LIFE," the slogan invented by Mr. Roosevelt for the fast approaching campaign, but the spellbinders on the stump are sure to pronounce it the "ampaler life" just as they pronounce "athletic"—"athaletic"—and put that extra "a" in detective so as to say it—"detecative." But after all, why not? Ampler Life or Ampaler Life—nobody knows what it means anyhow.

‡

THESE ARE SAD DAYS for the tourists in California and Florida. The weather in the North is so springlike and so full of sunshine with the bluest of blue skies overhead that it's no use writing to the folks back home, "Went sea bathing yesterday. Sorry to hear about your terrible blizzard." Yessir, when they're having nice weather back home the visitors in Miami and Loz Onglaize don't want to do anything but throw dishes at the waiter or bite the hotel proprietor in the ankle.

‡

TUT, TUT, TUT! And I used to like that magazine, but I can't read it any more. An advertisement carries a picture in which a man is saying to the porter who has apparently just brought him one, "Scribner's a proven travel medium." Bill Benson spied the terrible word in Printer's Ink (gosh, printers ought to know better) and sent the ad in all bedewed with his tears. I weep with you, Bill. Whenever anybody says "proven" instead of "proved" I always break down and cry like a child.

‡

NO, OFFICER! the man on the back porch is not trying to beat down the door with that club he is swinging so excitedly. He is only a golfer getting in training for the spring.

OUR SELF-REGULATING BODIES.

WHENEVER the normal functions of the body are thrown out of equilibrium the fact is recognized usually by some symptom. If we fracture the long bone of the thigh [the femur] we will be unable to walk and we realize at once that we must lay up for repairs. Perhaps all signs of disease are not as obvious as a fractured leg; nevertheless, we must train ourselves to detect departures from health. We must do this without any undue amount of self-analysis; certainly without worry or fear.

Most symptoms can be traced to a definite cause. While we pride ourselves on knowing the origin of malaria and its methods of prevention, yet when it occurs we still have the symptoms and the disease to deal with.

Somehow or other the body must be maintained in proper balance. It is easily thrown out of gear, as we say, by hundreds of factors many of which, however, are under our control. So actively does it attempt to accommodate itself to things that go wrong that it often succeeds even though we, the patients, are not willing to help.

If an artery becomes plugged other arteries—small perhaps but supplying the same area—will enlarge so that the muscles and structures of the shutoff part will receive ample nourishment. If the blood pressure rises from some cause the face may become flushed because of engorged capillaries thus relieving the excess pressure on the heart. If a muscle is called upon for a greater amount of work than it is accustomed to it will grow and strengthen so that its power will be equal to the load placed upon it. We are given so much kidney tissue that a considerable portion may be destroyed and the remainder will perform adequately. If lung tissue has been lost by disease then a lighter load should be carried and as a result the lung area may be great enough to supply the blood with oxygen.

We ordinarily secrete fifty ounces of saliva in each twenty-four hours. This is the starting point in the digestion of food. If food is improperly mixed with saliva or if it is decreased in amount the stomach and other structures may take up the task and carry on successfully.

If bacteria gain access to the system white blood cells rush in and endeavor to destroy them. Whenever fever generated by increased metabolism develops, the skin attempts by radiation and evaporation to get rid of it. In other words, there is everywhere in the body an equalizing mechanism that strives to keep the body moving along, as it were, on all four wheels.

Basically then we can understand how the human structure meets emergencies and it is upon this tendency that we must rely for recovery from disease. All that medicine does or attempts to do is to help the forces of nature heal and readjust. Should we lose an arm, a foot, or a leg, we cannot grow a new one as a crab can grow a walking leg. In the blind individual the sense of hearing and of touch may be developed to an unusual degree. One who has lost the use of both legs may become exceedingly dextrous with the hands. In other words, there is a law of compensation.

If we would preserve good health we must see to it that demands do not exceed reserves, for it is the daily, steady, consistent overload that finally leads to a breakdown of tissue and function. After a while organs get tired of apologizing; of correcting. Overwork, close confinement, lack of time for repair [rest], overeating, undereating, or too little exercise—all will be pardoned for a time. A day of reckoning will come, however, when readjustments fail and the strongest frame will buckle.

The outside of the boiler may appear to be in perfect condition but the tubes may be filled with pits [corrosion]. Heart, lungs, kidneys, and liver will withstand rebuff and abuse for months, even years, adapting themselves to poor hygiene and to bad habits of living. Appreciating the willingness of these organs to play the game let us be fair and not demand the impossible.

MAY BE ADHESIONS.

L. B. writes: I had an appendicitis operation four months ago. I get tired when I walk and I have pain in the vicinity of the scar. What can I do?

REPLY.

Sometimes adhesions cause the symptoms that you describe. They may produce discomfort which varies from a dragging sensation to actual pain. In other cases they may, by pulling upon organs within the abdomen, cause pain. There is a possibility that obstruction of the bowel may occur. An X-ray examination is often of great aid in determining whether adhesions are producing partial obstruction or not. The adhesions themselves are not disclosed by the X-ray, but the deformity of the obstructed bowel is shown by means of the barium meal. Why not return to your surgeon for a thorough examination?

EATING HABITS.

D. J. S. writes: I am continually annoyed by people with bad eating habits. I go into a frenzy when I hear somebody chew his food with gusto and make slopping sounds with his tongue and lips. Is this a justified annoyance or am I just nervous?

REPLY.

Your annoyance is justified, but don't let it get you.

ALBUMIN.

V. J. B. writes: What is the diet for a person with albumin in the urine?

REPLY.

The diet for albuminuria is essentially a normal one except that more protein [meat] will be needed. It is important to avoid overeating and to limit the consumption of fried foods and heavy desserts. Tea and coffee should be avoided. Alcohol is out.

SOCIAL SECURITY LAWS.

Winnetka, Ill., Jan. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can you give me any definite information concerning the new social security and old age pension acts of the federal and state governments? Is it or will it be necessary to make payments to both the [2] federal and [3] state governments? 4. It is my understanding that for the year, 1936, I must deduct from my employés' salaries 1 per cent of the total amount paid them during the year, and [5] that I must add a like amount to this and be prepared to make this payment to the federal government on Jan. 1, 1937. Is this correct? 6. Does this amount also take care of the state old age pension act? 7. Are owners' salaries exempt from these acts? I have twelve employés. 8. Are four of these exempt from these taxes, and if so [9] how do you determine which four employés? P. I.

1. Yes.

2 and 3. A federal act imposes on employers of eight or more, a tax of 1 per cent of their pay rolls. Against this, they are allowed a credit of 90 per cent of any payments to state unemployment funds.

4 and 5. These additional taxes will go into effect next year.

6. Out of the proceeds of the federal government plans to pay half of the state old age pensions.

7. We do not understand the question. If you are in business for yourself, we would say that it is meaningless for you to pay yourself a salary.

8. No.

9. See 8.

DEED TO PROPERTY.

Whiting, Ind., Jan. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Several years ago my husband's work necessitated his moving to South America. Before he left he signed over two homes to me, valued at about $8,000. 1. I would like to have his name put back on the deeds now. 2. Will I have to sell them to the bank and then have them sell it back to us as I did before, and if I do this [3] will I have to pay all that tax or [4] can I just go to the bank and have them put his name on and have it recorded? How much will it cost? H. J. R.

1. It is not clear whether you mean that you simply wish to convey to him, or that you wish to create a joint tenancy with him.

2. A sale would not be necessary in either case. The intervention of the bank would not be necessary if you intend an outright conveyance.

3. It is not clear what tax you have in mind. There is no stamp tax where no price is involved.

4. The bank is the best source of information as to the terms on which they are willing to serve you.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—The majority of the Italian people execrates Mussolini's war against Ethiopia and dreads its international consequences, but Italy is more than ever terrorized and gagged by the Fascist machine, and powerless to manifest its opposition, according to Guglielmo Ferrero, celebrated Italian historian, who is now an exile in Geneva because he refused to indorse Il Duce's policies.

"The masses and the intellectual élite of the Italian nation have from the beginning been opposed to the Ethiopian adventure, and their opposition is constantly growing with the Fascist government's increasing military and economic difficulties," the famous author of "The Greatness and Decline of Rome" said.

"It must not be forgotten, however, that public opinion is a government monopoly in Italy. Only the Fascist minority, which is favorable to the war, enjoys the right of free speech. Thus it has been possible to create an artificial impression in foreign countries that the Italian people stand united behind the dictator."

Although he does not see any possibility of a popular upheaval in Italy for the present, Ferrero believes that the overthrow of Fascism, at least in its actual form, represents the only final solution of the crisis into which Mussolini has plunged Europe.

"The world is faced only in appearance with a war between two members of the league of nations," he said. "In reality it is confronted with a redoubtable Italian internal problem.

"The Italo-Ethiopian war, with all its complications, is the direct result of the two coups d'état of 1922 and 1925 which brought Fascism into power. With the advent of Fascism began Italy's revolt against western Europe; the war against Ethiopia is only one feature of this revolt. So long as the Italian government enjoys absolute, uncontroled power it will be impelled, through the artificial unanimity it has created, to develop its revolt to its extreme limits.

"The day will come when the European powers will be compelled to put a stop to Italy's secession if they wish to escape its consequences. Hence the agitation and fear that prevails in Europe's capitals today. Mussolini's recent speeches, in which he pictured 'proletarian Italy' as engaged in a desperate struggle against 'a world dominated by rich, capitalist powers,' constitutes an illuminating revelation of the schemes and motives underlying the Italo-Ethiopian war.

"It is undeniable that the forceful intervention of Great Britain and the league of nations has for the moment strengthened the Fascist government's position in the country. A part of the public opinion, which was hostile to the war, was induced to back up the government as soon as it was no longer so much a question of conquering Ethiopia as of resisting England and the league.

"Thus, it is easy to foresee that the Fascist government will accentuate the anti-European character of its action in the same measure as its military difficulties in Africa and its economic troubles at home increase. Everything will be done to convince Italy that she is the victim of the jealousy and ill will of the entire world in order to conceal from her eyes the incredible mistakes of the government, which are the real cause of her present and future misfortunes.

"For this reason I have little hope of a speedy settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war. The situation will inevitably grow constantly worse and the danger of Italy involving the rest of Europe in war more menacing. Unless Great Britain and the league give way entirely, and Italy succeeds in conquering Ethiopia within a few months, the conflict can only be settled by the Italian people itself, when it recovers the faculty of expressing its opinion freely, and when its intellectual élite, which is now muzzled, dispersed and exiled, is able once more to assume the guidance of the nation."

FROM FAY-COOPER COLE.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—I do not have the habit of writing letters to the papers, but Chesly Manly's article which appeared in your issue of Dec. 23 should not be passed without comment. He states that "many Filipinos are by western standards incompetent and helpless"; that any Filipino of pure Malay stock improves his line by marriage with a Chinese or Japanese; that he is an emotional man, easily stirred up by the politicos; that "the Malay mind is not susceptible to western civilization"; that it is a scientific fact that some men and women of Baguio have tails, and so on.

Mr. Manly has evidently been investigating the Philippines from an easy chair in a Manila clubhouse, where he has imbibed more than his share of half truths, misstatements and prejudice. Readers of your paper have a right to expect that your correspondents inform themselves by thorough investigation before they pose as authorities on foreign lands and less known cultures. Nearly every statement in the article is open to question. Of course many Filipinos are incompetent, as are many Americans; "many are easily stirred by politicians"—what people are not? Certainly Americans are not exempt. "Some have tails"! Mr. Manly should be advised that the percentage of people born with tails is no greater in the Philippines than in the city of Chicago. The well known fraudulent picture card showing a tailed Benguet Igorot is evidently his source of misinformation on this point. Were Mr. Manly to investigate he would find the Filipino, southern Chinese and the bulk of the Japanese population closely related, so that physically the Filipino does little to "improve his line" by intermarriage. His statement "that outside of Manila, American occupation has left little impress on the native culture" is inexcusable in its inaccuracy.

After rather intimate contact with all classes of Filipinos through several years I should like to assure your correspondent that the Filipinos are, in general, an intelligent, adaptable people. That they have not seen fit to copy all western civilization has to offer may be further proof of this competence. Different contacts, traditions, and interests, as well as environmental conditions, shape cultures and those within them. Because people differ from us is no sign that they are incompetent or inferior.

FAY-COOPER COLE,
Chairman, Department of Anthropology,
University of Chicago.

FROM CHESLY MANLY.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—It would be most presumptuous for a newspaper reporter to argue ethnological and anthropological matters with so eminent an authority as Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, but it is a well known fact that the outstanding men in the commercial, political, and social life of the Philippines are either mestizos or foreigners. I did not say that the Filipinos were improved "physically" by intermarriage. And it requires no anthropologist to detect that they are so improved mentally.

If authority is required, there is Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, no doubt known to Dr. Cole, who says it is a simple fact that the more educated and more educable Filipinos are of mixed blood. Mr. Quezon, the president, is part Spanish, and Mr. Osmena, the vice president, is part Chinese. Gen. Aguinaldo is of much purer Tagalog stock and any one who has ever talked with Aguinaldo knows that he has a naïveté of a child.

My dispatches from the Philippines were concerned primarily with political and economic conditions in their relation to the freedom experiment, and did not purport to be ethnological treatises. If Dr. Cole feels that I was prejudiced in any way, I respectfully suggest that he ask some senator or representative who went on the junket to Manila for his private and honest opinion of the Filipinos.

By his own impressive account in "Who's Who" Dr. Cole was employed by the Philippine bureau of science for six years and hence must be credited with the lofty impartiality of all scientists.

A RIFLE CONTRACT.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—The British rifle contract is not the only munitions deal with which the House of Morgan has been connected. In the early days of the civil war the elder J. P. Morgan, father of the present J. P., bought up a lot of Hall carbines that had been discarded by the government as obsolete and dangerous. He bought them from the government and sold them to Gen. Fremont without, of course, telling the latter about their origin. He dealt through an intermediary named Stevens, if I recollect, and the latter represented the carbines as perfect in every way. When they were put to use many of them exploded, injuring the soldiers who were using them.

Morgan's profit on the deal would have been over $100,000. But a howl was raised over what was designated as a swindle and the sum was cut to about a quarter of that amount. But Morgan, insisting on his pound of flesh, sued in the Court of Claims. They allowed him some $66,000 or more for the guns that Morgan had bought for about $17,000. The court allowed that much of the claim on the ground of the "sacredness of contracts."

J. P., then a young man in his late twenties, did not serve in the civil war. He did not even enlist. Perhaps he was afraid that he might be given one of his own carbines. But no doubt it was all squared up by the exceedingly pious introduction to his last will and testament.

SALARIES.

Kankakee, Ill., Jan. 10.—O, boy! Do we have money grubbers aplenty, as the publication of salaries of big shots reveals!

Banks cut interest rates, yet look at the salaries of the bank officials. Newspapers condemn spending of money on relief. Look at the salaries of newspaper upper class employés.

Yes, sir! F. D. is right. The money changers are with us, greedy as ever and howling at the down and outs. Nineteen thirty-six is going to be a real show-up of the gang who control 80 per cent of the wealth.

If you think F. D. is fading, cover the midwest as I do, not as your reporter does. He seeks to ascertain sentiment in clubs and similar spots where he can get what he seeks. I am an ex-Republican, but my eyes are now open. I shall do my bit gratis for F. D.

A. B. WILKY.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—The publishing of the salaries of the industrial leaders in the press is but a sinister move of the political Pharisees to create class hatred. Why not head the list with the income from all sources of F. D. Roosevelt and some of his supporters, such as Astor, etc.? It would prove interesting reading to those that hath not and show the hypocrisy of the "holier than thou."

Incidentally the press would be displaying a cleaner status by not publishing the list.

LEGISLATIVE QUIZ INTO MINNESOTA CRIME EXPECTED

Resolution Reported Out of Committee.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Legislative investigation of Minneapolis crime and of alleged "inefficiency and corruption in law enforcing agencies" was under consideration today in the lower house of the Minnesota legislature. At the same time a committee was told that "startling disclosures" may be expected in the Walter Liggett murder investigation, for which the legislature yesterday voted a $5,000 fund.

Resolution Reported Out.

A resolution which would authorize appointment of an interim commission of ten legislators to delve into "crime and lawlessness" was reported out of the house rules committee and sent to the appropriations committee. This committee will decide whether $10,000 should be provided.

The resolution was introduced in the house yesterday with the backing of the Minneapolis delegation. It was offered after the upper chamber rules committee had held up consideration of a resolution calling for a $100,000 investigation.

See Proposal Adopted.

Indications today were that the house proposal would be adopted. Principal objection to the senate measure came from rural members who declared that their constituents were averse to sharing the expense of "cleaning up Minneapolis."

As this move went forward, a new county grand jury started from where its predecessor left off with an investigation into Minneapolis conditions. The first phase of its inquiry was reported to be concerned with inquiring into liquor license abuses.

At the same time an aldermanic committee of seven began a study of the city's liquor ordinance with a view to revision.

DECATUR MAYOR AND CHIEF DENY ABETTING VICE

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Mayor Harry Barber and Chief of Police Jack Cooper pleaded not guilty today upon arraignment before Circuit Judge C. Y. Miller on a grand jury charge that they permitted gambling and vice to flourish in Decatur.

The two law enforcement officers were released to resume their official duties after five prominent citizens posted bonds of $4,000 for the mayor and $1,000 for the police chief.

State's Attorney Arthur O. Frazier, also under indictment in the grand jury's investigation of roadhouses and other places where immoralities and gambling allegedly existed, was not in court. His attorneys informed Judge Miller the prosecutor is in the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital in Chicago, where he underwent a throat operation.

Mayor Barber, popular as a song leader at luncheon club activities and a jeweler before he became head of Decatur's government in May, 1935, declared the jury's charges against him were unfair.

"This is the cleanest town in the state," he asserted. "My administration has been clean."

The mayor was surrendered to the sherif's office by Corporation Counsel W. J. Carey after service had been accepted on a capias issued for him and the police chief yesterday. Judge Miller said he would set a trial date for the two defendants later.

MARKET RIGGING TOLD BY CONVICT AT FRAUD TRIAL

William Turk, who last March was sentenced to serve eighteen months in prison for mail fraud, testified as a government witness yesterday against Leonard Rollnick and two codefendants in their mail fraud trial before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley. Rollnick, Ben Rubin of Cleveland, and Barney Lavin of Washington, D. C., are accused of using the mails to defraud in connection with four former Chicago brokerage houses they operated.

Turk admitted, under examination by Assistant United States Attorney Edmond Sullivan, that he rigged the market for the defendants in a manipulation of Mid Continental Public Service. He said he controled the market prices, at the defendants' direction, regulating the daily high, low, and close, and "pulling the plug" to wipe out the investor victims when he was given the word. The defendants allegedly sold this stock to investors or persuaded them to exchange good securities for it.

It was estimated by the government in opening statements that investors were swindled out of $1,000,000 by Rollnick and his associates.

CONVICT NAMED BY ANOTHER IN IOWA MURDER

Robert Kennedy, who is serving a 25 year sentence for robbery in the prison at Fort Madison, Ia., was named yesterday by a Joliet convict as the man who killed a youth at Ottumwa, Ia., last Nov. 18.

Sherif C. E. Harding of Ottumwa made this announcement yesterday after an interview at the Joliet penitentiary with Al Ross, who is serving a fifty year term for murder. The sherif left last night for Fort Madison to confront Kennedy with Ross' charge.

Ross told the sherif he believed the slain youth's name was Hale and that he was either from Kansas City, Mo., or Washington, Ia. He was slain, according to Ross, when Kennedy feared he had "learned too much." Ross said Kennedy struck the youth with a coupling pin, stabbed him, knotted a rope about his neck, and left the body under a pile of driftwood where it was found.

TRAVEL INDUSTRY LOOKS FORWARD TO BANNER YEAR

Winter Resorts Report Busy January.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

If the opinions of steamship, rail, hotel, and resort officials are worth anything, both the domestic and foreign travel industries are entering upon their banner year. These officials predict that 1936 will eclipse 1935, when 50,000,000 American vacationists took to the open road. They base their predictions on what the first two weeks of the year have brought forth.

January has seen the opening of the heaviest tourist season ever experienced by many of the "sun spots" in Florida and California. From New England to the Pacific coast 140 winter resorts are making a bid for the patronage of the snow and ice sportsmen, and they estimate their attendance at from 20 to 50 per cent above last year's.

San Diego Fair to Reopen.

Travel westward from Chicago this winter will be increased by the reopening of the California Pacific International exposition at San Diego. Originally set for today, the opening is now scheduled for Feb. 12. Fanchon and Marco will have three new shows at the fair, and among the new exhibits will be the government's $150,000 FHA display, the Palace of Better Housing, and Henry Ford's "March of Transportation," with relics from his Dearborn museum. The exposition will remain open until Sept. 9.

Another factor in augmenting western travel promises to be the Union Pacific-North Western's City of Denver. Placed in operation late in the spring, this new streamlined train is expected to maintain an average of 65½ miles an hour between Chicago and Denver. If it lives up to this expectation it will be able to lay claim to being the fastest long distance train in the world.

Other streamlined trains will make the runs between Chicago and the Pacific coast in 39 hours 45 minutes. That they will produce large gains in passenger trafic is indicated by the records hung up last year by the Hiawatha, the Twin Zephyrs, the 400, and other speedsters. The reduction in the running time of the crack trains between Chicago and the Florida resorts is given credit for a share of the gains scored by those resorts so far this winter. The total number of visitors there may go above the 2,000,000 mark before the end of the season.

Foreign Resorts Plan Big Year.

"Tourism throughout Europe, Africa, Australia, the near east, and the far east is increasing its facilities, reducing its rates, and polishing up its lures," Douglas Malcolm of the Travel Service said yesterday.

"Rhodes, the tourist mecca of the Mediterranean, this year is lowering its taxes, opening new hotels, and adding many attractions. The British Isles, which in the first ten months of last year had nearly 300,000 visitors, have extensive programs under way for 1936. The German activities, which will center around the Olympic games, will see the largest number of regional entertainments in German tourist history."

The Olympic games will be opened by the winter sports at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, in the Bavarian Alps, Feb. 6 to 16. They will reach their climax in the eleventh Olympiad, to be held in Berlin Aug. 1 to 16. Railroad fares to both festivals will be reduced 60 per cent.

Steamship Agencies Optimistic.

"Optimism in trans-Atlantic circles," Mr. Malcolm continued, "is in part explained by the healthy advance reservations for spring and summer, plus the 1935 record, which was approximately 40,000 more passengers carried in the first ten months than in the same period of 1934. While increases were reported in all types of eastbound ocean travel, the popularity of the medium priced accommodations exceeded that of any year since 1929. Now two European hotel associations have sent word of the heaviest American reservations for June in the last seven years.

"On this side of the Atlantic, coast to coast passenger trafic through the Panama canal last year surpassed all expectations, and capacity business is forecast for January and February of this year."

H. P. Borer, general passenger manager of Cunard-White Star, announced that in the first eleven months of 1935 his line carried 17 per cent more passengers from the United States to Europe than in the corresponding period of any previous year.

Sees End of Depression.

"In my opinion," said R. Stanley Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship lines, "the cycle of uncontrolable factors that has depressed business and human endeavor for the last five or six years has completed its course. The old alibis of 'stagnated markets,' 'overproduction,' and 'lack of purchasing power' are definitly stalemated. The dawn of 1936 finds the so-called uncontrolable factors in our economic life all in our favor. And my observation of conditions around the world, as gleaned from reports from our foreign offices, shows that this condition is true of other countries as well as our own."

Chicagoans on the move this week include a group of fourteen who will leave by rail today for Mexico City. After a four day stop there they will motor by way of Cuernavaca and Taxco to Acapulco, where they will board the California for a cruise down the Pacific to Balboa. Following the trip through the canal, they will visit Havana and then turn northward for the home stretch.

Members of the party are Mr. and Mrs. George Eckhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Eckhouse, Miss Anne Shatz, Mr. and Mrs. G. Gerschefske, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Goodkind and their daughter, Ann Louise; Miss Ruth Stahl, E. F. Simon, Frank Williams, and Mrs. M. Baumgarten. Aboard ship they will meet Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Frost, Mrs. E. M. Sueske, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Keebler, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Becker, who will sail on the California from San Francisco.

Spend Winter in Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Hyde are en route to Naples on the Vulcania. They will spend the rest of the winter traveling through Italy, and then will follow spring northward.

St. Moritz, in the Swiss Alps, is the objective of Mrs. Peter Hultcranz and her sister, Miss Mary Ethel Nelson, who plan to leave Saturday cn the Lafayette. They will devote a month to tobogganing, skiing, and snowshoeing. Franklin Day, also bound for St. Moritz, will embark the same day on the Laconia.

A winter tour of England, France, Switzerland, and Austria is on the schedule of the Misses Hazel and Margaret Kartes, Vivian Northrup, and Virginia Godvin, likewise leaving on the Laconia.

On the Washington when it leaves for Europe today will be Harry Morris, W. E. Dreschel, B. M. Karasick, the Rev. R. D. Goggin, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Beeter.

Ernest W. Sauerman of the Lake Shore Athletic club took passage on the General Lee Monday from Portland, Ore. He will spend six months in the orient, and then may continue around the world.

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

When will the international motor race for "the Grand Prix of Geneva" be held? B. J.

May 31. There will be accommodations for more than 100,000 spectators along the Quai Gustave-Ador at Geneva.

What was the origin of the expression, "As dead as the dodo," and where did such a bird exist? W. L. D.

Mauritius, a British island to the east of Madagascar, was the home of the now extinct dodo, a large pigeon with rudimentary wings. The passing of the bird led to the popular saying.

When will the Natchez pilgrimage be held this year? Will it be open to the public? V. M.

The fifth annual pilgrimage to the antebellum houses and estates is to be held March 27 to April 5, inclusive, and the public is invited. Further information may be obtained from the Natchez Garden club, Natchez, Miss.

Four knots.

Please give me the dates of some of the coming golf events at Del Monte, in California. A. R.

The Washington birthday tournament will be held Feb. 22, the international golf team championship March 9 to 15; the Pacific coast winter championship March 23 to 28, and the Pebble Beach women's championship March 4 to 8.

I have been told that a new liner will be placed in service soon between The Netherlands and America. What can you tell me about it? C. G. N.

The liner, now known only as No. 200, will be launched next year by the Holland-America line and placed in service in the spring of 1938. Its length is to be 750 feet; its weight, 33,000 tons.

Where in Mexico is the pillar marking the place where Emperor Maximilian was shot? H. P.

In a little chapel in Queretaro. The emperor was shot there in June, 1867, thus ending an effort to set up royalty in America. A wreath of artificial flowers rests on the shaft.

Charges Doctor Crippled Him in Fight Over Rent

Dr. F. L. Heck, 1425 Juneway terrace, was charged yesterday with using his knowledge of anatomy to cripple Ray R. Hemingway temporarily during a struggle on April 2, 1935, in the doctor's office at 1607 Howard street. The charge was made in a suit for $20,000 filed against Dr. Heck in the Circuit court by Attorney Glenn Thomson on behalf of Hemingway, who is a realty man. The dispute between the two men arose over a claim for back rent which Hemingway sought to collect, Attorney Thomson said.

NEW COSMIC RAY TESTS PLANNED BY DR. COMPTON

U. of C. Expert to Experiment at Sea.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, noted University of Chicago physicist, and Nobel prize winner, said yesterday that he would depart Friday for Vancouver, B. C., on an experiment to determine the entire range of the cosmic ray variations at sea level.

At Vancouver Dr. Compton will install a cosmic ray meter in the S. S. Orangi, a steamship of the Canadian Australasian line, which plies between Vancouver and Sidney, Australia.

Will Accompany Meter.

Dr. Compton will accompany the boat to Honolulu, and there await its return from Australia.

It has been found that the intensity of the cosmic ray varies on both sides of the equator. The nature of this phenomenon will be studied on the recordings of the ray meter, Dr. Compton said.

Other Meters Ready.

Two other meters are at the university, awaiting shipment to Mexico City and Greenland. Four others are now at the Carnegie institute in Cheltenham, Md.; Huancayo observatory, Peru, the town of Christ Church, New Zealand, and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Within two months two other methods of studying the cosmic ray will be completed by Dr. Compton's assistants, he said.

ACTRESS ASKS COURT TO ANNUL MARRIAGE AND CITES HER YOUTH

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Doris Dudley, stage and screen actress, appealed to Referee John M. Tierney today for an annulment of her marriage to Theodore Kurrus whom she married in 1932 when she was but 14 years old.

The plaintif, who is the daughter of Bide Dudley, former newspaper man and radio commentator, said she and Kurrus were married by a justice of the peace at Brewster and that they have a son who has not yet been formally christened and whom they have called Skipper. The referee raised his eyebrows at this information and said he regarded it as "most unusual."

Miss Dudley seeks the annulment on the ground that she was under the legal age for marriage in 1932 and that furthermore her husband has not maintained her since they separated two years ago.

Miss Dudley explained that she was starting for Hollywood tomorrow and Referee Tierney who reserved decision on her application, said he wished her success.

In winter, according to the Weather Bureau, the Far Southwest is the sunniest area in all the United States. In the heart of this brilliant land, Old Sol sheds mellow winter gold for 80% to 90% of the daylight hours. It is here you will find the famous winter resorts and ranches in and round-about Phoenix, Castle Hot Springs and Wickenburg, Arizona, and the desert oasis of Palm Springs, California.

● So, this winter—fine Santa Fe service to Palm Springs; special Phoenix Pullmans again on The Chief; and daily air-conditioned trains to all the Southwest.

Safety is not a dream

The press of the country has acquainted the public with the shocking facts about automobile accidents. And the public has deplored the country's record of sudden death and worse than death.

To promote street and highway safety there is need for more than public lamentation. It needs the conscientious observance of common-sense practices of driving and walking—practices that are founded on the simple truth that haste breeds accidents.

It needs the impartial, continuous, intelligent efforts of police and courts to enforce traffic laws, and the whole-hearted support of the public in behalf of such action. In the maintenance of enforcement agencies the public is paying for protection to life and property, whether that protection is secured or not.

A few cities can boast of substantial progress in automobile accident prevention. In these communities, speed limits are enforced, traffic lights and other protective devices and measures are respected, and widespread "fixing" of arrest tickets has become a thing of the past.

These cities have saved lives by reducing their accidents. They have demonstrated that street and highway safety is not a dream.

Whether 1936 will record 36,000 or more automobile accident deaths, a million persons injured, and an economic loss of untold millions of dollars, depends largely upon how many communities effectively employ methods that are getting results.

Greater safety on street and highway can be achieved.

7 FACTS SUPPORT MIAMI BEACH'S PROSPERITY SAGA

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Contemplating last year, which saw municipalities the nation over struggling futilely to keep out of the red, Miami Beach today agreed prosperity unquestionably had turned the corner.

In proof thereof it submitted these facts:

1. New construction in 1935 totaled $9,487,345, the highest in the last decade, surpassed only by New York, Chicago, Washington, Detroit, Los Angeles, Cincinnati, and Detroit.

List Buildings Constructed.

2. Buildings constructed included 23 new hotels, costing initially $1,751,500; also 271 new residences costing $3,100,480, or an average of $11,440 each; apartment buildings costing $2,000,000; schools costing $525,000; theaters and supper clubs costing nearly $500,000—housing accommodations in all for an estimated 7,000 persons.

3. The city's credit was so good it retired $471,000 worth of municipal bonds, not due until 1953, saving taxpayers $491,000. In the five depression years since 1930, the city's bonded debt has been reduced $1,750,000, or 31 per cent.

Proud of Balance Sheet.

4. At the end of the 1934-'35 fiscal year, Oct. 31, the city's balance sheet showed assets of $7,547,059 against liabilities of $4,290,014.

5. The 1934-'35 tax assessment roll was 99.18 per cent collected Oct. 31, and year's end found the 1935-'36 taxes—due Nov. 1 but not delinquent until April 1 this year—58 per cent collected.

No Relief Grants.

6. Not once last year did the city have to ask Uncle Sam for relief money. The city's residents found almost continuous employment on privately financed projects and municipal construction.

7. The city's permanent population has more than doubled in five years. The 1930 census gave it 6,494 year 'round residents; the state census of 1935 showed 13,330. It has accommodations, furthermore, for just about twice as many winter visitors—50,000 this year as against 25,000 or 30,000 in 1930. Too, those accommodations are pretty well filled, with the season just getting under way.

TRUCK AND AUTO CRASH HEADON AT GARY; ONE KILLED

Driver on PWA Project Flees; Is Arrested.

J. A. Jamison, radio dealer in Logansport, Ind., was fatally injured, and Maurice Barrett, also of Logansport, incurred a skull fracture and internal injuries yesterday in a head-on collision between the automobile in which they were riding and a truck used on a PWA project near Gary on Ridge road at the western city limits of Gary. Jamison died a few hours later in Methodist hospital at Gary.

Charles Bumbales, 3401 Delaware street, Gary, driver of the truck, fled after the accident to a nearby patch of woods where he was arrested by Gary police. Dr. Maxwell Herschlader, police physician, examined him and reported that he had been drinking.

Killed by Hit-Run Driver.

Harry Flood, 48 years old, 4307 North Newcastle avenue, Norwood Park township, a WPA laborer, was killed last night when he was struck by a hit-and-run motorist as he was crossing Forest Preserve drive near Oak Park avenue in Norwood Park township. The Morton Grove county highway police said there were no witnesses to the accident but that residents in the vicinity heard the screeching of brakes and Flood's cry of alarm just before he was struck.

Leo Williams, 40 years old, of Joliet, died in St. Joseph's hospital there yesterday of injuries incurred on Monday when his truck collided in Joliet with the automobile of Howard Hyde, Joliet township assessor. Williams was the father of six children.

County Toll Goes to 48.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 48 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In the same period 41 were killed and 580 injured within the Chicago city limits.

Other Cook county trafic deaths yesterday:

Fred Kliveshal, 55 years old, 3816 North Damen avenue. Died in the Alexian Brothers hospital of injuries incurred Christmas eve at Diversey parkway and Ashland avenue, when he was struck by the automobile of Dr. Charles Siler, 52 years old, 524 Forest avenue, Oak Park, a physician.

Theodore Thorson, 47 years old, of Mount Prospect. Struck by hit-and-run driver in front of 1305 North Clark street. Died in the Henrotin hospital.

Mansfield Olund, 48 years old, 4821 Newport avenue, a chauffeur, was critically injured last night when he was struck by a northbound street car as he started to drive his automobile into the Ambassador garage, 1331 North Clark street. Olund was taken to the Henrotin hospital with a fractured neck bone.

Five Hurt in Crash.

Catherine Walsh, 21 years old, 139 South Whipple street, and her sister, Anna, 19 years old, were seriously injured and three men suffered lesser injuries in the collision of two automobiles early today in Jackson boulevard, near Kedzie avenue. The Walsh sisters were riding with William Grimes, 25 years old, 4826 Harrison street, in an automobile driven by Wilson Massey, 23 years old, 2149 Congress street.

The driver of the other car was Daniel Carren, 38 years old, 1113 South Halsted street. Police said Massey was driving on the wrong side of the street when the accident occurred.

TRUCK DRIVERS LAUDED AS U. S. ROAD GENTLEMEN

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The average motorist could take lessons in safe driving and highway manners from truck drivers, Dr. Miller McClintock told the Society of Automotive Engineers today.

The director of the bureau of street trafic research at Harvard university, in a speech prepared for delivery before a session of the engineers' thirty-first annual convention, declared that truck drivers "now are the gentlemen of the road."

"The engineer's job is to produce a roadway as safe for motor cars as the modern railway roadbed is for modern train travel," Dr. McClintock said, and predicted that this ultimately would be accomplished.

Complete physical separation of trafic moving in opposite directions [instead of the painted center line in general use now], segregation of passenger cars and trucks, grade crossing elimination for all intersectional trafic, and lanes for deceleration approaching exits were among his safety suggestions.

JIRKA CRITICIZES ILLINOIS RURAL HEALTH SERVICE

Farmers Told State Is Backward.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—The backwardness of Illinois in establishing efficient public health departments for rural service has been responsible for the fact that rural areas, once havens of health, are now lagging behind urban centers in health conditions and standards, declared Dr. Frank J. Jirka, state director of public health, at today's meeting of the annual farm and home week now in progress at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

Since very few rural areas are able to provide adequate and efficient health protection, it will be necessary for the state to participate if the needed health departments are established, Dr. Jirka pointed out.

Illinois is one of the 14 states in which none of the rural population is served by local health departments under the direction of full time health officers, Dr. Jirka reported.

C. A. Hughes, farm adviser of Monroe county has been reëlected president of the Farm Advisers' association. E. A. Bierbaum, Union county, was reëlected secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Florence Day, home adviser of Macon county, was elected president of the home advisers' group. Mrs. Ruth Buckner, Iroquois county, was elected vice-president, and Mrs. Esther K. Thor, Tazwell county, secretary-treasurer.

GUN FOUND NEAR PRIGNANO HOME; MURDER WEAPON?

Supervising Police Captain John Stege announced last night the discovery of a pistol which he believes was used to kill State Representative Albert J. Prignano last Dec. 29 in front of the Prignano home at 722 Bunker street. Capt. Stege said children found the gun in the alley behind 740 Bunker street.

At Springfield an unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday to bring about a legislative inquiry into Prignano's assassination. Representative Clinton Searle of Rock Island asked the inquiry, but Speaker John Devine refused to allow Searle's resolution to be read, and it was tabled.

A coroner's jury heard details of the assassination from Prignano's widow and his chauffeur, Victor Galanti, in a brief session at the county morgue and returned a verdict of "murder by person or persons unknown."

Efforts to link the slaying Monday night of Eugene Belmonte, alias James Mirabelle, with the Prignano murder received a setback when Prignano's chauffeur, Galanti, viewed Belmonte's body and said he did not recognize it as that of one of the men who slew Prignano.

Rebel Protestant Bishop Reinstated by Nazi Leader

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Bishop Otto Zaenker, militant Protestant confessional bishop of Breslau, who was suspended recently for violation of church decrees, has been reinstated, it was disclosed tonight. At the time Bishop Zaenker's suspension was disclosed, ecclesiastical sources said the action was due to his examination of theological students in defiance of a ruling reserving this power to officials chosen by Hans Kerrl, Nazi church dictator.

Order Officials Seized in Plot to Kill Bulgar King

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A military court ordered tonight the arrest of Col. Krum Koleff, a former government minister, and other high army officers after a witness at a secret military trial testified they were implicated in a plot to assassinate King Boris Oct. 3. The testimony came at the trial of Damyan Velcheff, Gen. Vladimir Zainoff, and 25 others accused as plotters against the king. It began Dec. 18.

200 STORES PLAN BIG DOLLAR DAY FOR TOMORROW

State Street Prepares for Record Throngs.

Final touches are being placed on the preparation for Dollar day tomorrow on State street, the first major sales event of 1936 for 200 merchants along the shopping thoroughfare, Walter L. Gregory, president of the State Street council, announced yesterday.

Crews of workmen began last night to decorate the street in dark green and magenta red, the official colors for the day. Through tunnels far below them merchandise gathered from all parts of the country was being moved into place beside countless standard articles of stock sharply reduced in price for the event.

Many Drilled in New Duties.

Meanwhile extra sales employés were being instructed in their tasks of bringing the shoppers and bargains together, while the transportation companies were mobilizing their equipment to carry the expected throngs, and police were being drilled in the special work of keeping vehicular and pedestrian trafic moving smoothly.

"It is no exaggeration," Mr. Gregory declared, "to say that this sales event will be the biggest and best in the history of State street, weather permitting. Yearly more and more people are learning of the rare buying opportunities afforded by Chicago's big Dollar days, so each one is naturally expected to be better attended than the previous one.

Broken Lines Afford Bargains.

"Then, too, because of the improvement in retail sales and the consequent accumulation of broken lines, outstanding bargains are especially numerous this year. There is no Chicagoan but who can visit with profit one of the 200 participating merchants at some time after the sale gets under way at 9 a. m. Thursday."

Condemned Killer's Sister Held to Jury for Perjury

Miss Martha Rappaport was held to the grand jury in $5,000 bonds by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court yesterday on a charge of perjury. Mrs. Estelle Cohen was bound over in $2,000 bonds on a charge of subornation of perjury. The charges grew out of the women's allegedly false alibi testimony in behalf of Joseph Rappaport, Martha's brother, under sentence of death for the murder last Oct. 8 of Max Dent, government informer who was to have testified against Rappaport in a narcotics case.

DOGS KILL 55 SHEEP.

Atkinson, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Dogs are blamed for the slaughter of 55 sheep, found dead on the Lester Boomer farm here yesterday. Fifteen other sheep were injured.

PERSIA STARTS CO-ED SCHOOL SYSTEM IN DRIVE TO WESTERNIZE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEHERAN, Iran [Persia], Jan. 14.—Iran, which for ages has attended more strictly to the veiling of its women than any other Mohammedan country, now is to have co-ed schools. This is probably the most daring step yet taken by the westward looking régime of King Riza Kahn Pahlevi.

For the present, under the orders of the American educated minister of education, boys and girls of 7 and under will attend school together. The age limit will be raised every year, however, to 16, the age at which girls may marry under the new law. Previously, under the Koranic law, girls married at less than 10 years of age. The new law also sets the marriage age for men at 18.

School girls now go unveiled to their classes, and the women teachers, likewise, do not hide their beauty. To encourage unveiling, government offices are offering positions to girls who have put aside their veils. Training classes are being conducted for girls who wish to enter the post-office and telegraph offices.

PLEADS GUILTY TO AX ATTACK ON YOUNGER SISTER

Mount Vernon, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Arraigned in Circuit court late today, Mrs. Ruth Laird, 34 year old Mount Vernon widow, pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with intent to murder her sister, Margaret Cummins, 17, with an ax.

Sentence was deferred pending the outcome of Miss Cummins' injuries. While her condition remained critical, hospital attendants reported that she continued to gain strength.

Mrs. Laird allegedly confessed to Jefferson county authorities last week that she struck her sister with the ax because the younger girl refused to accompany her to church and made fun of her, "saying I was not a Christian."

POLAND HONORS CHICAGO PRIESTS; AWARDS MEDALS

The Rev. Casimir Gronkowski, pastor of St. Adalbert's Roman Catholic church, 17th and Paulina streets, and the Rev. Casimir Sztuczko of the Holy Cross Order, who is pastor of the Holy Trinity Roman Catholic church, Noble and Chapin streets, have been awarded special insignia of honor by Poland for their work in education, religion, charity, and social welfare.

Announcement of the awards was made yesterday by Consul General Waclaw Gawronski of Poland upon receipt of two gold medals of merit from the Polish ambassador at Washington. The medals will be bestowed later in special ceremonies.

Both priests have previously received the decoration of Polonia Restituta, which was given them personally by Jan Ignace Paderewski when he was premier of Poland. Father Gronkowski has also been made an honorary canon of the Cathedral of Lwow Capitula or Chapter, an unusual distinction for any priest living in this country.

FORMER ACTRESS DROPS DIVORCE AGAINST GETTY

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen Ann Rork Getty, former movie actress, dropped her divorce suit today against Jean Paul Getty, oil man.

Attorney W. I. Gilbert, in filing for dismissal, said there had been no reconciliation. Mrs. Getty had asked a share in the community property she estimated at $20,000,000.

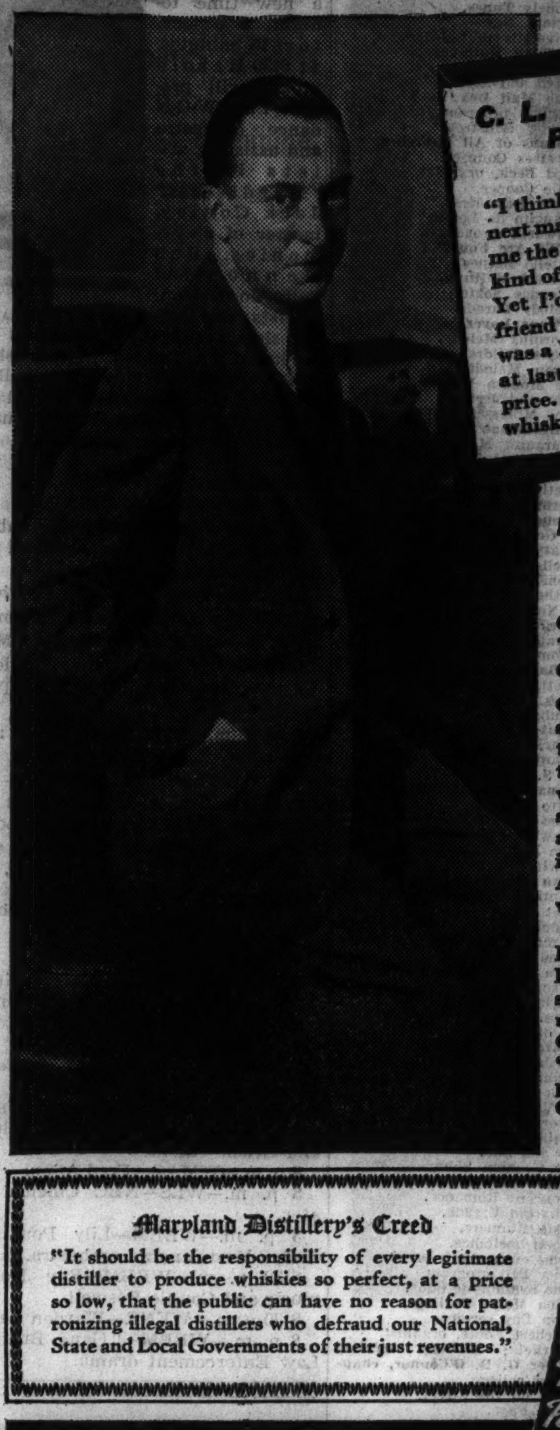
Several months ago it was unofficially reported Mrs. Getty agreed to a settlement giving her $1,500 monthly, and $500 a month for each of her two sons.

TWO FINED ON COAL CHARGES.

Claude Saulsbury of Morris was fined $50 yesterday by Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden on a charge of delivering coal in Chicago without a weighmaster's certificate. Luvern Anderson, also of Morris, was fined $25 on the same charge.

IT COSTS MORE TO PRODUCE BLENDED WHISKEY

WHISKEY PRICES RUBBED HIM THE WRONG WAY



C. L. Vreeland, 5120 Locust Street, Philadelphia, has good news for thrifty folk.

"I think I'm as good a judge of whiskey value as the next man," writes Mr. Vreeland. "And it sure rubbed me the wrong way to pay today's fancy prices for the kind of whiskey I enjoy and like to serve in my home. Yet I'd probably have gone right on doing it if a friend hadn't told me about Old Drum. That sure was a happy day for me. Old Drum showed me that at last I could get old time whiskey at an old time price. Whenever any of my friends complain about whiskey prices, I tell them about Old Drum."

Amazing Whiskey Smells and Tastes Like Whiskies Costing 40% More

Old Drum Winning New Thousands Everywhere on Quality and Value Alone!

Old Drum—the whiskey sensation that is sweeping the country! Voted in nation-wide palate poll to be worth 40% more than it sells for. Bringing a "drinkable" whiskey at a "centsible" price! Winning all America on quality and value alone!

Get acquainted with Old Drum—the low priced whiskey that's distilled from the same top quality grains used for costliest whiskies. Compare it with any "straight" or "blend" in its price class. "You can't beat Old Drum"!

Maryland Distillery's Creed

"It should be the responsibility of every legitimate distiller to produce whiskies so perfect, at a price so low, that the public can have no reason for patronizing illegal distillers who defraud our National, State and Local Governments of their just revenues."

COLD?
Do These 2 Things
Instantly!

(A Simple Method that Anybody Can Follow)

1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

2. If throat is sore, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets in 1/3 glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness instantly.

The pictured directions above show perhaps the quickest, simplest and most modern method yet discovered to combat cold and sore throat.

Your own doctor will approve this way. Millions of people have discarded "cold killers" and patent nostrums for this modern way. It relieves the average cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Note that all you do is this.

Three Bayer Aspirin tablets, crushed and dissolved in 1/3 glass of water as a gargle. Gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back to permit this medicated gargle to reach the irritated membranes of the throat.

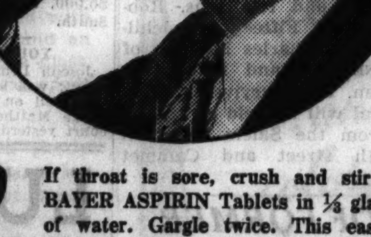
The Bayer Aspirin you take internally acts to fight a cold almost instantly. AND — eases the aches and pains that accompany most colds.

The gargle acts instantly like a local anesthetic to soothe the pains in the throat and to ease throat irritation.

Try this way. You will be amazed at how quickly you can ease a cold. Be sure, though, to get Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN. They dissolve almost instantly in the stomach. Hence start working almost instantly. And also, dissolve thoroughly enough in water for use as a gargle.

Why BAYER Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water.



By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach — Genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

HARRY E. KELLY, VETERAN CHICAGO LAWYER, IS DEAD

Harry Eugene Kelly, lawyer and civic leader, died of heart disease yesterday morning at the home of his son, William M. Kelly, in Woodstock. Mr. Kelly, who was 65 years old, had been in poor health recently, but visited his office in Chicago as usual on Monday.

HARRY E. KELLY.

He was born in Des Moines, Ia., and studied at the University of Iowa, University of Chicago and University of Colorado. As a young man he edited a newspaper and taught school in southern Illinois. He started practicing law in Colorado in 1900, and was United States attorney at Denver from 1912 to 1914.

Once Attorney for I. C. C.

After serving as an attorney for the interstate commerce commission in Washington for two years, he came to Chicago in 1916 where he served as regional counsel for the federal railroad administration in 1920 and 1921. He was general counsel and a director of the Northwestern Refrigerator Line company and the Western Refrigerator Line company.

As chairman of the public affairs committee of the Union League club, Mr. Kelly took a prominent part in obtaining a special grand jury to investigate the school board scandals under a former Republican mayor.

A Leader in Fight on Crime.

Again, in 1926, Mr. Kelly headed a move to have a special grand jury investigate crime in Chicago, following the gang murder of Assistant State's Attorney William McSwiggin.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning in Woodstock. Mr. Kelly is survived by his widow, Mrs. Edna Smalley Kelly, and two sons, William M. and W. A. Kelly.

EDWIN A. POTTER, FORMER CHICAGO BANKER, IS DEAD

Edwin Augustus Potter, former Chicago banker, died yesterday at his home in Winter Park, Fla., after a brief illness. He was 93 years old. Mr. Potter moved to Florida twenty years ago from his home in Lake Geneva, Wis., where he lived for several years after his retirement from business in 1912.

He was born in Bath, Me., the son of William Potter, lumberman and shipbuilder, whose ancestors settled in New England in colonial times. Mr. Potter came to Chicago in 1872 as manager of a branch of his father's business.

Seven years later he joined the china and glass firm of French, Potter & Wilson, which was dissolved in 1889. Mr. Potter then engaged in the manufacture of pianos until 1898, when he assisted in the organization of the American Trust and Savings bank which he served as president until 1912.

Mr. Potter formerly was a director of the old Continental and Commercial National bank and the Continental Commercial Trust and Savings bank.

RALPH G. HOWELL DEAD IN AURORA; FUNERAL TODAY

Funeral services for Ralph Gray Howell, former secretary and treasurer of the Aurora Cooperage company, will be held this morning in the chapel at 332 Downer place, Aurora. Interment will be in Riverside cemetery. Mr. Howell, who was 68 years old, died Monday night at his home, 460 Iowa avenue, Aurora. He had been ill with a heart ailment for several months. Before his retirement 15 years ago, Mr. Howell had been an official of the cooperage company for 25 years. He also served as treasurer of the Aurora club of the Wisconsin-Illinois baseball league. Surviving him are his widow, Frances, and two children.

Funeral for Lee Spratlin Tomorrow; Ex-Rail Leader

Funeral services for Lee W. Spratlin, former railroad official, who died on Sunday at Fort Myers, Fla., will be held tomorrow in Omaha, Neb. Mr. Spratlin, who was 63 years old, lived at the Belden Stratford hotel here, but had been spending the winters at Fort Myers. He was an official of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad for many years and later served as assistant to the president of the Milwaukee railroad, retiring five years ago. Mr. Spratlin is survived by his widow, Kathryn.

BEG YOUR PARDON

It was incorrectly stated in an item yesterday on the death of Ernest Bihl, former alderman, that his widow, Amanda, survived him. She died eight years ago. Mr. Bihl's second wife, Bertha, is a survivor. Mr. Bihl served as alderman of the old Thirty-third ward from 1900 to 1908, not 1902 to 1910, as stated.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Family complications apparently have done the same thing to the Boswell sisters that they did to Clara, Lu, 'n' 'Em. The three gossiping girls, who have been earning $75,000 a year as a team, are retiring this week to look after husbands and babies.

The Boswells haven't been working as a radio team all season. Other day it leaked out that all of them had acquired husbands in recent months and that may have had something to do with the quietus on their radio activities. Connie, of course, is still soloist with Ray Noble on his sponsored broadcast.

It may be that the vogue for radio harmony teams is a little on the decline. If you were asked offhand to name the outstanding close harmonists on the air you might have to pause and think for some time. A few years ago no musical program was complete without one. In addition to the Boswells there were the Mills Brothers, Revelers, Men About Town, Pickens Sisters, the X Sisters, the Norsemen, the Merriemen, the King's Jesters, the Doring Sisters, the Morin Sisters, the Cadets, and a flock of others.

Several of these are still popular, but the spotlight seems to find them less often nowadays than three years ago. The Dorings have their following hereabouts, as do the Morins; the Pickenses still have a spot on NBC; the Mills Brothers recently played a 13 weeks' engagement locally without exciting much attention.

The only news the Revelers have made in a year or two was when Hitler asked them to confine themselves to the marches he picked out for them or leave Germany. So they came home.

The evolution of the King's Jesters is interesting. Originally they were three singers with Paul Whiteman—Bing Crosby among them. When Crosby left another trio was given the label and when they left Whiteman they got permission to keep the name. That trio has now become a seven piece rhythm band which alternates nightly with a bigger band at the Terrace room of the Morrison hotel. That band has been Enric Madriguera's, but tonight will be supplanted by Little Jack Little. Little has been expanding, too, not unlike the Jesters. He formerly was a one man entertainer, but several years ago organized an orchestra.

One of the newer harmony teams is "Betty, Jean, and Jim," a threesome of young Chicagoans currently featured on the Penthouse Serenade program with Charlie Gaylord's orchestra and Jack Fulton, tenor. A point in their favor: They have a little more contrast in their voices than some of the others.

For the first time in history CBS reports all its available early night time hours sold from Sunday through Saturday. Not a single evening spot is available for a new advertiser unless some one else quits. . . . Eddie Duchin is back on that gasoline show, apparently indicating that the sponsor did not find "Jumbo" so colossal as anticipated. . . . Jane Froman and Ruth Etting, who last year were probably radio's two most popular songstresses but this year have been working in Hollywood, will make personal appearances at the Palace beginning Friday and Feb. 7, respectively.

John Barrymore is to put on an act during Bing Crosby's show tomorrow night. . . . NBC announcers used to have a fancy closet at Radio City studios. Other day the door was closed and a memorandum was displayed. It read: "This room has been assigned to wind machines instead of announcers."

MRS. MARY OLSON IS DEAD AT 86; IN CITY FOR 67 YEARS

Mrs. Mary Olson, 86 years old, died yesterday after a long illness at the home of a daughter, Mrs. William Ecklund, 6716 Merrill avenue. Born in Sunsholm, Sweden, on Aug. 14, 1849, Mrs. Olson came to Chicago 67 years ago, and had resided on the south side since then. She was the widow of Andrew Olson, who died about 19 years ago.

Mrs. Olson was a member of the Linnea and Swedish Old People's Aid societies, and had belonged to the Salem Lutheran church for 56 years. She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Clarence F. Bartlett, Mrs. Ecklund, Mrs. Hilda Grable, and Mrs. John Webster, and two sons, Robert and Andrew. Fifteen grandchildren, the oldest, Charles Bartlett, of THE TRIBUNE staf, and four great grandchildren, also survive.

The funeral will be held at 3 p. m. Saturday from the Salem Lutheran church, 74th street and Calumet avenue.

GROUP IN HOUSE TO STUDY LUNG DISEASE DEATHS

Subcommittee Appointed for Hearings.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—An investigation of the "silicosis" deaths reported in connection with the Gauley bridge, W. Va., tunnel construction was projected today by the house labor committee.

A subcommittee was named to hold hearings on a measure by Representative Marcantonio [Rep., N. Y.] authorizing a labor department inquiry.

Asserts 476 Dead.

Chairman Connery [Dem., Mass.] said that while he was not fully acquainted with the West Virginia situation, the sub-committee, in considering the Marcantonio resolution, could go into the case itself.

The preamble of Marcantonio's resolution said that 476 tunnel workers employed by the Rinehart & Dennis company, contractors for the New Kanawha Power company, Union Carbide and Carbon company subsidiary, "have from time to time died from silicosis contracted while employed in digging out a tunnel at Gauley bridge, West Virginia."

Report 1,500 Ill.

It adds that 1,500 more are suffering from the disease so contracted. The disease is a lung ailment contracted from breathing powdered silica.

Representative Griswold [Dem., Ind.] was named chairman of the labor sub-committee.

WM. H. WHEELER DIES; PUBLISHER AND TEXT WRITER

William Henry Wheeler, 81 years old, founder and president of the Wheeler Publishing company and author of widely used school books, died yesterday in his home at 4597 Oakenwald avenue. His death, following an illness of three months, occurred on the fourth anniversary of his wife's death.

W. H. WHEELER.

Wheeler had been a resident of Chicago for 55 years. He was the author of the well known Wheeler Literary readers and of the Wheeler Primer used many years ago. He was coauthor with Burton Holmes of a set of educational travel books for schools.

Born in Litchfield, Mich., he began his career as a teacher in the public schools at Sturgis, Mich., and was superintendent of schools in Warsaw, Ind. at the age of 22. Entering the school book business in 1880 as a representative of D. Appleton & Co., he organized his own company in 1897 and remained its president until his death.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today from his home. Burial will be at Quincy, Mich., beside the body of his wife, Lillie. Surviving Wheeler are two sons, Edgar and Harold, who were associated with him in business.

HAVERKAMPF JR. LEAVES FAMILY $700,000 ESTATE

The will of John L. Haverkampf Jr., distributing an estate estimated at $706,000 among his widow, Mrs. Grace O. Haverkampf, 3750 Lake Shore drive, and two children, was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge. Mr. Haverkampf, real estate broker, died last Dec. 31. He was 62 years old.

Other wills filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin:

PAULINE S. KAASE, died Dec. 14. Estate, $15,000, to husband, daughter, three sons, two grandsons, and granddaughter. Herbert E. Kaase, executor.

EMMA T. MORRIS, died Dec. 21. Estate, $5,000, to daughter and executrix, Nina N. Smith.

YOUTH GETS SIX MONTHS.

Joseph Demel, 22 years old, 3018 Taylor street, was sentenced to six months in the Bridewell on a charge of petty larceny by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the Felony court yesterday.

Two Sisters in the News

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Frank S. Sims (left) and her sister, Miss Caroline McNair, are members of the ladies' aid society of the Passavant Memorial hospital which is having its annual benefit on April 17. Mrs. Sims also is the newly elected president of the Service club. Miss McNair's marriage to Glendon Gerlach will take place on the 22d of this month.

Miss Hutchins Is Engaged to John Borland

Fourth Cousins and Friends Since Childhood.

BY JUDITH CASS.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES C. HUTCHINS of 1450 Astor street announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara, to John Jay Borland II., son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Borland of 1425 Astor street, is the formal and brief announcement that tells of the engagement to be married of two young people who have known each other since babyhood and who are fourth cousins. Their families, of course, have been friends for years and Mrs. Borland is a godmother of her son's fiancée.

Mrs. Hutchins was Margaret Keep and her mother, Mrs. Chauncey Keep, was Mary Blair, daughter of Lyman Blair and cousin of Harriet Blair, who married John Jay Borland and was Bruce Borland's mother. Mrs. John Jay Borland died two years ago last September, the last of the six children of Chauncey Blair, one of Chicago's pioneer merchants and capitalists. Mrs. Bruce Borland was Dorothy Fuller and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Fuller, live at 209 Lake Shore drive.

Mrs. Bruce Borland and Miss Hutchins' other godmother, Mrs. George R. Nochols Jr., entertained at a dinner-dance at the Casino for the debutante during December; Miss Hutchins also was an especial guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland and Miss Martha Borland, her fiancé's uncle and aunt and cousin, at a dinner-dance which they gave at the Casino for Miss Hutchins and Miss Harriet Welling and Miss Barbara Stanley.

Miss Hutchins was educated at St. Timothy's at Catonsville, Md., and at Miss Stout's European Traveling school. She has a younger sister, Margaret, and a brother, Chauncey Keep Hutchins.

Mr. Borland, who also has a younger brother, William Fuller Borland, prepared for Harvard at the Choate school. He was graduated from college in 1933. No date for the wedding has been set.

The first ones to be told of the engagement were close friends of the two families who gathered in the Hutchins' home for tea yesterday. The announcement did not come as a great surprise, of course, for young Mr. Borland has been a favored beau of lovely Miss Hutchins since her subdeb days, but congratulations and best wishes were all the more sincere and hearty for that very reason. Miss Hutchins is one of the most charming young women among this winter's debutantes and Mr. Borland is an immensely popular young man.

First Debutante to Become Engaged.

Miss Hutchins is the first of the debutantes of the season just past to become engaged. One other is married, the former Mary Armstrong, but she never was engaged formally, for she and Arthur C. Swallow Jr. of Milwaukee eloped during the Christmas holidays.

Miss Hutchins' formal presentation took place at home at the first of the debut teas in town, and later, during the holiday season, she shared with Miss Cornelia Ranney the distinction of being the especial guests at a ball given by Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins and Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ranney at the Blackstone.

Announce Engagement of Helen Barkhausen.

More romantic news is being revealed this morning in the announcement that Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Barkhausen of 1430 Lake Shore drive are making of the engagement of their daughter, Helen Strong, to Andre James Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Perry of Fond du Lac, Wis.

Miss Barkhausen's intimate friends already know of the engagement, and they are looking forward to the day when they will be able to congratulate the young man in person, for he is not in Chicago now. The Barkhausens, who moved here from Green Bay, Wis., eight years ago, have a summer home at Harbor Point, Mich.

Miss Barkhausen is a graduate of the Baldwin school at Bryn Mawr and of Vassar. She has a younger sister, Kate, who is a student at the Girls' Latin school, and a brother, Henry Noyes Barkhausen, who is in his senior year at Yale.

Stock's Program Should End Chicago's Inferiority Complex

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Chicago was the capital of the world of music for forty-five minutes yesterday. It took approximately that length of time for Frederick Stock and the orchestra to highlight one by one the beauties of the Seventh Symphony.

All of Beethoven's profound elation was there [the two words are not antithetical when applied to the A Major Symphony], all of his virtuoso delight in displaying on so large a scale his calmly competent grasp of form in the face of such remarkable fertility of idea.

There is not a suggestion of the grayness of age from one end of the work to the other. If you believed your ears rather than the facts you were taught in that limited credit course in music appreciation you would know that Beethoven finished the Seventh Symphony about the end of last week instead of a century and a quarter ago.

This is a good time for a blast against Chicago's artistic inferiority complex and the belief of too many of its citizens that resident organizations belong of necessity to a lower order of things than those of some eastern and European cities. It takes very little courage to come right out in meeting today and announce the conviction that yesterday's performance of the Seventh Symphony could be equaled by not more than four orchestras in the world and could be excelled by—but why not leave that for another time?

The wise discourse of strings filled the first quarter hour of the concert, when Bach's optimistic Third Brandenburg Concerto offered another happy opportunity to exult a bit in the superb sanity and beauty of tone of this section of the orchestra. Stock has worked tirelessly to perfect it; the successful issue of his labors is the most important single factor in the orchestra's greatness.

The only other instrumental music was a repetition of the polka and fugue from "Schwanda," which is quite capable of whipping "The Music Goes Round and Round" on its own home field.

Mina Hager brought her distinguished mezzo voice to an interpretation of John Alden Carpenter's "Gitanjali." The handicap of illness under which she was working affected adversely the volume of her voice and her ability to get it out over the orchestra, but did not conceal her careful musicianship and the fact that she had worked industriously over every phrase of the song cycle to perfect her grasp of the ideas of poet and composer both.

José Iturbi and Hamilton Harty are rapidly brightening stars in the symphony's skies now. The pianist arrives next Thursday, the conductor a week later. Harty will give the Walton First Symphony its first three performances in America on Jan. 23, 24 and 28.

The members of Mu Xi chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon wanted to raise some money for scholarships and decided that a joint recital by Mae Doelling-Schmidt and Robert Long would do the trick. It turned out to be a good idea musically, but for some reason or other [possibly the short time the publicity committee had for its work] the size of the audience in Kimball hall last night represented an amount of cash in the till considerably less than you could bring home after a single afternoon of purse snatching.

Mrs. Doelling-Schmidt plays the piano with ease and confidence. In several pieces of modern music, notably the little encore which I could not recognize, she displayed her excellent technical equipment and nice rhythmic sense. Her playing is genuinely poetic at times, although she will be receiving telephone calls from Chopin fanatics today demanding a little talk with her on the subject of the A Flat Impromptu.

Robert Long's singing is quiet and correct; he is satisfied to rely on a skilled use of a natural and pleasantly textured voice rather than the extreme dynamic effects to which tenors of less taste are prone. Mr. Long will be in the "Iphigenia" cast at Mandel hall the 24th and 25th of this month, when the University of Chicago revives the Gluck opera.

House Gowns Copied from Crawford Film

Satin Smoothies Feminine, but Not Fussy.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Satin smoothies that cling revealingly to your streamline and sweep alluringly at the back in easy-to-manage train, are the newest arrivals in the shops for midwinter lounging hours. They are completely feminine without frills and ruffles, and yet not too tailored. They can do double duty for dinner gowns, especially in the sleek dark shade of American beauty red and black, because the sleeves are long and fitted from elbow to wrist and with wide shoulder lines.

The black numbers have bias cut scarlet sashes that hang well down to the floor at the side. The American beauty red shade has a French blue sash, and so on. The satin is rich and high of luster. They are among the best buys of the week. If you remember the stunning white satin house gown Joan Crawford wore in her last film you'll be glad to know that you own or wear an exact copy.

The wide flattering collar, the long tapering sleeves, the slim fitted hipline and the wide stitched belt, all are copied from the dashing original. White, dusty pink, blue and black are available.

Other equally devastating creations are made of jacquard satin, with huge full sleeves snugly gathered into narrow cuffs. One creamy white crêpe, daintily printed in colors, looks as though it had been borrowed from a colorful Japanese print.

The puff sleeves are gathered in tightly at the elbow; you will wear them pushed above your elbow and have them puff high around the shoulders. The skirt is adroitly plaited and gathered in front and then ties at the side. A tri-colored belt accents the colors in the printed pattern.

Fashion photograph . . . interesting and unusual, the dark blue lacings of this chamois yellow wool swagger coat accent the color of the slim navy blue crêpe dress. The dress is practically sleeveless, with the surplice closing of the blouse filled with an ascot tie of the crêpe. Four pockets are cleverly slit at the top edge. Both coat and dress are to be found in a Chicago shop.

Smart Throng Applauds Songs by Carpenter

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

The audience at yesterday's symphony concert was even more fashionable than is usual at the fortnightly Tuesday concerts, for many friends of the John Alden Carpenters wanted to hear Mina Hager sing Mr. Carpenter's song cycle "Gitanjali." They all had heard the songs sung before to piano accompaniment and some few had heard them sung with an orchestra when they were produced at Orchestra hall in 1914, but the orchestration heard yesterday was new and was composed at Pride's Crossing summer before last.

The applause was enthusiastic, of course, but it took quite a lot of it to persuade the retiring composer to appear on the stage with the charming singer, who used to live in Chicago and has many friends here.

Probably the most appreciative and certainly the proudest person in the audience was Mrs. Carpenter, who was the guest of Mrs. John Paul Welling in a box. Mrs. Carpenter's black hat with a mass of rose pink flowers at the front was very smart and becoming, and contributed a pleasing note of color to the somber ensemble that the box circle at Orchestra hall always is on an afternoon when almost every one is gowned and hatted in black. Mrs. Welling had entertained at luncheon before the concert for the Carpenters and their guests, Mrs. Walter F. Dillingham of Honolulu and the Zlatko Balokovics. Among others at the luncheon party which occupied the Welling and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick's boxes at the concert were Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams and Mrs. McCormick.

Mrs. Albert A. Sprague was another whose red flower trimmed hat added a dashing note of color to the box circle. She had a flame velvet scarf. Among others who enjoyed the concert were Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mrs. Arthur A. Small, Mrs. Robert S. Pirie [one of Mrs. Carpenter's daughters], Miss Marochka Anisfeld, Mrs. Daggett Harvey, Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall, Mrs. Paul Moyer, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, and Arthur Meeker Jr.

Also Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank and her daughter and sister, Miss Janet Fairbank and Mrs. Cecil Barnes; the Misses Virginia and Peggy Wiley, Mrs. Walter F. Cummings, Mrs. James R. Offield and her daughter, Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr., who brightened up the portion of the main floor where they sat with a bright Kelly green suit; Mrs. Henry Bartholomay and her daughter, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne; Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. and her sister, Mrs. Joseph M. Patterson, and Mrs. Frank G. Logan.

Actor Brisson Will Get $59,000 for Not Working

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Paramount movie studio is paying Carl Brisson, Danish singing actor and one time European heavyweight pugilistic champion, $59,000 to make no more films. Brisson today stated he had expressed dissatisfaction with the stories proffered him and the result was a decision he should not fulfill the remainder of his contract. Brisson already has drawn $41,000 of the sum he gets for not working. He draws his other $18,000 when the contract period rounds out Feb. 8.

A HELPFUL scout reports a woman who came into the infants' wear department of a loop department store carrying a young ape, nattily attired in a red sweater suit, beret, white shoes and socks. She said she wanted some new clothes, size 3, for the dear little ape. After looking over things she left because she couldn't find anything she liked. Pretty disappointed about it, too.

HOSPITAL days go by pleasantly and quickly, but hospital nights are each three times the length of ordinary nights. My nurse taught me to knit yesterday and last night, or rather, on the second of last night's three nights, I knitted five and purled five with application. Earlier I had read. At the beginning of the third night, about 2 o'clock, my nurse appeared with a firm look on her face and an inch of pink medicine in a glass. The rest of the night was spent sleeping.

* *

THE days are, in fact, pretty busy. After breakfast, off the rose-banded china that cheers up all Passavant hospital guests, there is a visit from the dietitian, who offers a menu card from which you are to choose meals for the day. Then the surgeon stops by on his daily tour of his patients. This is something of a ceremony, for a house doctor, an intern, and the head nurse on the floor are in his train. In spite of this array of scientific talent, the occasion is not clinical, and is limited to some two minutes and a light comment or two. Anything of any importance is said in the corridor to the nurse after the door is closed, I am positive.

By the time one has had a bath and the room is done it is luncheon time. I spent the time after lunch very practically yesterday trying to think up methods by which Binjy, the more phlegmatic of the two wire hairs, might be smuggled into the room for a visit.

Junior College Head Declares Students Want 2 Year Program

A plea that colleges recognize the social and economic change wrought by the depression, and adjust their curricula to it, was made yesterday by Miss Doris Flick, president of Briarcliff Junior college, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., to assemblies of students and teachers at the University School for Girls and at Francis Parker High school.

"Students are impatient with four years of preparation," said Miss Flick. "They are demanding two year preparation courses to realize their objective of a professional career, or duties as homemakers. It is up to the schools to educate in basic fundamentals of living."

P.-T. A. Decides to Stress Industry and Frugality

The board of managers of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers opened a two day meeting in the Stevens hotel yesterday and began drafting a program for their annual convention to be held here April 14 to 17. Mrs. Arthur R. Williams of Normal, state president, said the convention theme would be "Honesty, harmony, industry, and frugality: with these the nation shall endure."

I'll Never Tell

By Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS.

Julius Saranack is murdered in his home, Hillfoot, in Callingham, England. Eight uncut diamonds of no great value are missing. Two days previously, Torrance Esdale, childhood sweetheart of Gerald Saranack, the murdered man's nephew, had appealed to her American employer, Hartlandt Massiter, to give Gerald an engineering job in Mexico. Gerald is expected back from Spain in two days. Massiter tells Torrance the job to be filled requires a married man. Though they had quarreled before he left, Torrance writes Gerald, in care of his uncle, her plans for their marriage. Next morning Uncle Julius calls on Torrance with the news that Gerald has married an English girl in Spain. Torrance asks Massiter to give Gerald the job regardless. That evening Torrance secretly gains entrance to Hillfoot and retrieves the letter. Then she hears voices, hides, and watches as a girl secretes something behind a brick in the fireplace. When the girl and her companion leave Torrance calls the police, then leaves, not wishing to explain her presence. When Gerald brings his bride to see her next day she recognizes Annabelle, his wife, as the same girl she had seen in Uncle Julius' house and at the hour it was later discovered he was murdered, though she keeps silent about it. Torrance asks Annabelle to breakfast with her. Mr. Massiter calls while she is there. Alone with Torrance Gerald confesses he still loves her. He married Annabelle out of pity and thinks she needs his protection.

INSTALMENT IX.

A ROMANTIC TALE.

Torrance ignored both Gerald's outburst and his apology. For a moment they stared desperately at each other. Gerald made a movement toward her and checked it. She turned blindly from him, through the communicating door into her bedroom, crammed on a hat and let herself out of the flat.

The Parnassus hotel might be built of British steel and concrete and it was indisputably set in the heart of the British capital, but its soul was American.

Mr. Massiter occupied a suite there which had been reserved for him during his illness and convalescence, and its large sitting room gave him a characteristic and forceful background. Indeed, so much were telephones, electric fans and iced drinks in evidence that Torrance felt as if she had stepped into the plot of an American film. She was not at all surprised when her host shook her warmly by the hand and gave her solemn greeting, though they had parted scarcely half an hour ago.

"I asked you to come here, Miss Esdale, because I must talk to you without fear of interruption. You've read that newspaper I drew your attention to?—just before I left your apartment?"

"O!" Torrance looked distractedly at her empty hands. "I'm most awfully sorry, Mr. Massiter. I left it behind—I'm afraid I left everything behind, even my purse. I had to take the liberty of telling the porter to pay my taxi and charge it to you."

Mr. Massiter looked at her with something like approval.

"I wouldn't have thought that possible. I don't believe it could have happened two days ago."

"I'm so very sorry," faltered Torrance, then, with sudden energy, made a grab at the telephone. "I'll send for the paper. My maid can bring it to me here."

"That's more like my perfect secretary," said Mr. Massiter. He took her hand and moved it from the telephone. "But there's no need whatever for that. I shan't want it. I assume you read the marked passage?"

"Not even that. I'm afraid you'll be annoyed with me——"

"On the contrary, I'm relieved. I used to be kind of overawed by that efficiency that just couldn't slip up. Now we're on a more human footing. . . . I want to tell you a tale, Miss Esdale—and a tale that's got romance in it."

Torrance dragged off her hat, leaned her aching head against the back of her chair and closed her eyes. She took it for granted that the story was about himself. Romance? She tried to make a guess at his age.

"A good few years ago, Miss Esdale, two young men crossed to New York on the same boat. Suppose we call one John and the other Harold."

"Yes?" murmured Torrance intelligently. Harold—Hartlandt? She stifled a sigh.

"John was a student—geology and minerals. And Harold—well, he was an intellectual man, too, but he was practical as well. They hadn't been in New York six weeks before Harold was making good as a salesman. And out of his profits he vowed to grubstake John to a professional chair. I mean, Miss Esdale, that he wanted to pay John's expenses at a university.

"They were full blooded youngsters. John got tied up with a woman. He sank deeper and deeper into debt until one day he helped himself to some money that was lying around in the bursar's office. The authorities prosecuted and the state's attorney brought out the fact that in robbing the college John had also robbed Harold, his friend.

"When John came out of the penitentiary Harold was waiting for him. He didn't exactly forgive his friend for robbing him—he just couldn't see how the word robbery could come into it. He took it that John was an absent-minded mutt whose intellect couldn't function outside geology and minerals.

"He gave John a new name and started him off afresh. In due course John became a professor. When he got his first quarter's check John handed over half the amount to Harold. Harold laughed and handed it back and they had a friendly roughhouse about it. John took the money back but he sneaked off and deposited it in Harold's name. At the same time he registered an oath that half of all he earned for the rest of his life was going to the same account. Soon afterward Harold went back to Britain. John, as professor of geology and minerals, was called in consultation to a mine in Kansas. He helped them such a lot that they persuaded him to stay with them and they gave him an interest. Half that interest was filed in Harold's name.

"That first mine was just a beginning. It seems John had got a theory about geological strata that all the other professors agreed was pure moonshine. Only John's theory used to lead him to rich deposits—it was is if he could smell a deposit five hundred miles off. With a syndicate he opened a mine on his own in Mexico—yes, Mexico, Miss Esdale, but don't forget that Mexico is a very large country. Well, it wasn't very long before John had an interest in a round dozen of highly lucrative mines. Some of the holdings were actually in Harold's name but since Harold had resolutely refused to touch a dollar of John's beyond the original college dues it is doubtful whether John ever told Harold what was being accumulated for him."

Torrance opened her eyes.

"The story of John and Harold got around, including the prison chapter, but by this time the professor was a power in the mining industry and his having been a jail bird was taken as mere eccentricity. His talk about Harold's half was taken as eccentricity, too—it was generally believed that Harold was just a dummy, especially as the joint estate of John and Harold came to be reckoned at round about ten million dollars. But the few people who know the strange story of the two men—they will tell you that John has made a will leaving the entire holdings in his name and his friend's to Harold. Round about two million pounds in your coinage. No eccentricity about that."

Torrance still felt irritated. Why must he do all this simply to let her know he was worth a couple of millions?

"It's a romantic situation, certainly. Won't you tell me who Jack really is?"

"You'd have read the whole story for yourself if you'd had time to glance at that newspaper," smiled Mr. Massiter. "It's the Paris edition of your Daily Record. It is some two months old now but it carries an interview with John himself—otherwise Professor John Ardus Ellister."

"And you are Harold?" asked Torrance.

To her amazement, he reddened.

"Why, Miss Esdale, that hurts! Tell me, do I seem such a very old man to you? I suppose that physiologically I am old enough to be your father. But I had hoped that socially and morally——"

"I didn't mean to hurt your feelings, I assure you. I didn't know Professor Ellister was so old. But if Harold isn't you——"

"Why, he is—he was, I should say—the murdered man! Julius Harold Saranack. He didn't know about the will. You will remember that when we were discussing Uncle Julius at Torquay the other day I expressed surprise that you believed him to be a comparatively poor man. That was because I had read the story of Ellister's friendship for him—though I could not at the moment recall the source of my information. Now this morning, when I opened my papers, there was the calamitous news of Uncle Julius' death. . . ."

Miss Hutchins Is Engaged to John Borland

Fourth Cousins and Friends Since Childhood.

academy and is a graduate of Brown university. No plans have been made for the wedding.

The Bruce Borlands and their son, John J. Borland, are going to the Choate alumni dinner at the Woman's Athletic club tonight, so they probably will be taking Miss Hutchins with them. The dinner, the first of what is planned to be an annual affair, is being given for George Clare St. John, headmaster of the Choate school at Wallingford, Conn., and Wardell St. John, the assistant headmaster.

Contrary to what one expects at a dinner of alumni of a boys' school, a woman will be the principal speaker. She is Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, mother of Bruce MacLeish Jr., who is a student at Choate.

Mrs. MacLeish, Mr. and Mrs. Homer D. Jones, whose son, Homer Jr., also is a Choate pupil, and Mr. and Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson are on the committee in charge of the visit of the Choate headmasters. Mr. Stevenson will be toastmaster and Mr. and Mrs. Jones have the visitors as their house guests. This afternoon Mrs. Lawrence A. Meeker, whose son, Chester Warren Carson, is at Choate, is giving a tea for the visitors.

Because two of her schoolmates could not come from the east to be attendants in her wedding party, Miss Deborah Butler, who will become Mrs. Hugh M. Johnston on Jan. 25, has asked Mis Cornelia Ranney and Miss May Stillwell, a cousin, to take their places. Mr. and Mrs. C. Daggett Harvey entertained at dinner last night for Mr. Johnston and his fiancée.

Reception Sunday for Bernard Rogerses.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison Dick and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr. have issued invitations to a reception at the Dick home, 612 Woodland road, Lake Forest, next Sunday afternoon to meet Mr. and Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers. Mrs. Rogers is the former Mrs. Ezra J. Warner and is Mrs. Dick's and Mrs. Dennehy's mother. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will arrive from the east, where they went immediately after their marriage on Jan. 7, some day the end of this week to spend several weeks in the apartment at 1448 Lake Shore drive that the former Mrs. Warner has occupied all winter. On Feb. 1 Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will go to Ormond Beach, Fla., for the rest of the winter.

The Dicks and Dennehys are not asking Mr. and Mrs. Rogers' many friends in town to the party Sunday, for it is just for their Lake Forest neighbors, who are hoping that Mr. and Mrs. Rogers will be in that village next summer in spite of the fact that Mrs. Rogers' house there is rented.

Mrs. Dennehy is planning to go to California a bit later in the season for her customary late winter visit with Mr. Dennehy Sr.

Gives Tea Today for Alliance Juniors.

Mrs. Edward H. Bennett will entertain the Juniors of the Alliance Française at tea this afternoon in her Banks street home. Robert Lee Eskridge will speak in French on his experiences in the South Seas where he has spent several years.

The American Opera Society of Chicago will meet in the home of Mrs. Walter J. Jarratt at 229 Lake Shore drive at 3 o'clock this afternoon to hear excerpts from Dr. Henry Purport Eames' comic operetta "Priscilla." Dr. Eames, composer, pianist, lecturer, and professor of esthetics at Scripps college, California, will be an especial guest at the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson will be hosts at a dinner tomorrow evening for Will Durant, who afterward will speak on "Is Progress Real?" at Thorne hall on McKinlock campus in the Northwestern university lecture series. President and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Mark W. Cresap, Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Morton, Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes also will be guests of the Robinsons.

The concert that was to be given by the choir of St. James' church in Thorne hall on Jan. 27 has been postponed because of the illness of Leo Sowerby, organist and choirmaster, whose cantata, "The Vision of Sir Launfal," was to have received a first local presentation. Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine is chairman of the music committee which was sponsoring the concert.

Start Today for South America.

Henry J. Patten and his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Wheeler, are leaving tomorrow for New York, where they will sail for Buenos Aires. They will spend some time in Argentina, and then cross the Andes by rail and motor over a southern route through Patagonia, returning up the west coast.

Mr. Patten's niece, Mrs. Agnes Wilder of Santa Barbara, arrives today to accompany Mr. Patten and the Wheelers. They will be away about three months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Webb of Lake Forest have had a new member of their family since Monday, a seven weeks old boy, but he still is just "baby" and "he" for they haven't decided what to call him. He spent the first weeks of his life at The Cradle in Evanston.

A very tiny young lady who now is being cared for at The Cradle will be taking a long sea voyage in March when Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kneedler leave for their home in Manila. Mr. and Mrs. Kneedler have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry, since Thanksgiving, their first visit to Chicago since their marriage several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sheppard Stone have received word from Waterbury, Conn., of the arrival of their second grandchild, a boy, born Saturday to Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Porter Goss, the former Lucy Stone. The baby, who has been named for his father, has a 3 year old sister, Mary Dana.

HAROLD TEEN—SOME THINGS ARE SACRED

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The woman doesn't live who hasn't some time marked off a "special occasion." It might be a big party in which dressed in her best she doesn't want to be lost in the crowd; it might be an appearance in amateur theatricals or one time when she walks down a runway at a fashion show. It might be the day she goes to a crack photographer to have the picture taken that will catch and hold what looks she has for years and years to come.

For these occasions a beauty specialist has taken rather a daring step—brought forth a whole cosmetic line that is the latest word in makeup aids for the stage, the screen, for special evening occasions and for photography. There is a foundation, either in tubes or jars, in just about every conceivable shade, ranging from the tans and colors used for film work to the flesh tints used for the stage. It's surprisingly light and is spread all over the face, blended evenly. In the professional treatment in which this is used a small brush helps to film it around the eyes and the mouth.

Then there are rouges, also in a variety of shades; lipstick, a special mascara to darken or bead the lashes, and pastes or "liners" for the eyes in more colors than you or I, in our innocence, ever dreamed of.

It takes some knowledge of what you're doing, and some deftness, to make the most of all these, but the knowledge isn't hard to obtain. You'll be as makeup wise as any movie luminary when you've learned all the tricks. And, best of all, on your "special occasion" your makeup will charm you and all beholders, because it will be flattering, impervious to wear and tear and perfect for its purpose.

Every Type of Complexion Has Special Makeup

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We heard recently of a service which divides women into types and sets up kits covering the makeup needs of each type.

For what they choose to call the alabaster platinum blonde, eggshell, and blush power are suggested, with dark blue eyeshadow mixed with light blue. Brown mascara with blue tips is suggested for the type, along with a pale rouge and a mahogany lipstick. The translucence of the pale powders over alabaster foundation gives the face a transparent, dreamlike pallor that is perfect with the sheen of platinum hair.

For the blonde, not platinum, but fair, a sand and cinnamon powder is suggested, brown with dark green eyeshadow, coral rouge, and coral lipstick. The dark powder is a nice contrast to the ash blonde hair, which may need a fairly striking makeup to keep it from too quiet beauty.

With chestnut hair, blue eyeshadow and mascara may add a striking depth and color to the eyes. A terra cotta rouge and lipstick, and pongee and cocoa powder create an effective ensemble.

The black haired lovely would do well to try raspberry rouge and lipstick. Cinnamon and cocoa powder are suggested for her, brown and dark green eyeshadow, and black mascara with green tips.

While, as said before, the business of typing women is not adhered to strictly nowadays, still a working program from which new suggestions may be gained is useful. But the above gives an idea, at least, of how the up to date, clever one goes at the business of makeup, studying colors, and not being afraid to make a departure now and then into an untried field.

Allow Small Child the Run of the House

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I remember it as if it were yesterday. I had gone out and bought a play pen—one without a platform, but sturdy and of good size.

On its arrival I unfolded it, set it up, and—in due time, and after I thought the unfamiliarity had melted away, and with the lure of appropriate toys, I picked up a baby boy and put him within the enclosure. Well, space is valuable and I want to get on with the subject so suffice it to say that, after several attempts on my part to put the play pen idea over, what was my amusement to behold the baby child take hold of its top rail with a virile grasp and walk around the room with it! At this my half hearted interest in the contraption collapsed entirely and the play pen was relegated permanently to the lower regions and the small boy once more had the run of the house.

Now some small children play contentedly in a play pen. Some mothers find these enclosures give them freedom and peace of mind to get certain parts of their housework done. And anything that eases up on the busy mother of young children should be taken advantage of.

But don't feel, if your small one isn't contended to play for long periods in his play pen, that something is wrong with him. He needs physical freedom too.

Since your baby's whole world is home, open it to him. Throw wide the gates. This is, after all, his kingdom. Here he learns all beginnings—here he learns most of his skills—here his senses develop. Here lie all the materials, all the foods on which depend his growth and his development, his activity, his happiness, his interest, his play.

Let him roam, wander, explore, experiment. It will make him, eventually, all the things you desire him to be—alert, interesting, intelligent, deft, self-reliant, obedient, companionable, and less trouble. Give your small child the freedom of his home—because it is his home. Give him the keys to the city.

ENGAGEMENTS

From Buenos Aires comes the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cornell of Woodmere, Long Island, N. Y., of the engagement of their daughter, Melicent, to George C. Oswald of Chicago and Buenos Aires. Mr. Oswald is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Oswald of 2826 North Rockwell street.

At a tea Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McAuley at 3920 Lake Shore drive announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Margaret F. Webb to Harry A. Wardenburg. Miss Webb is a graduate of Mundelein college and Mr. Wardenburg is a graduate of Northwestern university. The wedding will take place next June.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Ruth Burden, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Jim W. Burden of 629 William street, River Forest, to John Babcock Jr. of Denver, Colo. Miss Burden, who attended Rockford college where she was her class poet, met Mr. Babcock at Cornell university, where both are engaged in post-graduate work.

WEDDING

Announcement is made by Joseph Stein of the marriage of his sister, Miss Muriel Stein of 3616 Pine Grove avenue, to Jack W. Weininger on Dec. 29 at the Belden-Stratford hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Weininger are spending the winter in California.

Jacket Dress Slenderizing

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Every type of figure is flattered by a jacket frock, but the axiom holds true especially for the mature silhouette. This kind of dress is virtually indispensable in the wardrobe of the woman with excess weight to conceal. The model illustrated today is an exceptionally chic version of this many purpose dress. It may be worn with or without the jacket, and lends itself to a variety of fabrics and color schemes. It doubles for winter and spring wear, too.

The original of this frock was created in black crêpe silk, with a dainty touch of white in the fluffy jabot collar. Crêpe silk print, with collar of plain crêpe in a matching shade, also fashions a lovely ensemble.

Style No. 3297 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 5⅝ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting and 1⅝ yards of jacket lining.

One Recipe Is Basis of Many Luscious Rolls

Refrigerator Dough Proves to Be Versatile.

BY MARY MEADE.

It's forgivable fraud when some clever woman makes you believe she's a walking cookbook, when all she really knows is a few good basic recipes, with variations!

Consider roll baking, for instance. This smart girl may have you exclaiming over her golden butterhorns, her dainty rosebud rolls, her sugary cinnamon twists, or her crusty finger rolls—these and many more. If you can pin her down to the truth you probably will learn that she just sticks to one simple recipe and changes the form of her rolls to suit the occasion.

A good, dependable recipe for refrigerator rolls seems to be the best possible starter. It's easy to make and adapts itself easily. Here's one that fills the bill nicely, a favorite of ours which we sometimes make less rich by increasing the milk to 1½ cups and proportionately increasing the flour. However, just as it stands it's not a mite too rich for goodness or dependability.

Refrigerator Rolls.

- 1 cake compressed yeast
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 cup milk
- 2 eggs
- ⅓ cup sugar
- ½ cup shortening
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 4 cups flour

Blend the yeast and sugar together with a fork or the fingers. Scald the milk, cool to lukewarm, and add to the yeast. Add the well beaten whole eggs, sugar, melted shortening, mix well and add the sifted flour and salt. Mix thoroughly, rub over well with butter, and put in a covered container in the refrigerator. Four hours before you plan to bake the rolls set the covered container out into the room for an hour. Roll, then, in desired fashion, let rise for three hours at ordinary room temperature, and bake at 400 degrees F. This recipe makes two dozen large rolls or three dozen small ones.

And now for the form in which these rich golden rolls are going to greet the world! Maybe these suggestions will help you decide:

BUTTERHORNS.

Divide the recipe given above into two parts. Roll out half the dough into a circular piece a half inch thick. Cut this round into 12 pie shaped pieces. Beginning at the wide end, roll each wedge shaped piece up snugly, leaving the narrow point on top. Let rise as directed and bake 10 to 12 minutes in a 400 degree F. oven. For smaller rolls divide the dough into three parts and make three instead of two dozen.

ROSEBUDS.

Roll the dough to a thickness of a half inch. Cut rectangles about 3 inches by 1½ inches. Roll with the palms of the hands to a rounded cylinder 6 inches long. Tie the roll into a single knot, leaving one projecting end longer than the other. Lay the knot in a muffin pan with the short end up. Bring the longer end up and around the knot, pinching it securely into the middle of the knot. These rolls have a petal form when baked, and the recipe above will make 2½ dozen in this size.

CINNAMON TWISTS.

Roll the dough to a half inch thickness. Cut rectangles 5 by 1 inches. Spread each rectangle lightly with melted butter, sugar, and cinnamon. Fold lengthwise and twist several times, to hold in the sugar and butter. Twist each long roll into an "eight," let rise for three hours, and bake at 375 degrees F. for 12 to 15 minutes.

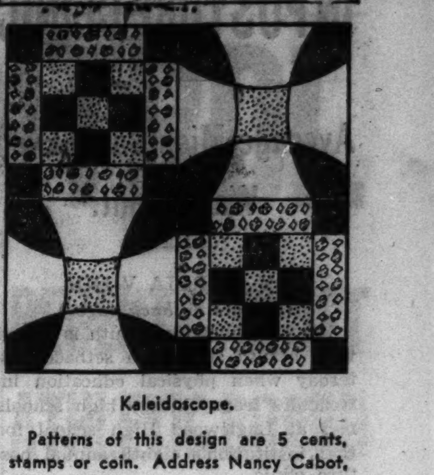
"Kaleidoscope" a Popular Quilt Easy to Create



Kaleidoscope.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Kaleidoscope" is one of the popular pieced patterns which may be called "easy to do." It is one of those designs exceptionally adaptable to patches already reposing in the scrap bag. The original old quilt was pieced with blue and white, and purple and red print material. It was strikingly beautiful, but probably would be considered a trifle old fashioned if used for present day decoration. The completed block measures 12 inches square.

According to CULBERTSON

LEADING TRUMPS.

The opening lead most shunned by the great majority of average players is a trump. This is strange, because in countless situations it is the only effective form of attack.

Particularly when the declarer has shown a two-suited hand, and the about-to-be-dummy has, either, by acceptance or direct raise, shown a preference, an immediate attack on dummy's ruffing power is advisable. This is equally true whether the leader himself holds high cards in the declarer's other suit, or whether he can anticipate such holding by his partner.

South, dealer.

SOUTH

♣ 6

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

On any opening except a trump, declarer would have little trouble in making contract. Even a later shift to the ace and another trump could not prevent two spade ruffs in the dummy, which with South's ace and king of spades and four trump tricks would make a total of eight.

But on an opening trump lead and continuation the picture was considerably changed. South could not establish a cross-ruff without again losing the lead to West's diamond king, and now another trump reduced dummy to a single ruff.

Certainly, the trump opening was logical on the bidding. West had no fear of a solid club suit in the dummy—his partner's pass over that bid, in the light of his subsequent take-out double of two hearts, showed a distinct willingness to play against a club contract. While West himself had nothing in spades, it was quite reasonable to suppose that East did have, and consequently it was West's duty to protect these cards. The trump lead was well considered, and justly rewarded.

Write your bridge troubles and problems to Ely Culbertson, care of this paper, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

NATURAL IODINE in Kelpamalt, New Mineral Concentrate from the Sea, Must Build Rich, Red Blood—Put on Pounds of Good, Solid, "Stay-There" Flesh, Give Steady Nerves and Day-long Energy in First Week—or Trial is Free!

Thousands of even "Naturally Skinny," weak, wornout, haggard-looking men and women whose energy and strength have been sapped by overwork and worry—who are nervous, irritable, always half-sick and ailing—now have new hope and encouragement. Science says the principal cause of these rundown conditions is "GLANDS STARVING FOR IODINE." When these glands don't work properly, all the food in the world can't help you. It just isn't turned into flesh. The result is, you stay skinny, pale, tired-out and rundown.

The most important gland—the one which actually controls body weight and strength—needs a definite ration of iodine all the time—NATURAL ASSIMILABLE IODINE—not to be confused with chemical iodides which often prove toxic, but the same iodine that is found in tiny quantities in spinach and lettuce. Only when the system gets an adequate supply of iodine can you regulate metabolism—the body's process of converting digested food into firm flesh, new strength and energy.

To get NATURAL IODINE in convenient, concentrated and assimilable form take Kelpamalt—now recognized as the world's richest source of this precious substance. It contains 1,300 times more iodine than oysters, once considered the best source. 6 tablets alone contain more NATURAL IODINE than 486 lbs. of spinach or 1,387 lbs. of lettuce.

Try Kelpamalt for a single week and notice the difference. See flattering extra pounds of "stay-there" flesh appear in place of scrawny hollows. Notice how much better you feel and if you don't gain at least 5 lbs. in one week the trial is free. Kelpamalt costs but little to use. Try it today.

GIRL OF SWEET 16 GETS LOW RATING IN POSTURE CLINIC

Average Miss Can't Even Walk Right.

BY MARCIA WINN.

The old belief that youth is linked with beauty suffered a setback yesterday when physical education instructors from Chicago high schools met at Englewood High school for that institution's eighth annual posture clinic.

Instead of hearing the physical fitness of the high school girl praised they were told that the average girl of 16 is round shouldered and swaybacked, that she doesn't know how to walk or to sit, that one shoulder is higher than the other and that she "toes out" in walking.

One in 3,800 "Perfect."

Many girls, the posture experts pointed out, have only one of these faults, but rare indeed is the girl who has none of them, as indicated by the fact that, of the 3,800 girls in Englewood High school, only 300 were eligible for the annual posture contest, while of that 300 only one girl, Irene Schuster, a 17 year old senior, was considered perfect in posture.

"The trouble," Miss Elizabeth Halsey of the physical education department of the University of Iowa said, "is that in the past we have been giving static exercises and tests to correct posture. What we need is a group of exercises involving purposeful movements taken from everyday life situations—to develop functional body mechanics."

Most Defects Begin with Feet.

Dr. Charles Carlstrom, president of the American College of Physical Education, told the instructors that most postural defects arise from the feet, such as pronation ["toeing out"], walking "pigeon toed" or disregarding the heel-to-toe principle in walking.

He urged the instructors to disregard the old "ramrod" walk, and to teach relaxation in walking and standing.

Ex-Convict Arrested as He Tries to Break Into Store

William Gadomski, 30 years old, 1821 West 51st street, a former convict, was arrested yesterday while trying to break into a grocery at 6558 South Western avenue. At the Chicago Lawn police station Gadomski said he had served eight years of a one to twenty year term for burglary in the Joliet penitentiary. He was releaased three years ago. Before his discharge, Gadomski said, he was once paroled but was later returned to prison for violation of the parole.

CORNELL SNIFFS WITH PRIDE AND GUARDS CABBAGE

Variety Without Odor Is Discovered.

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 14.—(AP)—One thousand smell-less cabbages are under guard at Cornell university—each of them a descendant of a cabbage with no odor discovered at Cornell a few months ago.

These cabbages are guarded to preserve their seed from contamination with smelly relatives, with a view to having enough of the new cabbage to go commercially on the American market in about two years.

Fete Is Hereditary Stunt.

The smell-less cabbage was discovered by Prof. C. H. Myers in a strain of House of Savoy cabbages. It was a heriditary stunt.

"We decided," Prof. Myers said, "not to put all our eggs in one basket. For that reason some of the plants were placed in cold storage; others were buried, farm fashion, in a trench; still others were stored in a cellar and a fairly large number were even sheltered in the greenhouse."

From the latter Prof. Myers hopes to get 15,000 seeds. These will be held at Cornell as a reserve. Meanwhile the other seed produced by the aristocratic House of Savoy vegetable will be given to seed producers for trial in gardens.

Production Encouraged.

Small lots of the seed already have been given to several seed producers for test. Although it is too early to determine their success, Prof. Myers and his colelagues are encouraging production.

Six years' work and 4,000 cabbages went into the breeding experiments.

Placing them in cold storage for two months seemed to improve them. They were replanted in greenhouses and pollinated with tweezers. In five years of this sort of selection the odor disappeared.

Wives of the faculty members have been cooking them recently. Before dinner a Cornell hostess is likely to ask—"Do you smell anything?" The answer is no. Whereupon the cook marches in with a steaming plate of odorless cabbage.

ANOTHER TOWN IN ALASKA HIT BY DISEASE; RUSH AID

Seward, Alaska, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Dr. A. D. Haverstock of the public health service today asked the coast guard cutter Morris to be dispatched from Cordova to Port Graham, where 15 persons were reported ill of an undetermined malady. Port Graham is a fishing village on Cook inlet, near the tip of the Kenai peninsula.

Meantime, declaration of a precautionary scarlet fever quarantine at Anchorage today left Seward, Nenana and Moose Pass the only major towns in the Alaska railroad belt untouched by scarlet fever or smallpox.

Quarantines have been established at Fairbanks, the interior railhead, and at Palmer, "capital" of the federal farm colony in the Matanuska valley, after smallpox and scarlet fever outbreaks.

RESENT RADICALS BEING IDENTIFIED AS 'METHODISTS'

Laymen Demand Evanston Group Drop Name.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The Methodist Federation of Social Service, which opened a convention behind closed doors yesterday at the Evanston Y. M. C. A., will face today a demand that the word "Methodist" be deleted from the official name of the organization.

This demand was made in a formal statement by the Conference of Methodist Laymen which was made public last night by the laymen's secretary, Wilbur Helm, 120 South La Salle street.

The statement contends that the federation is socialistic or communistic and that it misrepresents the Methodist church. The laymen label Prof. Harry F. Ward of Union Theological seminary, New York, a communist, and Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the New York area of the Methodist church, president of the federation, a socialist. These persons are the first individuals to be identified by name in any formal pronouncements of the Conference of Laymen.

The Position of the Conference.

"The time has come when the Methodist Episcopal church must make a decision with reference to the so-called Methodist Federation for Social Service," says the laymen's statement. "In as much as this federation is now in convention it is the duty of the members to give consideration to the necessity of that decision.

"The use of the name 'Methodist' in connection with a partisan movement is resented. The Federation for Social Service bearing the name Methodist is committed to Marxian socialism, either in its communistic form as advocated by Prof. Harry F. Ward, or in its social form as advocated by Norman Thomas or Bishop Francis J. McConnell.

"Each is anti-Christian because under either it is asserted that spiritual development of a man or a people is dependent primarily upon economic considerations; that the profit motive, being the ultimate motive, becomes the only motive for actions of everybody. For what other meaning can be derived from the socialist doctrine than that profits be spread to all?

Socialism Termed Primitive.

"Materialistic socialism and communism are primitive and only can succeed among the ignorant because under the Marxian theory it is assumed that mankind's sole interests are below the neck; that if all conflict and uncertainty were removed, people would be good.

"But Christianity is the religion of social complexity and conflict, not the faith of passive dependence upon bread alone in a society of large stomachs and recessive brows. The abundant life as Christ conceived it is not to be found in supine security but in conflict, uncertainty and sacrifice which combine to life interests above the neckline into psychological and spiritual consideration; into realms of increasingly diverse technique and professions.

Methodist View of Creator.

"That there will continue to be economic dislocations is beyond question. Likewise injustice and immorality are bound to continue. But contrary to all thoroughgoing Marxists, Methodists believe in God, not as a mere magical adjuster of injustices, fancied or real; rather as father and source of true abundant life.

"Because the so-called Methodist Federation for Social Service is committed to Marxist doctrines, anti-ethical to nearly everything the Methodist Episcopal church traditionally stands for, and because its doctrins and teachings will greatly damage the Methodist Episcopal church, this federation should cease using the name Methodist in defining its activities."

Clergymen at Sessions.

The federation convention is announced in the Evanston Y. M. C. A. as "The Methodist Episcopal conference." It is attended by two clergymen from Chicago, the Rev. Blaine Kirkpatrick and the Rev. Owen M. Geer, national youth leaders of the Methodist board of education, 740 Rush street, and by pastors from six other central western states.

Prof. Ward of New York, viewed as a communist by the laymen, is a convention leader. He retains membership in the quarterly conference of the First Methodist church, Evanston.

Telephone Company Cuts Night and Sunday Rates

The Illinois Bell Telephone company announced last night that beginning today reduced rates will go into affect on all long distance calls on Sundays and at night between the hours of 7 p. m. and 4:30 a. m. The new rates for Sunday and night calls will be the same. Reductions ranging from about 10 to 40 per cent will also apply to nearly all station-to-station calls where the rates are more than 35 cents.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

Prize Hybrid Corn.

January 14, 1936.

HYBRID corn has made a hit with many central western farmers as a result of the big yields produced last summer. Some of the grain strains and varieties of hybrid corn ran far above 100 bushels per acre on Illinois farms last year.

High yields of hybrids grown on the Tribune and other Illinois farms in 1935 are expected to result in the acreage of this new corn being increased in 1936. A generous supply of hybrid seed corn is included in the orders recently placed by managers of the two Tribune farms, where both grain and silage strains of hybrids made a good showing in comparison with established varieties.

Hybrid corn generally made good wherever it was grown under favorable conditions in the central west last year. Hybrids won four of the five highest awards in the Illinois Seed Grain and Utility Corn show held as a feature of farm and home week at the University of Illinois this week.

An average of 121.54 bushels per acre of hybrid corn was produced in a ten acre field on Howard Clegg's farm near Dana, in La Salle county [adjoining Kendall county, where one of the Tribune experimental farms is located]. Clegg was declared by judges at Urbana corn show this week to be the best corn grower in Illinois from the standpoint of yield, quality and cost of production. Sixteen other farmers competed.

The sweepstakes winner's corn was given a quality rating of 92 per cent and his average production cost was $27.[illegible] an acre. His total score was 85.27—40 per cent for field, 40 per cent for quality, and 20 per cent for cost of production. There were 10 farmers from the northern Illinois counties entered in the show.

Second place in the contest was awarded to A. H. McConnel, whose farm is near Reynolds in Mercer county. His ten acre plot of hybrid corn also went above the 100 mark, averaging 102.18 bushels per acre, produced at an average cost of $23.83 an acre. The quality rating was 85 per cent and McConnel's final score was 81.83.

I. M. McConnel, brother of the second winner, was third. His hybrid corn yielded an average of 107.32 bushels an acre, costing an average of $25.83 an acre. The quality rating on the corn was 78 per cent and McConnel's final score was 79.69.

J. H. Livengood of Atwood, Douglas county, was given fourth place, although his Station Yellow Dent, an open pollinated variety, produced a relatively low yield. His ten acre field averaged 66.86 bushels per acre. But his production costs were low compared to those of the three above him, averaging only $18.72 an acre. Livengood's final score was 79.14 with a quality rating of 88 on his corn.

The judges awarded fifth place to L. C. Hahn of Dwight, Livingston county. His corn, the fourth hybrid to win high honors, averaged 91.06 bushels per acre. The corn was produced at an average cost of $22.27 an acre. The quality rating of the corn was 79 and Hahn's final score was 79.05.

Test fields at the Wheaton farm are now being manured. A wheat field of between 40 and 45 acres is being used in a manure test this year. Half the field is being covered with manure hauled direct from the barns and the other half is left untreated for comparison. This test was encouraged by reports of Ohio experiments in which wheat yields were increased more than five bushels an acre by the application of manure scattered on the field in midwinter. The Wheaton farm wheat has been well protected by a good covering of snow during the last few weeks.

X=HOW LONG FIGHT WILL GO, BUT WHAT=X?

Louis' Backers Turn to Algebra.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Algebra books popped out last night and replaced the race track dope sheets in the hands of the cauliflower intelligentsia who haunt that noted neighborhood around Clark and Randolph streets.

The problem confronting the boys endeavoring to find some way of getting a wager down on the outcome of the scrap between Joe Louis and Charley Retzlaff on Friday night has been discovered to be purely an algebraic one.

If—goes the problem—it took Louis 2 minutes and 21 seconds to knock out a frightened King Levinsky, how long will it take Louis to lay low some one Levinsky himself has knocked flat in 2 minutes and five seconds?

The unknown quantity, as Pal Moore pointed out to Gorilla Jones, appears to be the power behind a Retzlaff right hand wallop which, unfortunately, was never completely delivered in the Levinsky-Retzlaff fight.

Sixteen Know Answer.

There are 16 fellows who will testify to the power behind a Retzlaff right. These were the 16 fellows Retzlaff rocked to sleep in round one during his fistic career which started back in 1929.

This made the problem rather a puzzler, particularly for Gorilla Jones, but Joe Sherman agreed to tutor him to a satisfactory solution provided Gorilla would burn some midnight oil and concentrate.

So by this morning it can be expected that the wagering on the result of the fight will be quite brisk, not on who is going to win, but on how many seconds or minutes it will take Louis to do his chore. Following his hard night of intense study, Gorilla Jones' figures are quite likely to be in very great demand.

What's the Result?

In other quarters there were still more complicated worries. Folks who have heavy investments in the pugilistic industry were beginning to fret over what effect a quick knockout of Retzlaff by Louis would have on the future fight business in Chicago.

If the Louis-Levinsky fight at Sox park last summer is a good way of showing which way the wind will be blowing, anything can happen in this Louis-Retzlaff affair Friday and it still will be in the nature of a good healthy tonic to the boxing industry.

Getting right up to the minute on the situation Jim Mullen took his daily peep into the Stadium counting room late yesterday and reported the advance sale for Friday night's presentation has reached the $45,000 mark.

Mr. Mullen Is Busy.

It is a wonder Mr. Mullen had time to take this little peep, for he was very busy all day arranging the supporting card. Mullen's last minute matchmaking indicated he didn't know what was going to happen in the Louis-Retzlaff entanglement.

He made sure, however, that the customers would squint out at an enormous lot of flying fists, for there are five other battles on the card.

The complete supporting card is as follows:

Eddie Mader, New York, vs. Art Sykes, Elmira, N. Y., 8 rounds.

All the gladiators in this assortment are heavyweights with the exception of Lewis and Paris. They are welterweights.

Near End of Drill.

Both Louis and Retzlaff neared the end of their training yesterday. The spectators who packed both the gymnasiums where they worked didn't gaze upon any mean man mauling maneuvers on the part of either.

Louis did the more work, for he boxed seven rounds, while Retzlaff declared himself to be fit and ready after he had stepped through three lively rounds with Harry Nelson, the Detroit heavyweight.

Both the top liners let it be known that they will exercise more diligently this afternoon.

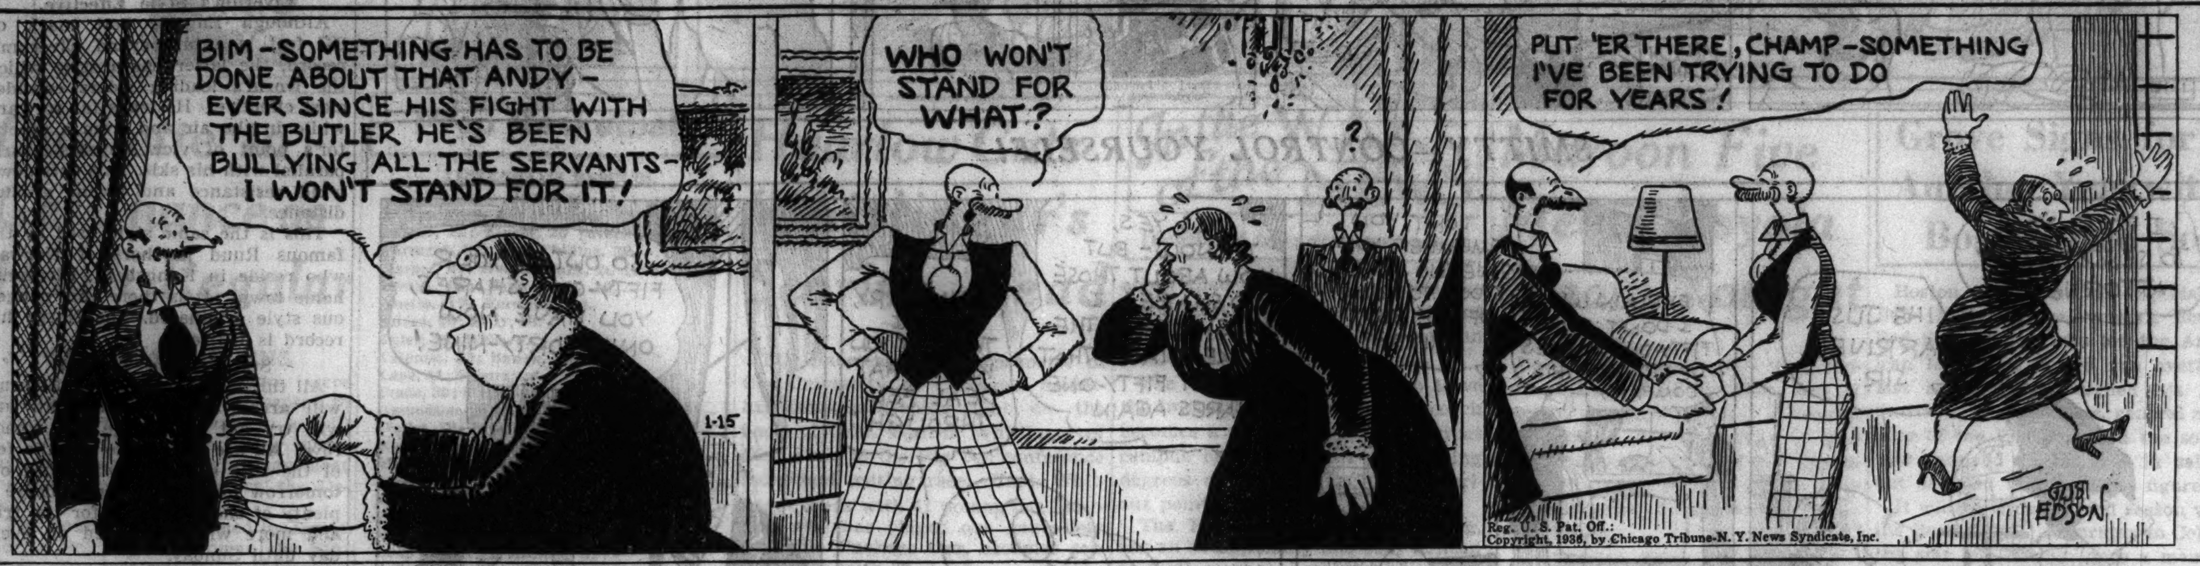
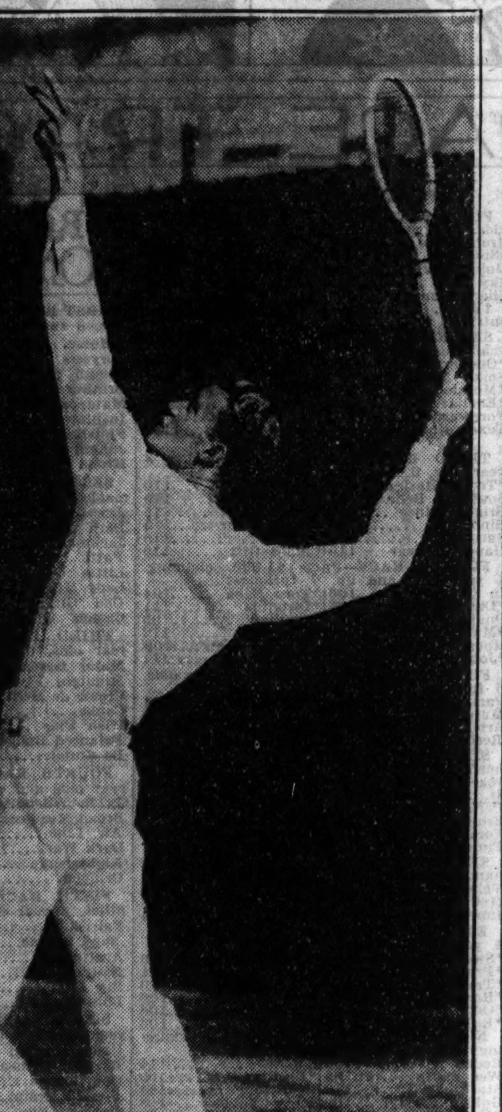
THE GUMPS—MAMA MEETS HER MATCH



PRINCIPALS IN TENNIS SHOW TONIGHT

Ellsworth Vines, world's professional tennis champion, who will play Lester Stoefen in the feature match of the tennis show at the International Amphitheater, 41st and Halsted streets, tonight.



Lester Stoefen, a former Davis cup star, who was runnerup to Vines in the professional tourney at Paris last year, will attempt to gain a measure of revenge tonight.

Vines, Stoefen Meet Tonight in Net Show

The annual visit of Bill Tilden's professional tennis troupe will be made tonight at the International amphitheater, 41st and Halsted streets, under the auspices of George Halas. The first match will start at 8 o'clock.

Tilden, Ellsworth Vines, world's champion; George Lott, Lester Stoefen, and Bruce Barnes, all professional veterans, and Berkeley Bell, Mrs. Ethel Burkhart Arnold, and Jane Sharp will appear. A capacity crowd of 8,000 is expected.

Lott, Chicago's outstanding player, will open the program in a singles match against Barnes. Lott, serious again now that tennis is his business, will have to be at his best, for Barnes is reported to be playing sensational tennis.

Mrs. Arnold in Debut.

The next match will mark the professional debut of Mrs. Arnold, the highest ranking woman star to join pro tennis since Suzanne Lenglen and Mary K. Browne.

Mrs. Arnold, No. 2 in the American amateur ranking for 1935, will meet another newcomer, Miss Sharp.

Tilden, who will be 43 next month, will meet Bell in the third match of the evening.

Doubles End Program.

The feature match of the evening—Vines vs. Stoefen—will follow Tilden's performance. Vines is said to be the greatest player in history and will be meeting the only man able to press him. Stoefen, the blond Californian whom Dempsey almost talked into boxing, was runner-up to Vines in the world championship tournament at Paris last summer and had Vines at match point.

Concluding the program will be a doubles contest—between Lott and Stoefen and Vines and Bell.

Lindstrom and Dykes Confer; Fail to Agree

Fort Myers, Fla., Jan. 14.—(AP)—Freddy Lindstrom, outfielder released by the Chicago Cubs, conferred today with Manager Jimmy Dykes about a job with the Chicago White Sox—but the price apparently was too high.

"Just say that negotiations are definitly off as far as Lindstrom is concerned," said Dykes at the end of a 10 minute interview with the ball player.

HOWARD ODELL NAMED TO COACH HARVARD BACKS

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The appointment of Howard Odell, former Pittsburgh half back, as Harvard varsity back field coach was announced tonight by the committee on the regulation of athletic sports. He succeeds Myron H. Palm, former Penn State star.

Neil Stahley, head freshman coach last fall, was promoted to the new position of field coach. Wesley Fesler and Rae Crowther were reappointed to the varsity staf as end and line coaches.

ARMOUR ENTERS NOVICE TEAM IN GOLDEN GLOVES

Medical Examinations to Start Tuesday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Armour Tech will be represented by a team of five Novice boxers in THE TRIBUNE'S ninth annual Golden Gloves tournament which starts on Feb. 10 at the Madison Athletic club in the west section trials and completes the circuit of the city in ten days. The entries have been submitted by Coach B. Weissman. These boys will receive letters of instructions to report for medical examinations.

Two dates now have been set for these examinations at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. The first of these will be next Tuesday evening between 6 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. Six hundred letters were mailed to this group. The second examination is scheduled for Thursday, Jan. 23, at the same hours. Four hundred already have sent in entries and an additional 200 boys also will be given opportunity to report on Jan. 23. The third examination will be held some time during the following week. The date will depend on the number of entries received.

Early Entries Requested.

While entries probably will be accepted until midnight Jan. 31, the sooner you send in your name, the earlier you may report for your medical examination. The Catholic Youth organization is taking entries of its own group of boxers, both Novice and open divisions, and examination for these boys will be held at the C. Y. O. center on the evening of Jan. 31. Letters of instructions and parental consent cards will be mailed out several days prior to that date.

Lavern C. Keir of Downers Grove, Ill., is one of the promising entrants in the open division. Keir is 22 years of age, will compete in the welterweight class and has had 30 bouts.

Since Joe Louis has achieved fame and fortune, his career has been an incentive to many boys to enter amateur boxing who perhaps never gave boxing a thought before. Quite naturally this activity is greatest on the south side where Louis is more than an ordinary hero. The Savoy Athletic club and the Jones Athletic club, 2819 South State street, which was established 20 years ago, will have strong teams in both the open and novice divisions.

Any Amateur Eligible.

Any boy may enter Golden Gloves provided he passes a medical examination and has the consent of his parent or guardian. While 64 gold medals [in addition to the championship awards at the Stadium] are the prizes, there is additional material incentive in the award of a Golden Gloves button to each contestant.

Fight Decisions

At New York Wild Cat O'Connor and Georgie Salvatore drew [10]; Jimmy Larosa beat Tommy Mankin [4]; Sammy Angott beat Eddie Hannon [6].

In the WAKE of the NEWS

TENURE OF COACHES.

HEAD FOOTBALL COACH BERNIE BIERMAN has decided to remain at University of Minnesota and not to accept the reported $15,000 offer from Tulane university at New Orleans. Minnesota is fortunate. Considering present insistent demand for a winner at Louisiana's two leading colleges, Tulane and Louisiana State, Bierman probably is fortunate, too.

Bierman's former record at Tulane from 1927 to 1932 was 36 won, 10 lost, and 2 tied. Among the losses was the Rose Bowl game following the 1931 season when Tulane's light fast eleven was overpowered by Southern California, 21 to 12.

In four years at Minnesota, where Bierman as a player was captain of the 1915 championship eleven, his teams have won 25, lost 3, and tied 4 games. The three defeats were the first season, the four ties the second. In 1934 and 1935, unbeaten, untied Gopher elevens were regarded by most critics as the strongest in the country.

What finally determined Bierman not to change his base of operations wasn't officially announced. Probably it was the splendid material nearly always available at Minneapolis, the fact that he is stationed at his alma mater, present harmonious relations there brought about by the tact on one side and executive ability on the other possessed by Athletic Director Frank McCormick, and comparative stability of position.

Football coaches in the Big Ten receive from $8,000 to $10,000 annually, a salary corresponding to that of professors and head professors in other subjects. Several have such title and faculty standing. It was bestowal of faculty rating that caused Clark Shaughnessy of University of Chicago a year ago to remain on the Midway instead of accepting the slightly more lucrative position at Harvard.

Theoretically, faculty rating means a life job with retirement allowance after a certain period of service. Retirement allowances are said to run about $3,000 per annum. That is the sum former Director Stagg of Chicago, we are told, receives from Chicago after his 41 years' service there, although he holds an active position at College of the Pacific at Stockton, Cal., because he still has the fire of youth in his wish to coach actively. His retirement by age was mandatory at the Midway.

Of course, that life job for coaches with faculty rating is partly theory, if strictly analyzed. The supposition is that he may be removed only for cause. But almost any coach with spirit and self-respect would resign under unanimous alumni criticism. Faculty rating, however, is interpreted by coaches to mean their jobs are not dependent on their teams winning championships every season.

Now about salaries, the $8,000-$10,000 scale prevalent in the conference corresponds pretty generally with that of larger colleges throughout the country. When the figure gets

REGENTS BLAST ATHLETIC BOARD BID FOR POWER

Reassert Right to Hire Coaches.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Tossing aside major recommendations by the faculty athletic board for solution of the University of Wisconsin athletic department's troubles, the board of regents tonight voted to conduct a "full, complete, and open investigation" of its own.

First witnesses will appear before the regents tomorrow. Among those notified to appear were Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, athletic director, and Dr. C. W. Spears, football coach.

It's a Battle Now.

In brief, the situation tonight had resolved itself into an open battle between the faculty athletic board and the regents, with the principal controversy somewhat removed from the immediate cause of the flareup early in December.

At its outset the controversy revolved about the circulation of a petition by John Golemgeske, captain-elect of the football team, asking the ouster of Coach Spears, which he [Golemgeske] said was instigated by Meanwell.

Rather than recommend specifically one or more dismissals or the other extreme, a whitewash, the faculty board, whose report was made available today by the regents, asked for full control of the power to hire and fire coaches and the athletic director, and to vest in the director of athletics authority "to select and modify the personnel of his division." Ratification of this recommendation, observers pointed out, would give Meanwell the power to oust Spears, "subject to the authority of the athletic board," which thus far has been outspoken in its support of the director.

The Answer Is "No."

At this request the regents made a point blank refusal and then voted to hold a complete investigation of their own.

The regents not only voted to conduct their own probe, but they agreed that the sessions shall be open, thereby setting a precedent since the trouble broke out three weeks before the holidays.

The attack on the faculty board's report, which was drafted yesterday after something "specific" had been demanded by the regents when they first studied the controversy in December, was led by regents Harold M. Wilkie, Madison, president, and Daniel L. H. Grady, Portage. Both are prominent attorneys.

"The report," Wilkie said, "is a real disappointment because it recommends nothing. It has reversed what I consider to be the real procedure of the athletic board. It has asked us to give it complete power before it brings in a recommendation."

Regents Hold Reins.

Late this afternoon Wilkie submitted a resolution in which he pointed out that the regents, by statute, are vested with government of the university, which by its nature, includes the authority to remove faculty members. "Thus, we cannot concur with the faculty board's request," it concluded.

The resolution was adopted unanimously and then held in abeyance until after a conference among three members from the regents and several members of the faculty board relative to clarifying the latter body's request.

Wilkie, J. D. Phillips, business manager of the university, and President Glenn Frank were named to represent the regents. Prof. Andrew T. Weaver, chairman of the faculty board, was to explain the recommendation.

Today, immediate principals in the affair, Golemgeske, Meanwell, and Spears, temporarily were forgotten while the faculty board and regents engaged in open combat as to which body has final authority in matters

DUBLINSKY TO MEET CELEBRON IN CICERO RING

A twelve round welterweight bout between Hary Dublinsky, Chicago boxer, and Billy Celebron, Rockford puncher, will be held at Cicero Stadium Jan. 29. This was indicated last night. Chairman Joe Triner of the state boxing commission said the winner will be recognized as Illinois' leading contender for a title bout with Champion Barney Ross.

Dublinsky's efforts to force Ross into a return bout have been unsuccessful thus far. Dublinsky, who fought eight rounds to a draw with Barney at Chicago Stadium in 1930, has been inconsistent. His record includeds victories over Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion, Tracey Cox and Eddie [Kid] Wolfe.

Celebron, 1933 international Golden Gloves welterweight titleholder, has scored five consecutive triumphs, three by knockouts in the first round, since September. He knocked out Ernie Kirchner, Laddie Tonelli and George Engel in one round each and beat Lou Halper, and Fritzie Zivic in ten rounds.

Eddie Shea, Chicago featherweight, will open training this afternoon at Madison Square loop gymnasium preparatory to launching a comeback. Shea, 31 years old in November, has not boxed since his defeat by Benny Bass at Atlantic City Aug. 31, 1934. He has placed his impending new campaign under the direction of Phil Denman of Chicago.

The California commission yesterday wired Secretary Gene Meany of the Illinois body, which has a reciprocal agreement with the far western state, that Hank Bath is in good standing, thus permitting him to go through with a scheduled ten round heavyweight elimination bout with Billy Treest, Batavia, Ill., at the Stadium Jan. 24.

Illinois held up its approval of Bath following reports from New York that the Fort Morgan, Colo., protégé of Jack Kearns is under a cloud, pending official information from California. The telegram, signed by J. M. Genshlea, secretary of the California board, follows:

"Neither Bath nor Kearns is suspended in California. Investigation showed no reason why either should have been penalized."

Two amateur bouts at five rounds and six at three rounds will be presented tonight at the Silver Dragon arena, 3741 West North avenue. Emil Campagna will clash with Warren Humphreys at 175 pounds and Verne Patterson is paired with Andy Fillmore at 130 at five rounds. Other bouts will bring together Ray Wozniak and Lou Johnson, Walt Cavalerie and Tom Snow, Frank Buchowski and Jim Dolan, Charles Zaborski and Eddie Foy, John Xanthais and Joe Gannon, and Joe Fox and Nick Rebey.

Holman Williams, Detroit, colored lightweight king, expects to appear on the card topped by a rematch between Willie [Gorilla] Jones, erstwhile middleweight champion, and Tait Littman at Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 27. . . . Jack Zeravich, Chicago heavyweight, and Jim Zaros, San Francisco, yesterday were signed to appear in a semi-final bout of the wrestling show Friday at Marigold Gardens. . . . Rudy Hoffman and Jack Mason will be opponents in the main event. . . . Champion Ross sparred three rounds yesterday with Al Lewis in preparation for his ten round nontitle match with Lou Halper at Philadelphia, Jan. 27. F. M.

ILLINOIS RACING BRINGS $303,853 TO STATE TREASURY

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Horse racing in the state of Illinois contributed $303,853 to the treasury from July 1 to Dec. 31, it was announced today. The money was turned over to the state agricultural premium fund for county and local fairs. The report also showed that the Illinois racing commission spent $3,693 during the six month racing season.

The receipts came from the following sources: License fees from tracks, $157,250; admission tax, $142,834, and license fees from trainers, jockies, etc., $3,769.

Coast Skier to Compete in Norge Meet

John Elverum of Los Angeles, Pacific coast champion, will compete in the Norge Ski club's 30th annual tournament Sunday at Fox River Grove.

Elverum has been looking for an opportunity to match leaps with Alf Engen of Salt Lake City, North American record holder, and the remodeled Norge hill will offer them plenty of chances to stretch.

Elverum's Style Effective.

Although Engen's best mark of 287 feet is a bit beyond Elverum's record, the latter has a style which the world's leading riders consider most effective. He leans far forward while in the air and from a spectator's point of view appears nearly parallel with his skis. This cuts down wind resistance and means greater distance.

This is the same style used by the famous Ruud brothers of Norway, who reside in Kongsberg, Elverum's home town. It is there this dangerous style originated. The Norge hill record is 183 feet.

Stars Arrive Tonight.

All three Engen boys and Elverum will arrive here late tonight, and will try out the Norge hill tomorrow. All are anxious to get the feel of the title slide and will work out tomorrow for several hours. There is plenty of snow on hand for the trial and more will be packed on every day until Sunday.

Special trains will run to the meet over the North Western road and there will be free parking for motorists. The meet will start at 1:30.

Rival Factions Seek Control at Wisconsin

Board Cites Rule.

The faculty board based its recommendation for full authority on a Big Ten rule which says: "Only institutions having full and complete faculty control of athletics may retain membership in the conference."

The board's specific recommendation was that "the president request the board of regents to issue a clear and positive statement of its desire and intention to support the athletic board in the exercise of its authority and fulfillment of its proper functions."

Regent Grady this afternoon declared that "nobody can say to a board of regents, acting under statutory mandate, that it must yield or delegate its power and duty of appointment and dismissal." He flared up again at what he called the athletic board's intimation that the regents are violating Big Ten rules by retaining this final authority regarding university personnel.

President Frank's opinion of the phrase "faculty control" was that it precluded a governing board [the regents] taking away from the faculty board the right to initiate policy in the athletic department. He pointed to the authority vested in deans and committees of other schools on the campus, but admitted that "because of the constant badgering, both from the outside and inside," the situation probably was different in the Wisconsin athlectic department.

CAVALCADE MADE FAVORITE FOR COAST HANDICAP

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Following reports from California that the Brookmeade stable's Cavalcade had worked three quarters of a mile in 1:13 2-5, winter book makers have established him the favorite in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap. Prices on him dropped from six to five to even money.

One consolation sentimental admirers of Cavalcade are enjoying is that George Woolf will ride. It was Woolf who brought home Azucar in the first Santa Anita handicap. So that Cavalcade will become fully acquainted with his new pilot between now and Feb. 22, Woolf has been working the horse daily.

The fractions for Cavalcade's last work were: Quarter in :24, half in :47 2-5, five-eighths in 1:00 2-5.

EX-MICHIGAN HOCKY STARS TO FACE SHAMROCKS

The Detroit Tools hocky team, which will meet the C. Y. O. Shamrocks at Chicago Stadium Sunday afternoon, will have three former University of Michigan stars in its starting lineup. The trio consists of Goalie Johnny Jewell, Ted Chapman, defense, and George David, right winger. The Detroit coach, Jack Tompkins, starred for Michigan in 1931.

JOE M'CARTHY GIVES UP HOPES OF MAKING DEAL

High Prices Discourage Yankee Manager.

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees today declared he is standing pat with his ball club because there is nothing he can do about it. Arriving in New York from his home in Buffalo he moaned that no one would do business with him at any price within the bounds of reason.

McCarthy declared he isn't interested in Freddy Lindstrom, cast adrift by the Cubs and has no spot in his entourage for Pinky Higgins, third baseman for the Athletics.

Predicts Good Team.

"With Joe Di Maggio coming from the Pacific Coast league, we will have a good ball club," Joe declared.

"We finished second last year despite everything. Bill Dickey got hit in the head and his work suffered. Lou Gehrig went into a bad slump and Lefty Gomez had an off year. Earl Combs got hurt and so did Frank Crossetti. Now, if Gehrig, Dickey and Gomez can only come back to their 1934 form we won't have anything to worry about.

"We'll probably be all right at second base. Tony Lazzeri is good if he's not worked too hard. And we can give him relief with Jack Saltzgaver and Don Heffner.

Tigers Are Strengthened.

"I'll admit the Detroit Tigers are even stronger now with Al Simmons, but we'll be pretty strong, too. And I don't figure the Red Sox, despite the wad of dough they've spent, will be any threat. We can win the pennant the way we are—and it looks like that's the way we'll go about it."

GRAND CIRCUIT STEWARDS TO MEET ON JAN. 27

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—E. Roland Harriman, president of the Grand Circuit, today issued a call for the stewards of the organization to meet in their annual session at Cleveland, Jan. 27.

The stewards are expected to set the 1936 racing dates and approve the expansion of the circuit to the west as well as to other cities in the middle west. All of the present members, including Goshen, N. Y.; Toledo, Syracuse, Cleveland, Springfield, Ill.; Lexington, Boston, and possibly Toronto, are expected to apply for dates.

Word has been received by officials of the circuit that a new track will be built at San Diego, Cal., for the trotters, while the Los Angeles County Fair association is expected to apply for dates for a meeting at Pomona. Milwaukee and Columbus may ask for dates.

LEVINSKY WHIPS HANK HANKINSON IN TEN ROUNDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—King Levinsky, wild swinging heavyweight from Chicago, pounded out a ten round decision over Hank Hankinson, 215 pound Akron, O., boxer, tonight before a capacity crowd of 10,400 at the Olympic auditorium.

BOSTON WHIPS TORONTO, 4 TO 1; HAWKS IN CELLAR

Goalie Thompson Is Given Assist on Long Pass.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins, cheered on by a capacity crowd of 16,125, quit the National league American division cellar by drubbing the Toronto Maple Leafs, 4 to 1, tonight at the Boston garden.

The victory, the first they have registered over the speedy Leafs this season, put the Bruins into third place, a half game in front of the idle Chicago Blackhawks.

Cooney Weiland put the Bruins out in front early by caging Peggy O'Neil's neat passout. Dit Clapper then hooked the puck away from Big Charlie Conacher in the Toronto zone and skated up to the enemy cage before driving a high shot home for the second goal. One of the Bruins saw this spectacular play from the penalty box.

Thompson Gets Assist.

Two goals down, the speedy Leafs put on a mighty five-man drive that ended with Buzz Boll caging the passout Bill Thoms fired from the rear of the Boston net. The trailing visitors made several desperate scoring attempts during the finale, only to have Goalie Tiny Thompson and Eddie Shore fire long passes that enabled Babe Siebert to break from center-ice, outskate the Toronto pack and score twice during the last three minutes of play.

BOSTON [4]		TORONTO [1]
Thompson	G	Hainsworth

CANADIENS WIN, 1 TO 0.

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—A puck that bounced off the shin pads of Roy Worters and rolled into the goal tonight gave the Montreal Canadiens a 1 to 0 victory over the New York Americans in a National Hocky league game played before 8,000 in Madison Square Garden.

The victory sent the Canadiens into third place in the International division of the league and shot the Americans down into the cellar.

The first period was 16:42 old when Jean Pusie picked up a loose puck near the blue line and passed to Pit Lepine. The latter fed the puck to Aurel Joliat who was crossing in front of the goal and snapped it toward the net. Worters slid his leg to the right to stop the disc, but it dropped to the ice, still carrying a trace of momentum, and rolled slowly into the net, while Worters, his legs spread wide, tried vainly to stop it with his hand. Lineup:

AMERICANS [0]		CANADIENS [1]

RANGERS, 2; MAROONS, 1

MONTREAL, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The revamped New York Rangers came from behind with a third period rally tonight and defeated the Montreal Maroons, 2 to 1, for their first National Hocky league victory in five games.

Only thirteen Rangers were in action, as Bunny Cook developed a touch of rheumatic fever and was unable to play. Bill Cook, slated for a defense post, pivoted the third line, while Earl Seibert, Ching Johnson, and Ott Heller handled the defense job.

The Maroons scored early in the first period when Earl Robinson slapped in a pass from Dave Trottier. In the middle of the third period the new Ranger first line of Butch Keeling, Frank Boucher, and Glen Brydson tied it with Keeling scoring. Cecil Dillon scored the winning goal three minutes later on Heller's assist. Lineups:

Aurora, Ill., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Two events have been added to the program for the western outdoor speed skating championships which will be held here on Lake Mastodon Jan. 26, according to announcement today by Elmer A. Moos, member of the board of control. These events are the class for girls under 16 years of age and a one mile race for intermediate boys.

Ouellette to Get Chance as Hawk Regular

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The slumpful Blackhawks were shuffled and reshuffled in respect to forward line combinations in a drill at Chicago Stadium yesterday morning. And tomorrow night they meet the sprightly league leaders, the Detroit Red Wings.

The Red Wings are owned by James Norris Sr., who also owns the Stadium. The last two times they have been here they acted like they considered the Hawks homeless waifs because the Hawk boss just rents the hall from their boss. The spirit of these occasions had a high note of unfriendliness. Furthermore, the tenants had to absorb a pushing around from the landlords, which is not a new situation in the economic scheme. The Red Wings won on Dec. 12, 3 to 1 and on Jan. 1 they won again, 4 to 2.

Great Games for Customers.

Both matches were great crowd pleasers, even though the home team lost. There was a fist fight in the first game and two fist fights in the second, not to mention many other matters which made for hilarious evenings on both occasions.

Yesterday's reshuffling didn't establish anything definite. The nearest thing to a decision was reached relative to the status of Eddie Ouellette. He is scheduled to supplant either Howie Morenz or Louis Trudell in tomorrow night's endeavor. Some have hinted that Howie and Louis Sunday night were skating around on their heels. Manager Clem Laughlin doesn't like this type of skating, and who does?

Ouellette worked out for an hour with Johnny Gottselig and Wildor Larochelle. Gottselig worked with Morenz and Mush March last year and in most games this year. Another line in yesterday's workout was composed of Donnie McFadyen, Doc Romnes and March. Tommy Cook and Bill Kendall were the steady factors in the line which in practice used alternately Morenz and Trudell, one of whom is to be benched according to present plans.

Wiebe, Thompson Absent.

Some concern has been expressed about the health status, if that makes any difference, aside from the sympathy any one feels when a personable athlete is hurt. Art Wiebe, one of the Hawk employés listed as a defense man, probably won't play at all, and if Marty Burke, also described as a defense man, goes on the ice, he will be suffering greatly from an injured wrist. Art Coulter will don skates also, and it is expected that Alex Levinsky will exert himself, as usual.

Paul Thompson, the Hawks' top scorer, and American division leader, will not be able to play until the Boston game Sunday night.

LAKE SHORE A. C. MEMBERS WILL GATHER TONIGHT

The Lake Shore Athletic club's program for 1936 activities will be announced when more than 500 members gather in the club's main ballroom tonight for the eighth annual members' get together. Among the subjects to be discussed will be the strong bid for honors, especially in swimming events, which the club hopes to make at the Olympic games in Berlin in August.

Guests of honor at the dinner will include:

NEW YORK BOXING OFFICIALS HEAR EDITOR'S CHARGES

New York, Jan. 14.—(AP)—The New York state athletic commission today launched an investigation into charges that a member of its staf openly connived with the gambling element in New York fight clubs. Nat Fleischer, editor of a boxing magazine, appeared before the commission to repeat charges made in a radio blast last week.

He said an investigation, made at the request of fight fans, revealed that one of the commissioner's inspectors placed bets with gamblers after ascertaining how the commission's judges were scoring the fights.

Fleischer promised to be on hand Friday with his witnesses, at which time the inspector in question will be called before the boxing commission.

Harper Beats Morgan Park in Overtime

Two overtime games featured the City High School Basketball league games yesterday in the junior division, Harper defeating Morgan Park, 27 to 26, and Parker beating Fenger, 23 to 20, in the extra period contests.

Parker led at the half, 9 to 8, but Fenger took the lead in the third quarter, 19 to 17. With four minutes remaining to play Foster of Parker hooked in a short shot to tie the score.

In the extra period Phee registered a short shot to put Parker in the lead. R. McGaghie then made good a free throw for Fenger and Johnson of Parker came right back to sink a step-in shot to give Fenger victory.

Free Throw Decides It.

Harper and Morgan Park were deadlocked, 26 to 26, when the regular period ended and Cieplik's free throw gave Harper the decision.

Manley turned in another big score, swamping Washburne, 52 to 9. Last Tuesday the Manley team overwhelmed Old Phillips, 50 to 9. Mass led the attack with eight baskets and one free throw. Tuley also took a lopsided contest from Wells, 49 to 4, with Rottner sinking eight goals and a free toss.

Schaefer Makes 21 Points.

High individual for the day and season thus far was Schaefer of Amundsen, who scored 21 of his team's 35 points to win from Senn by five points.

Kentucky's Pari-Mutuel '35 Handle Is $10,201,673

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The total pari-mutuel turnover for Kentucky in 1935 was $10,201,673, the biennial report of the Kentucky State Racing commission made public today reveals. This is an increase over 1933 and 1934 but less than a third of what passed through the mutuels in 1928 and 1929.

Bob O'Farrell Signs to Catch for Rochester

Haarlow Cuts Whitlinger's Scoring Lead

Bill Haarlow, tall sharpshooter of the University of Chicago's basketball team, is keeping right on the heels of Capt. Warren Whitlinger of Ohio State in the Big Ten conference individual scoring race. Capt. Whitlinger leads with 41 points, but Haarlow, who has played one game less than the Buckeye star, occupies second place with 39.

Haarlow took second place by making 17 points against Indiana last Monday. Bob Kessler, of the leading Purdue quintet, who held the No. 2 spot last week, slipped into a tie for third place with a teammate, Jewell Young, each with 31 points. Gunning of Indiana follows the two Boilermakers with 30.

BILL DELANCEY, CARDS' CATCHER, IS SERIOUSLY ILL

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Bill Delancey, young St. Louis Cardinal's catcher, lay seriously ill in St. John's hospital here today. Delancey was brought to St. Louis from Danville, Ill., where he had been under treatment for pleurisy since last October.

Dr. Robert Hyland, Cardinal physician, described Delancey's condition as serious. X-ray pictures were taken yesterday and Dr. Hyland reported that another announcement on the catcher's condition will be made tomorrow. The physician added that he would be able to ascertain if Delancey would be able to play with the Cardinals this coming season.

Brooklyn Mails Contracts; Several Salaries to Be Cut

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Contracts for the 1936 season were mailed to players by the Brooklyn National league baseball club today. According to Dodger officials several members of the team were given reductions in salary, while a few others were given increases.

Maroon Five Meets Loyola Team Tonight

Due for a comeback after three conference defeats in ten days, two of them by narrow margins to Wisconsin and Indiana, the University of Chicago's Maroons will meet the Loyola university team tonight at the Midway fieldhouse. A high scoring battle is indicated.

Indiana Game a Medium.

Chicago dropped a 3 point decision to Indiana Monday night, at 33 to 30. Earlier in the season Loyola lost to the Hoosiers, 32 to 25, which may or may not indicate that tonight's encounter will be close.

Loyola's star sophomore forward, Gart Winkler, yesterday developed an illness which may keep him out of tonight's game. His place will be taken by Bill Lynch. Thus far Loyola has beaten Arkansas State, Grinnell, Beloit, Ripon, and Vanderbilt, and has lost to Indiana, Iowa, Western State, Michigan State, and Detroit.

What Will Haarlow Do?

The fortunes of the Maroons depend heavily on whether Capt. Bill Haarlow clicks in his shooting. In eight games so far Bill has scored 3, 9, 28, 25, 6, 18, 4, and 17 points. Bill Lang, his running mate, is usually good for 6 to 10 points. Scoring ability of other Maroon regulars has been negligible to date. Lineups:

Grove Signs for Another Year with Boston Red Sox

Boston, Mass., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Bob [Lefty] Grove, veteran Boston Red Sox pitcher, who led the American league in earned run averages last season, today signed his 1936 contract. Eddie Collins, general manager of the Red Sox, said the southpaw received an increase in salary, but declined to reveal the figure.

It will be Grove's third season with the Boston club. According to Collins the star left hander, once a member of Connie Mack's great Philadelphia teams, signed his contract at the request of Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox.

MARQUETTE IS BEATEN, 37-22, BY NOTRE DAME

Late Spurt Decides the Contest.

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Notre Dame spurted early in the second half tonight to defeat Marquette, 37 to 22, before 4,500.

The score seesawed at the outset, but Notre Dame, paced by Paul Nowak, sophomore center from South Bend, who got all of his eight points in this half, pulled away to a 13 to 5 advantage midway in the opening period.

Marquette Nearly Ties.

Marquette fought back and nearly closed the gap, drawing up to 13 to 12, with Jimmy Rasmusen and Bill Rubado leading the attack. Long shots by Johnny Ford and Johnny Hopkins, midget forwards, enabled the Irish to reach the intermission leading 17 to 14, despite Rubado's short shot after dribbling under the basket.

Only Nowak of the starting five opened the second half for Notre Dame. John Moir was returned to team with Ray Meyer at forward. George Ireland and Frank Wade, both seniors, started at the guards. Meyer suffered recurrence of an old injury midway in the period and gave way to Ford.

Nowak Feeds Forwards.

Every one but Nowak took part in the second half outburst, which followed Rasmusen's long shot for Marquette. Nowak, however, fed the ball to Moir, Meyer, Ireland, and then Meyer again for four successive baskets and the Irish went on from there to make it 33 to 16 before Marquette could score a free throw. Rasmusen's opening shot in the second half was the only field goal Marquette got during the period.

ITALY IRKED BY SANCTIONS, QUITS DAVIS CUP PLAY

ROME, Italy, Jan. 14.—Italy will not compete in the Davis cup tennis matches this year. The announcement was made today by the Italian Sports federation. According to officials, players of nations which had applied sanctions against Italy will not participate in Italian matches. Italy won the European zone championship in 1930 and three years ago lost to Germany in the zone finals.

Ever since Tom was that big I've been distilling—

and here's our own Family's Whiskey

Yes sir, 43 years is what you might call a pretty long-drawn-out spell of whiskey making, but that's what it is—43 years. As a matter of fact, even before Tom was born, I was in the whiskey business—doing this and that about the distillery, and learning from my dad all the things that go to the making of whiskey that's got the smoothness and good taste that everybody's after. I don't wonder at it giving Pete Miller a chuckle when he sees my boys all grown up and working along with me on our Family's Whiskey. But Pete can laugh if he wants—Those boys of mine are just as much responsible as me for making our Family's Whiskey the mildest, tastiest whiskey Pete Miller and I guess anybody else ever got a swallow of. [Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 14.—Trading in bonds today was the heaviest since last March 6, as many prices rose to the best levels in five years. Second grade rail issues led the list into higher ground. Sales for the session amounted to $22,745,000, compared with Monday's total of $20,455,000.

An interesting feature of the market was the action of the treasury list, which displayed uniform strength. Bids were raised as the only means of getting bonds, for most of the firm offerings had been removed.

Bonus Trend Reassuring.

The financial community felt relieved to learn that although the latest ideas on bonus payment included the use of bonds in small denominations, these new securities are not to be transferable and are not to be issued during the next five months.

That would remove the danger of a large overtaxing of the market in the next few months either by the government directly or by the dumping of bonds by beneficiaries of the bonus.

Prime Issues Firm.

High grade corporation bonds were firm, but there was little trading in them. Success of the Canadian bond issue today, evidenced by the substantial premium it commanded in the open market, had a favorable influence on investment sentiment.

Practically all outstanding railway issues participated in the demand for second grade bonds. Gains ran as high as two points.

Foreign issues were quiet.

BUTTER FUTURES DECLINE; EGGS DROP ¼ TO 1¼ CENTS

Traders on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday construed the government report of butter in cold storage on Jan. 1 as bearish, inasmuch as it showed stocks to be about 3,000,000 pounds larger than expected, and they liquidated their holdings.

New buying and short covering developed on the decline, but the close was ⅜ to ½ cent lower, January at 31¼ cents.

Warm weather and increasing receipts led to selling of eggs, and the close was ¼ to 1¼ cents lower. January refrigerators closed at 17⅛ cents per dozen. Sales of butter were 258 cars, eggs 63 cars, and potatoes, 4 cars. Deliveries on January contracts aggregated 18 cars of butter. Prices:

COTTON PRICES IRREGULAR AS TRADING REMAINS LIGHT

Cotton futures fluctuated irregularly yesterday, with old crop months firm and the nearby deliveries weaker. Final trades in Chicago were 13 points higher to 13 points lower, and other markets were 12 points higher to 5 points lower. March showed the most strength due to selling of the January delivery against purchases of the distant future.

Consumption of American cotton in December aggregated 498,000 bales, according to the monthly census bureau report, compared with 508,000 bales in November and 417,000 bales in December, 1934. For the first five months of the season consumption totaled 2,416,000 bales, against 2,134,000 bales last year.

Spot cotton closed unchanged to 10 points higher, with New Orleans at 11.80 cents; Houston, 11.70 cents; Galveston, 11.55 cents, and New York, 11.95 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound:

BOND COMMITTEE FLAILS PLAN FOR SURFACE LINES

Urges Reorganization Under 77-B Law.

Branding the proposed plan for reorganization of the Chicago Surface lines a sham and unfair to security holders in that it allows bankers to alter it as they see fit, the protective committee of the Chicago Railways company participation certificates last night asked that reorganization be effected under section 77B of the bankruptcy laws.

A plea that directors of the Chicago Railways company be required to present a petition in court to insure such a proceeding was made yesterday in a letter to Gen. Abel Davis, chairman; Holman D. Pettibone, president, and Harrison B. Riley, Frank G. Gardner, and Henry J. Tansley, all of the Chicago Title and Trust company. These men, as voting trustees, can require such action.

Term Company Solvent.

"The Chicago Railways company is solvent, possessed of valuable rights, 16 millions of cash, and ample other assets and earnings to make good the investment," said C. H. Wilmerding, chairman of the protective committee which has on deposit a substantial majority of the issue.

"We think reorganization should be approached from the point of view of conserving assets intact, as in a 77B proceeding, pending a competent nonpolitical study of the engineering, legal, and financial terms of a general settlement."

The committee said security holders are "practically helpless" because of the expense of litigation, while the trustees "alone are in a position to guard" interests of security holders by compelling action under 77B.

In Receivership Nine Years.

"The Chicago Railways company has been in receivership over nine years," the letter said. "It has been a costly receivership benefiting receivers and lawyers, but no one else."

Solution of the traction problem is as far off as nine years ago, it was pointed out, except that senior bondholders had foreclosure decrees.

"The proposed plan is nothing but a façade behind which is concealed the real purpose—namely: to surrender to the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, the First National bank, and the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company the uncontroled power to accept from the city of Chicago any franchise which they may deem desirable and then to rebuild a capital structure to fit such a franchise."

Wilmerding called the plan a "financial shuffle" to benefit special interest.

SEEK $1,600,000 FEES IN INSULL RECEIVERSHIPS

Lift Midwest Costs to $2,000,000.

Claims for upward of $1,619,095 in fees and expenses in connection with the equity and reorganization receiverships of the Middle West Utilities company were filed yesterday with the clerk of the United States District court here. The concern was developed as the principal holding company in the utilities empire built by Samuel Insull.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who ordered the filing of the claims, indicated that in the next few days he will conduct hearings on the claims, at which objections may be made.

If the new claims are not reduced the total of fees and expenses in connection with the reorganization will exceed $2,000,000, inasmuch as fees and expenses already paid in the equity receivership litigation by order of Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley of Danville amounted to more than $400,000.

Reorganized Under 77B.

While the fees specifically requested total $1,396,172, the total is expected to be much higher, inasmuch as four of the 21 groups that submitted claims have left the amount of fees to be allowed to the discretion of the court. The expense claims included total $222,923.

The total of claims in the case is said to be the second largest aggregate of its kind ever filed in a United States court. It was exceeded, court attachés said, only by the claims of fees and expenses in the reorganization of the Paramount-Publix Motion Picture corporation. These totaled $3,239,796, but Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe of New York cut the actual allowances to $1,045,210, disallowing some claims altogether.

The entire value of the Middle West company, as indicated by nominal quotations of $8 a share for the 3,310,757 shares of new stock and $3 to $4 for the 310,757 stock purchase warrants, would be only $27,500,000.

Claimants in Inquiry.

Six of the claims came from persons or law firms involved in Federal Judge John P. Barnes' recent inquiry into the alleged recruiting of clients in bankruptcy cases of the type of the Middle West reorganization, and the purchase of clients in such cases by lawyers.

James H. Benjamin, who asked a fee of $65,000 and expenses of $6,976, was the center of Judge Barnes' inquiry. United States Attorney Michael L. Igoe is investigating the evidence taken in Benjamin's case with possible federal grand jury action in view.

Like the rest of the claimants, Benjamin filed a detailed accounting of time and money expended on the Middle West case. When Judge Barnes questioned him, he denied that he had kept records of any sort regarding his Middle West activities.

Other Attorneys Questioned.

Judge Barnes also questioned or received evidence regarding ex-Congressman Tom D. McKeown of Oklahoma, who set up a law office in Chicago after his defeat for reëlection, and Attorneys George Gannon, Walter V. Fackler, and Thomas V. Sullivan. All are asking fees in the Middle West case.

All of the claims previously had been filed with Attorney William J. Froelich, counsel for Daniel C. Green, trustee for the Middle West company, which only recently emerged from reorganization litigation under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy act. Froelich, as an officer of the Big Banks May Bring Test of FDIC Legality

New York, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Smoldering opposition by large banks to the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation broke out into the open today and provoked the possibility of an early court test of the legality of the deposit surety arrangement.

W. W. ALDRICH.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank, the nation's largest bank, told stockholders at their annual meeting today that the bank has paid its initial assessment under the permanent plan under protest and with the declaration of a reservation of legal rights.

At the annual meeting of the First National Bank of New York a stockholder asked a question regarding litigation against the FDIC. Jackson E. Reynolds, president, responded by stating that his bank was not bringing suit.

Only Small Amount Insured.

Aldrich declared that under the provisions of the banking act of 1935 Chase National is required to pay an annual assessment amounting to one-twelfth of 1 per cent of its total deposits, which, it is estimated, will amount to about $1,400,000 for 1936. On the other hand, he added, only $5,000 of each deposit is "insured," which means that only about 10 per cent of the Chase deposits are "insured."

Deposit insurance costs the First National bank about $1,000 a day, Reynolds declared. Only $6,000,000 of the bank's deposits are covered out of a total of $438,000,000, he added, and, therefore, the bank is paying 6 per cent on the deposits.

Net earnings of the Chase National for 1935 after taxes amounted to $15,340,189, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $1.82 on the common stock. A total of $3,057,966 was added to undivided profits during the year, bringing the figure to $21,897,329.

Loss on Van Sweringen Loans.

The extent of losses suffered in connection with the default of loans by the Van Sweringens was a leading question. Aldrich revealed his bank sustained a loss of $4,599,000 on a loan of $5,500,000, while James H. Perkins, chairman of the National City bank, said his bank recovered only $750,000 of an original $4,500,000 loan.

Aldrich spent considerable time in a discussion of excess reserves and money control. He stressed the point that "we are now at the stage when preventive action can be taken with a minimum of adverse effects and thereby forestall more drastic action.

"It also has been argued that an increase in the reserve requirements would freeze the excess reserves into the banking structures of the country and thereby prove embarrassing when the time arrives for gold to flow outward in the process of distributing it once more to the rest of the world."

Directing attention to the downward trend of bank earnings, Reynolds told stockholders that "when everything that matures is replaced with something lower you are going to go below the necessary $10,000,000 to cover the dividend pretty soon." Earnings for 1935, he said, were $11,354,103.

U. S. AWARDS OIL LEASE NEAR TEAPOT DOME TO SINCLAIR FIRM

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—A company controled by Harry F. Sinclair, prominent figure in the celebrated Teapot Dome investigation, today acquired part of the government's oil rentals from the Salt Creek field in Wyoming, adjoining the Teapot Dome preserve. Award by Secretary Ickes of a contract for "royalty" oil from the field was made jointly to the Sinclair Wyoming Oil company and the Socony-Vacuum Oil company, Inc., subsidiary of Standard Oil of New York.

The one year contract is expected to yield the government about $1,000,000, one-third of its estimated royalties during 1936 from the lease of mineral rights to public lands.

The Sinclair interests, which in recent years have supplied large quantities of oil to drive navy ships, acquired a lease on Teapot Dome through the Mammoth Oil company. As a result of a senate investigation, however, the lease was canceled and the field is now inoperative as a part of the naval oil reserve.

Sinclair was acquitted of charges that he had given a bribe to Albert B. Fall, the former secretary of the interior, who awarded him the lease. The latter was convicted of accepting it. The oil man, however, in 1929 served a seven month sentence for refusing to answer a senate committee's questions.

Parks, County Pick Agents to Refund Bonds

Two local governments, Chicago Park district and Cook county, yesterday took definite action toward selecting refunding agents to carry out bond refunding programs aggregating 146 million dollars.

Park commissioners named Halsey, Stuart & Co. as agents to effect refunding of 99 million dollars unmatured and past due bond and interest obligations. A special sub-committee of county commissioners voted to recommend to the finance committee acceptance of a bid by Stifel, Nicolaus & Co., and A. C. Allyn & Co. to carry out the 47 million dollar county refunding proposal.

In accepting the proposal of Halsey, Stuart & Co., park commissioners turned down an offer of the five large downtown Chicago banks to act as refunding agents.

Park Refunding Cost $600,000.

Robert J. Dunham, park district president, told commissioners the remuneration under the bank plan would cost the district approximately $850,000, while the refunding cost under the Halsey proposal would be $600,000.

The park district refunding plan provides for issuance of $10,503,666 series A bonds to refund bonds now due and to mature on or before June 30; $81,153,451 series B bonds to be exchanged for bonds of all superseded park districts maturing after June 30; $3,137,045 series C bonds to be issued to refund Lincoln Park bonds held in the district's own funds, and $4,291,546 series D bonds to refund defaulted interest.

All new bonds will mature in twenty years. Series A, C, and D will be 4 per cent obligations, callable March 1, 1946, and series B will be callable on the March 1 following the maturity of bonds turned in for exchange and carry similar coupons.

County Plan to Cost $152,000.

The Stifel-Allyn bid approved by the county committee specified fees which, according to Assistant State's Attorney William J. Tuohy, adviser to the board, would aggregate about $152,000. The proposal calls for additional compensation contingent on the premium received.

The county refunding program calls for the exchange of 36 million dollars unmatured bonds for new obligations and the sale of 11 million dollars new refunding bonds to pay off defaulted claims. Any premium up to 1 per cent on the bonds to be sold for cash would be paid to the refunding agent under the Stifel-Allyn proposal.

The county finance committee will hold a special meeting this morning to consider the recommendation of the sub-committee.

RFC AND GREAT NORTHERN FIX FUNDING PLAN

2 Large Corporate Issues Due Today.

Announcement yesterday that two large corporate bond offerings would be made today appeared simultaneously with a disclosure that an agreement had been reached in Washington between Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and W. P. Kenney, president of the Great Northern railway, for the road's $100,000,000 bond refunding operation. The new issue will replace an equal amount of 7 per cent bonds maturing July 1.

Jones disclosed the Great Northern bonds will be dated prior to July 1, 1936, and mature July 1, 1946. They will bear 4 per cent interest and will be offered to stock and bondholders. The RFC agrees to purchase any amounts not subscribed. By offering to take all bonds not disposed of the RFC, in effect, underbid private bankers, who had offered to underwrite the issue at 5 per cent plus underwriting charges.

Two Issues Planned.

The call price will be 105 through July 1, 1941; for the next three years 103, 101 the year after, and par plus interest from then on. Two issues of bonds are provided, one convertible into stock at 40 and the other convertible into stock at 75. In lieu of a sinking fund the road agrees with the RFC that if $20,000,000 principal amount of new bonds are not converted on or prior to maturity presently existing funded debt will be or will have been reduced by $20,000,000, including any reduction brought about by a partial conversion.

The plan to subject to approval by the directors of the road, who are expected to act within a week at a meeting in St. Paul, Minn., and approval of the interstate commerce commission. Jones said that if the government agency acts favorably the railway will be ready to issue the bonds between May 1 and June 1. He said the bonds already are being quoted on a when issued basis at 103⅛ and that he did not expect the RFC would be called upon to buy any of the issue.

Net income of the Great Northern for 1935 was approximately $7,000,000, Kenney said. In 1934 the road had a deficit of $1,074,480. The carrier's showing on the basis of this estimate would be the best in five years.

Other Roads Seek Loans.

Jones also said the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad had approached the RFC for loans with which it plans the purchase of new equipment. He said the road was seeking an arrangement under which it could produce advances for equipment purchases from time to time as new equipment was needed.

The Wheeling Steel company will offer $35,000,000 first mortgage 4½ per cent bonds priced at 101½ and due in 1966, through a syndicate headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. Proceeds will be used to retire bank debts, refunding of existing bonds, and for additions and betterments to plant.

W. C. Langley & Co. will head an underwriting group offering today $27,000,000 West Penn Power company first mortgage 3½ per cent bonds due in 1966, proceeds of which will refund $8,500,000 first mortgage 5s, series A, and $18,500,000 first mortgage 5s, series G. Both issues are redeemable at 105.

An issue of $1,500,000 Continental Steel corporation ten year 4¼ per cent sinking fund debentures will be offered today at 100½ by Harris Hall & Co. and F. S. Moseley & Co. At the same time an issue of 25,000 shares of the company's common stock will be offered by Conrad, Bruce & Co.

The City of San Francisco awarded an issue of $3,000,000 tax anticipation notes to the First Boston corporation or a .13 per cent interest basis, plus a premium of $11.50. The notes are payable on May 15, 1936.

Harris, Hall to Open New Headquarters Today

The new offices of Harris, Hall & Co., securities underwriting firm recently formed by former officers of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, will be formally opened today at 111 West Monroe street. The company was organized to carry on the business of corporate financing formerly handled by the bond department of the Harris bank.

Chicago Banks Take Lead in Giving Facts to Depositors

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The latest development in this move toward greater frankness is the 1935 annual report of the Merchandise Bank and Trust company, released last night, bearing on its cover the boast "The most complete bank statement in America." It carries a detailed income and expense account in comparative form for 1935 and 1934 and presents a complete list of securities owned by the bank.

This follows on the heels of the disclosure by the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company of an itemized profit and loss statement. Many of the smaller outlying banks this year, for the first time, are giving out earnings figures at their annual meetings.

Nichols Starts Trend.

J. M. [100 Per Cent] Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, who several years ago startled the banking world by publishing an itemized list of his bank's investments, this year contributes his bit by not only announcing the amount of the bank's earnings but showing how it profited through the sale of government bonds sufficiently to write down its building, its safe deposit facilities, and its stock in the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago.

The Citizens National Bank of Chicago Heights this year took its place in the parade by publishing a detailed statement of its assets, together with some homely philosophy on the subject of frankness.

Defines Depositor's Rights.

"When a depositor comes into our bank and makes a deposit he is actually loaning us money," says this bank in its year-end statement. "Therefore, he has just as much right to know who we are, whether or not we make a profit, how we operate our business, and what we have and how much we owe."

George B. Everitt, chairman of the Merchandise Bank and Trust company, stated yesterday that he believed his bank is the first in the country to present a detailed income and expense account in comparative form.

"From the viewpoint of the orthodox banker, and especially from the viewpoint of those banks that are not sufficiently fortunate in their figures to be able to expose themselves completely, there may be merit in holding back," he said. "However, if 'eating the pudding' is really any proof, it is quite evident that the general public is most responsive to what we classify as a modern attitude toward the people who entrust money to our keeping."

Cummings Surprises Board.

The action of Chairman Walter J. Cummings of the Continental in breaking down the figures for gross and net earnings at the bank's annual stockholders meeting last Friday came as a surprise to his own directors, it was learned yesterday. Among other things he disclosed that the bank had profited $5,865,000 from the sale of government securities, that $1,251,000 was paid to officers and $4,522,000 to other employés during 1935, and that the bank had lost $339,000 on its savings accounts last year.

A new high in this policy of frankness by Chicago banks was attained yesterday when President Nichols of the First National of Englewood granted a newspaper reporter's request to sit in at a directors' meeting.

Prior to 1929 the information given out by practically every bank in the United States was limited to a skeletonized balance sheet. Occasionally some bank would give out the bare figures covering its gross and net earnings.

SUPREME COURT TEST OF SEC IS ACCEPTED BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The government today accepted a challenge to test the constitutionality of the 1933 securities act in the Supreme court.

In a memorandum Solicitor General Stanley Reed agreed that a case brought by J. Edward Jones, oil securities promoter, raised the question whether the government has the right to require registration of new securities.

The case grew out of Jones' refusal to answer a subpena issued by the securities commission in connection with registration for an issue of oil royalties which the commission alleged contained "untrue statements."

Reed said the issue was of "obvious public importance," but he sought to limit the test "to the question of power of congress to enact the registration requirement" of the act. Jones has attacked it on other points, including that of excessive delegation of legislative authority.

Sizable Recoveries Expected by Brown.

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

Earnings of the First National bank during 1936 will not be much larger than last year, President Edward E. Brown told stockholders yesterday at their annual meeting. There are, however, no more charge-offs in sight, he added, and there should be some substantial recoveries on items which have been written down.

"The last year was rather a poor one in some respects," Brown remarked, "but it marked the end of charge-offs and saw some recoveries. Our common stock was placed on a $4 annual dividend basis—a relief to all of us, I imagine. As for myself, most of the money I have in the world is in stock of the First National bank."

It was learned afterward that Brown has about 500 shares of the stock in his own or members of his family's names or in trusts.

Will Let RFC Stock Stand.

Brown said the First National plans no retirement of preferred stock owned by the Reconstruction Finance corporation other than as required under its agreement that 40 per cent of net earnings must be set aside in a retirement fund up to a maximum of $1,250,000 annually. This is 5 per cent of the original $25,000,000 sold the RFC. The bank retired $10,000,000 of the stock last month, lifting itself out of danger of dominant control by the RFC.

There is no intention of declaring any stock dividends on the common as RFC stock is retired, he added, though the bank will maintain a capital structure in excess of $50,000,000.

Brown Asked to Speak.

Brown's informal, extemporaneous remarks might not have been made had it not been for a stockholder who suggested that the bank's president might have a few words to say. At the time a motion for adjournment was being entertained.

"Of course, of course," agreed Edwy Logan Reeves, chairman of the meeting. Reeves, an attorney, is a fixture as chairman of First National stockholder meetings. With the exception of last year, when illness prevented, he has presided at every annual meeting for 20 years despite the fact that he never has held office in the bank.

The meeting appeared to mark a return to normal generally. Scarcely a dozen shareholders were present, aside from officers and directors. Only one question was asked, Brown replying that the real estate department had lost money because of the large amount of service rendered and lack of demand for real estate loans.

One Change in Directorate.

As one of the 37 banks which were holding annual meetings of stockholders or directors or both, the First National made one change in its di-

PACKING SHARES AND OILS LEAD RISE IN STOCKS

Armour Preferred Issue Rises Eight Points.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 14.—Meat and oil were the twin centers of speculative activity on the stock exchange today. Packing issues were particularly buoyant, upturns amounting to as much as 8 points in one of the Armour preferreds. Wilson shares were also active and strong. A number of new highs for 1935-'36 were chalked up as a result of the rally. Total volume amounted to 2,790,000 shares.

Demand for the oils was a continuation of buying which began to make itself felt two weeks ago when the boosting of crude oil prices and talk of gasoline rate rises made the outlook for this long-suffering industry a little brighter.

Socony Hits New Top.

Socony-Vacuum rose to the best price in a year. Consolidated and Houston were conspicuously active. The pure oil preferreds jumped 6 and 7 points on news of plans for paying off back dividends. Ohio, Tidewater Associated and Shell Union attracted attention.

Rails came to the front in the final hour, Chesapeake, Alleghany, Pennsylvania and Pere Marquette moving up impressively. New York Central reached a new price peak on a fractional gain. Equipments advanced with the carriers. Baldwin preferred, in a thin market, rose nearly 3 points.

An assortment of other low priced issues found buyers willing to gamble on the prospects of inflation as a result of present bonus and dollar devaluation talk, and rose moderately.

Communications Advance.

Bullish sentiment toward the communication industry lifted American Telephone $2 a share on brisk buying and I. T. & T. to new high ground on a fractional gain. Western Union added a major fraction to its value.

Metals were backward, especially silver shares. The power and light shares were also less prominent than they have been. The Supreme court's failure to hand down a decision on the TVA yesterday tended to dampen enthusiasm.

Small declines took place in mail orders stocks. Steels were firm but less active.

Specialties included Cash Register and Remington, which rose large fractions in greater activity; Electrical and Musical, and Advance Rumely, taken over by Allis Chalmers, quoted ex the distribution of a half share of Allis plus a dollar in cash on each share. The price trebled on a few sales.

A membership on the New York Stock exchange was sold today for $170,000, up $15,000 from the previous transaction and a new high since August, 1933.

It was Judge Wilkerson who on Nov. 27 approved the compromise plan of reorganization, thus ending three and one-half years of litigation into which the Middle West company was plunged when the Insull utilities empire collapsed. The successor company, the Middle West corporation, headed by Green, will remain under the jurisdiction of the court until July 1, 1937.

Details of Claims.

These law firms and individuals ask specific fees:

Jacobson, Merrick, Nierman & Silbert, counsel for petitioning creditors: fees, $225,000; expenses, $8,771.

Bankers' Counsel Makes Claim.

Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, counsel for the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, which held much of the collateral of the Middle West Utilities company: fees, $50,000; expenses, $5,576.

White & Case, counsel for the Bankers' Trust company of New York which also was a secured creditor of the utility company: fees, $40,000; expenses, $2,654.

Charles A. McCulloch, receiver: fees, $142,450; expenses, none.

Lucey, Weil & Tell, counsel for some of the stockholders: fees, $10,000; expenses, none.

Attorney Thomas V. Sullivan and the law firm of Gannon, McGinn & Whitson, counsel for some of the stockholders: fees, $150,000; expenses, $348.

The reorganization committee headed by Abner J. Stilwell, a vice president of the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company: fees, none; expenses, $34,840.

Ryan, Condon & Livingston, counsel for the estate of the late Edward N. Hurley, formerly co-receiver of the company with McCulloch and Samuel Insull: Fees, $15,000; expenses, none.

Ask to Have Fees Fixed.

Samuel A. Ettelson and Leonard B. Ettelson, counsel for some of the stockholders: expenses, $14,232.

William J. Froelich, counsel for the trustee; expenses, $1,139.

Daniel C. Green, trustee: expenses, none.

Walter J. Fackler, counsel for some of the stockholders, expenses, $17,000.

All of the claims filed yesterday were accompanied by detailed accountings of time and money expended. In the past criticism had been expressed against the practice of those involved in receivership matters of submitting lump sum claims that did not list specifically the amounts involved.

Henry P. Isham, president of the Clearing Industrial District, Inc., was elected a director to succeed Charles A. McCulloch, who asked that he not be reëlected because his absence from Chicago due of other business in New York and Florida prevented regular attendance at board meetings. A. B. Johnson, a vice president, was elected to the board to bring its number up to 25 members.

The directors, meeting later, reëlected all officers and promoted five men from staf to official positions. William C. Bruhn and Vernard S. Higby were made assistant cashiers. L. A. Jenkins, P. L. Stevenson, and A. S. Thorwaldson were named assistant trust officers.

Oscar F. Meredith was promoted from assistant cashier to vice president. Clarence B. Jennett, assistant manager of the real estate loan department and vice president of the First-Trust Joint Stock Land bank, was made vice president.

From assistant cashiers to assistant vice presidents went Thomas J. Butler, Clarence E. Carlson, M. J. Hardacre, Edward J. Jennett, and Herbert V. Prochnow.

Promotions and simplifications of titles in the trust department, all affecting officers, follow: Emerson R. Lewis, Robert L. Grinnell, Forrest Williams, Coll Gillies, and Thomas H. Beacom Jr., to assistant vice presidents; Henry H. Benjamin, trust officer; Leslie C. Gilbertson and Paul H. Dunakin, assistant trust officers.

AMERICAN NAT'L DIRECTORS

The American National Bank and Trust company increased its directorate from nine to eleven members. One of the new places went to Harold E. Foreman, former president of the Foreman State-National bank, who joined the bank last May as vice president. He also was made executive vice president yesterday. The other new places on the board went to Carl S. Lloyd, of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin & Ellis. Other directors and officers were reëlected.

Directors also declared a common stock dividend of $2, payable in equal instalments Jan. 15 and April 15 to shareholders of record Jan. 14 and April 14, respectively. This maintained the $4 annual rate.

New Northern Trust Officers.

The Northern Trust company directors elected nine new officers and made four promotions. Solomon B. Smith was elevated from second to first vice president, Robert M. Roloson Jr. and Fred J. Koch were raised from assistant secretaries to second vice presidents, and George D. Maxfield from assistant auditor to second vice president.

Named assistant secretaries were Walter J. Madigan, Thomas L. McDermand, Francis J. Holland, Frank F. Selfridge, Donald Laing, and Edward L. Hruda. New assistant cashiers are Albert E. Walkoe and Alan R. Kidd. Alford J. Baschen was elected assistant manager of the bond department.

The City National Bank and Trust company reëlected all officers and directors and made no announcements or comments on business.

Live Stock National Profits.

David H. Reimers, vice president of the Live Stock National bank, told stockholders that 1935 profits, after all charges and reserves, amounted to $250,149. Deposits of $21,316,790 represent a 19 per cent gain in the year. Reimers also said $500,000 has been transferred from undivided profits to surplus, making total surplus equal to the bank's capital of $1,000,000. The bank is in excellent position to profit from any increased demand of business, he commented, adding that there are no known losses or items of a doubtful nature remaining on the books. Investments are confined largely within a five year maturity range. Low yields on investments hamper earnings, he added.

Richard Hackett, general manager of the Central Manufacturing district, was elected a director, increasing the board from 10 to 11 members. I. E. Bennett was elected assistant cashier. No other changes were made.

DROVERS ADD DIRECTOR

The Drovers National bank and Drovers Trust and Savings bank added Charles Aaron, an attorney, to the directorate of both institutions. All present officers and directors were renamed. A $3 dividend, payable $1.50 on April 1 and $1.50 on July 1, was declared by directors of the Drovers National bank.

J. M. [100 per cent] Nichols, president, reported the First National Bank of Englewood had 1935 profits of $15,000 exclusive of profits from sale of government securities. The latter, bought at the time the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation was threatening to crack down because the bank refused to become a member, were bought at about 101 and sold at about 106. The profit, plus interest received, netted approximately enough to cover $85,000 in charge-offs.

Nils Olson, an attorney, was elected a director in the only change of the bank's board or staf.

Only changes at the National Boulevard bank were promotions to vice presidents of Hugh M. Driscoll and Harry E. Lee, former assistant vice presidents.

Walter R. Costello, recently associated with William L. O'Connell, general receiver of state banks, was elected vice president, effective Feb. 1, of the Terminal National bank.

The Chicago City Bank and Trust company expanded its board from 12 to 14 members, adding Fred H. Korthauer, vice president of the Mutual National bank, and Chester W. Kulp, of the law firm of Rathje, Hinkley, Barnard, Kulp and Tucker.

NEW PRESIDENT CHOSEN

The South Chicago Savings bank named Guy A. Nelson president to succeed Warren W. Smith, who was made chairman of the board. Edwin L. Wagner was chosen vice president and N. M. Fredrickson was made vice president and cashier.

Simeon Leland, professor of economics at the University of Chicago, was elected a director of the University State bank to succeed John F. Hagey, who resigned last year. The directors' meeting for election of officers was postponed to Jan. 20 to permit attendance of Prof. Leland, who is in Washington.

The District National bank elected Walter Gatzert a director and elevated Joseph D. Cavanaugh from assistant vice president to vice president.

The South East National bank elected Henry T. Boberg, assistant cashier, to succeed Ernest L. Johnson, cashier, who was named head of the new trust department. Rollin M. Coleman, assistant cashier, was promoted to vice president.

The Rev. Casimir Gronkowski of St. Adalbert's Catholic church was elected director of the Milwaukee Avenue National bank as the board was expanded from eight to nine members.

Cashier Elevated.

B. J. Schwoeftermann, cashier, was elected executive vice president of the Citizens National Bank of Chicago Heights. H. M. Meidell was promoted from assistant cashier to cashier and Kenneth Modeng became vice president. Mathew Walwer and Leon Berolzheimer were elected assistant cashiers.

The First National Bank of Cicero elected Harry W. Keppner a director to succeed Edward Stuchlik, who had resigned. Officers are to be elected today.

F. L. Johnson, Carl A. Gerlach, and John Dietrick were elected directors of the La Grange Trust and Savings bank to succeed A. B. Hall, Edward E. Farrell, and F. E. Barrett.

The Riverside [Ill.] State bank elected T. W. Merritt director to fill a vacancy caused by the death of F. K. Babson.

RE-ELECT OFFICERS, BOARD

All directors and officers were renamed by the Lake View Trust and Savings bank, Aetna State bank, Merchants National bank, First National Bank and Trust company of Evanston, First National Bank of Barrington, First National Bank of Blue Island, Chicago Heights National bank, Lawndale National bank, Riverside State bank, Suburban Trust and Savings of Oak Park, and Cook County Trust and Savings of Homewood.

All directors were reëlected by the Halsted Exchange National bank, State Bank and Trust Company of Evanston, La Grange National bank, and Austin State bank.

C. B. Hutchins, president of Hutchins Lumber and Storage company of Blue Island, was elected president of the State Bank of Blue Island to fill a vacancy which has existed since the bank was reopened last Jan. 16.

Edward M. Kralovec, president and treasurer of the Kralovec Motor corporation, was elected a director of the Kaspar American State bank.

Directors and officers of the Oak Park Trust and Savings bank were reëlected with the exception of Allen R. Le Roy, former director and vice president, who has moved to California.

LINCOLN SHOWS LUXURY LINE AT DRAKE DISPLAY

A luxury line of motor cars with bodies designed by the nation's leading custom coachmakers and mounted on Lincoln chasses, has been placed on display in the Drake hotel by the Lincoln Motor Car company. The exhibit will continue until Saturday.

Several models of the new V-12 Lincoln-Zephyr, a product of Lincoln and Ford engineering, are also on exhibition. The de luxe line includes a wide variety of custom coachwork. Some were produced by Lincoln craftsmen and others by Judkins, LeBaron, Willoughby, and Brunn.

ALL LARD FUTURES DECLINE TO LOW PRICES FOR SEASON

Commission houses and cash interests were moderate sellers of lard futures yesterday as the result of the sharp decline in hogs. All deliveries dropped to a new low for the season, with the close around the bottom at net losses of 15 to 20 cents.

Uncertainty regarding the proposed new farm relief legislation in congress is said to have some effect on sentiment. Clear bellies [salt pork] were inactive and closed nominally 15 cents lower.

Cash lard was quoted at $10.87, loose and leaf $10.25, and clear bellies at $16.25 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds:

FIRST CHICAGO PACKER SUES TO RECOVER TAXES

Miller & Hart Ask Return of Impounded Funds.

Miller & Hart, Inc., yesterday became the first of the Chicago packing companies to seek a return of processing taxes assessed under the recently invalidated Agricultural Adjustment act.

Others, including some of the "big four" of the industry, are expecting to start similar proceedings in the next few days to regain possession of between $50,000,000 and $55,000,000 which was placed in escrow in this federal district pending decision of the constitutionality of the taxes.

Dwight H. Green, former United States district attorney, appeared as counsel for Miller & Hart in yesterday's action before Federal Judge John P. Barnes.

Ask Release of $600,000.

The release of approximately $600,000 in bonds and cash deposited with the court in connection with injunction proceedings against collection of the processing taxes was asked.

A continuance was granted by Judge Barnes. He postponed hearing on the matter until tomorrow morning at the request of Assistant United States District Attorney Carl E. Perkins, who based his plea on the fact that the department of justice has not yet decided whether or not it will ask a rehearing from the United States Supreme court.

Expect More Suits Soon.

Following the high court's opinion on Monday in the rice millers' case, holding that processing tax moneys impounded in the courts could not be collected by the government and should be returned to processors, opinion in packing circles is that all companies will file suits shortly to recover funds in escrow either in cash, bonds, or surety bonds.

At least one of the big packers is planning to file requests for release of the impounded funds in the next few days.

CIGARET MAKERS SUE.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 14.—(AP)—The Axton-Fisher Tobacco company filed a federal court petition here today to recover $1,186,472.15 in processing taxes.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was firm today at the newly established spot price of 3.20c made late yesterday, an advance of 5 points. This was on a sale of 11,000 bags of Porto Rican for January shipment. An additional 63,000 bags of Philippines were sold for January to March shipment at 3.25c. The only transaction today was 16,200 bags of Philippines for February arrival at 3.25c to an outport refiner.

Early steadiness in futures was followed by reactions under increased liquidation and hedge selling, with the market closing 2 to 3 points net lower on active positions.

RUSH OF BUYING HALTS DECLINE IN HOG PRICES

Supply Absorbed as Market Rallies.

Buying orders for hogs poured into the Chicago stockyards yesterday when prices dipped 20 to 30 cents under pressure of heavy receipts that farmers dumped on the market to take advantage of the high level of prices that has prevailed since the processing tax was removed. The trend of the market was reversed when large local interests fought for volume at the day's decline and final quotations were fully 10 cents above the low spot or the forenoon.

Selected 190 to 230 pound young hogs topped at $9.95 to big local packers late in the day, while the bulk of the best 200 to 300 pound averages went over the scales at $9.80 to $9.90. At the high time of the preceding session $10.20 was paid and early last week before the trade knew that the AAA had been thrown out similar kinds were sold at $9.50.

Average Price Is $9.80.

Yesterday's average price at $9.80 indicated a decline of 20 cents compared with Monday, but it still shows a gain of 45 cents over the low day just prior to the removal of the tax.

Receipts at Chicago yesterday totaled 32,000 hogs, the largest for a Tuesday since Dec. 18, 1934. Eleven leading markets handled 83,000, compared with 66,000 on the preceding Tuesday and 77,000 a year ago.

Receipts at Chicago in the eight days since the dissolution of the AAA totaled 170,458 head, compared with only 79,333 for the eight days just prior to the Supreme court decree.

Average net returns to farmers during the eight days of immense receipts were 55 cents per hundred pounds greater than returns during the eight days of extremely light runs, a gain of about $1.25 per hog.

Lambs and Cattle Easier.

Other live stock sold mostly weak to lower yesterday. Lambs declined 10 to 25 cents, packers getting the bulk of good to choice native and fed butchers late paid up to $10.85.

Strictly prime steers over $13 and some of the plainer classes below $8 held fully steady early yesterday, but the bulk of steers declined 15 to 25 cents, with the clearance incomplete in most classes. The top was $14.35 and the bulk of steers brought $7.50 to $11.

GRAINS QUIET; TRADERS FEAR NEW WHEAT TAX

Price Changes Are Held to Fractions.

Little interest was taken in the grain markets yesterday and trading was the smallest in some time. Buying of July against sales of May wheat furnished a good part of the business in that grain with the close unchanged on May and fractionally higher on the new crop months. Price changes in corn, oats, and rye were confined to small fractions.

Routine news attracted little attention and operators in wheat were disposed to go extremely slow on either side of the market pending further developments in Washington. Fears that congress may impose a new levy on wheat in proposed farm relief legislation, similar to the 30 cent per bushel AAA processing tax which was recently declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court, are regarded as curtailing aggressive buying of flour.

May Wheat Around $1.

Resting orders to buy May wheat were encountered around 99½ cents per bushel, while advances above $1 ran into scattered selling, resulting in prices holding within a range of ⅜ cent for the day.

According to pit gossip there has been some buying of July wheat lately against sales of May in the belief that congress will find a way to prevent a large increase in the spring wheat acreage. This view was a factor in bringing in short covering at Minneapolis with the close on the nearby deliveries one cent higher. Winnipeg was dull and closed unchanged with only a limited export demand reported.

Prices on May Deliveries.

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.00	$1.00	$1.03
Corn	.60	.59⅞	.61⅛
Oats	.27⅞	.28	.29
Rye	.53⅞	.53⅝	.54⅞

Corn futures held within a range of ⅜ cent per bushel and finished ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower, with May showing the most strength. Country offerings to arrive were light and the shipping demand moderate.

The open interest in all deliveries at the close on Monday was only 22,429,000 bushels, which is regarded as unusually small for this season of year and is taken to reflect the extremely small outside interest at the present time.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Moderate sales of cotton gray goods were made at unchanged prices today. New quotations in percales were made on the basis of lower dry goods values which followed the AAA decision. Raw silk was off 3c per lb. Silk fabrics were quiet. Fair sales of rayon fabrics were reported. Raw wool sales were averaging 500,000 lbs daily. Women's wear wool fabrics were in active demand. Burlaps continued strong.

"REPEATEDLY PROVED"

—Roy D. Chapin
President, Hudson Motor Car Company

"The major portion of our advertising appropriation is, and for years has been, invested in newspaper advertising. This is justified by the fact, repeatedly proved in our experience, that advertising in newspapers produces immediate action at the point of sale. It supplies the final punch in a well-rounded campaign."

ILLINOIS THEATER SITE LEASED FOR $21,000 PER YEAR

Deal with Auto Parks, Inc., Runs for Decade.

BY AL CHASE.

Dimmed lights for the Illinois theater will mean $210,000 rental for the site it now occupies to be paid the liquidating trustees by the Loop Auto Parks, Inc. This was disclosed yesterday when the final steps in the leasing of the historic property were concluded by Andrew G. Halas and Charles Reynolds of Bills Realty, Inc., who negotiated the transaction. The lease is for ten years at $21,000 annually.

The lease provides that the lessee shall wreck the old playhouse and also at the end of the first year of the ten year term shall erect a one story steel frame which not only will cover the entire 72x160 lot but will afford parking space on its roof. In addition the present basement of the theater is to be retained for parking use.

Space for 200 Cars.

When all three levels are in use the parking station will have a total capacity of 200 cars, it was stated. Ramps will lead down to the basement and up to the roof.

Bids will be taken for razing the theater within the next few days with the expectation of having wreckers on the job early next week. It will take approximately four weeks to tear down the building, which at the time of its erection in 1898 was considered the finest playhouse in the country.

The trustees of the Sixty-Five East Jackson Liquidation trust are Harry J. Powers, veteran theater operator, and at one time financially interested in three Chicago playhouses—the ill-fated Iroquois, Powers and the Illinois—Martin F. Colby and R. A. Mowat.

Ford Dealers Will Build.

A $125,000 structure is to be erected by the Mercantile Motors company, Ford dealers, at 3948 West Roosevelt road, within the next sixty days, to replace the building destroyed on Monday in a $100,000 fire, according to A. B. Gutterman, vice president of the concern. In the meantime temporary quarters will be maintained at 1634 South Crawford avenue.

Firestone Tire and Rubber.

Investors' Guide: As a reader of your paper I would be pleased for information on Firestone Tire and Rubber.—T. R. F.

Answer: Firestone Tire and Rubber company is a well integrated manufacturer of tires and other rubber products. It grows a substantial portion of its latex requirements on its Liberian plantations, operates cotton mills and more than 500 retail service stations. These outlets sell tires, automobile accessories, gasoline, oil, etc.

Bulk of tire sales is for original equipment. The company supplies about 60 per cent of Ford's requirements. Sale of miscellaneous rubber goods, such as insulation, footwear, belting, etc., are large.

Rising rubber prices, which put the Liberian plantations on a profitable basis for the first time and boosted the profit margin, absence of the usually recurring price wars in the industry, increased foreign sales and better demand for industrial products of rubber brought earnings for 1935 to the highest point in four years.

1935	$121,671,000	$5,649,000	$1.53
1934	99,130,000	4,155,000	.71
1933	75,402,000	2,397,000	*.21

*Net loss.

Current position on Oct. 31, 1935, was strong, as it has been for years. Current assets were $66,744,000 and current liabilities were $19,610,000. Subsidiary funded debt was $16,000,000. There are outstanding 466,111 shares of $100 par preferred and 1,866,007 shares of $10 par common.

Dividends on the common have been paid every year since 1910 with the exception of 1922 and 1923. Directors increased the quarterly dividend rate from 10 cents to 30 cents a share, effective Jan. 20.

Home Owners Loan.

Investors' Guide: I am holding some Home Owners Loan corporation bonds which I received as payment on a mortgage. These bear 2¾ per cent. I thought they were as good as any safe investment, but have been told otherwise. I would like your opinion.—Miss P. E. F.

Answer: Home Owners' Loan corporation bonds are guaranteed, both as to principal and interest, by the United States government. They rank equally with all other obligations of the federal government and, therefore, are accorded the highest rating as far as assurance of principal and return are concerned.

The market price of the bonds, of course, is not immune to those influences which affect government bonds generally.

HIDE FUTURES.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—[Special.]—Trade in hide futures was light, only 10 lots or 400,000 lbs changing hands. Closing trades were unchanged to 4 points higher. Closing bids in cents per pound: March, 11.95c; June, 12.30c; September, 12.32c; December, 12.92c.
